Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Saturday, May 24, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The greater part of the day will be pleasant and enjoyable, but beyond evening your ideas may conflict with another's. Back off.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't get into competitive business situations today if you've tried, without success, to resolve before with a certain party.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21) Where you're involved with others, make plans — but not tonight. If one party has a hidden agenda, it's likely they'll have a good time.

CANCER (June 22-July 22) Hear about opportunities today. Should you not be able to act, throw your ideas in the hat of others and see what comes back.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Others may run into unexpected complications this evening. Be careful — it could be because you've overstayed your welcome.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An overbearing friend will get on your nerves if you're not careful. Don't let pushiness get you to behave in bad manner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Normally you delight in stimulating debate. Be careful who you tackle today, however. Your opponent may take it far more seriously than you intended.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's not a day to prove a friend wrong. Anticipate need in others, and you'll be a positive influence through. It's not wise to confide in him.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's very likely you'll be very busy today. Don't let yourself get so involved that you're overlooked in an emergency.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your associates are counting on you to be more than usual cooperative today. Taking hasty offense could cause a serious rift.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Don't let your snobbishness exceed your reach. You are capable of attaining your goals as long as you are realistic about them.

Hard Arteries Require Action

by G. C. THOMPSON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thompson: I'm only 30 and I've been told I have hardening of the arteries. Is this normal for my age? I'm afraid I'll have a heart attack before I'm 40. — Mrs. R.S.

It's never too early to start taking care of your heart. Yes, hardening of the arteries is common in the adult, and it's rather common in the young adult.

Hardening of the arteries is a process that starts with fatty deposits on the inside of the arteries. It is accelerated by unnecessary deposition of cholesterol. Other factors are obesity, diabetes, high blood pressure and others.

By age 30, there is not much you can do to correct any hardening that has already occurred. At this age you do have been cast. The important thing now is to make the most of what is left of your once-supple arterial system. This is not to guarantee that you escape some further arterial hardening or the degeneration that accompanies it, but with common sense you can control things a bit. You should be worried if you're not.

If you are overweight, reduce. If your blood pressure is elevated, have it treated. Don't smoke — and that would include reducing.

The word control doesn't have the favorable impact that "cure" does, but in preserving your health in circulatory system, control is the only scientific solution.

You will be one of those who escape some degree of arterial hardening, but this should not be an excuse for overeating. Witness the octogenarian beauty shavers.

Ontario Denies Claim Co-operation Lacking

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario "categorically denies" any opposition from federal Liberal Cabinet ministers that the province has not co-operated in providing information that could help the investigation of the Seafarers' International Union (SIU) provincial Solicitor-General John Clement said Thursday.

"Every conceivable effort has been made to provide the federal authorities with any information which could be useful to them," Mr. Clement told the legislature.

In Ottawa Wednesday, Mr. Moore ordered a Royal Canadian Mounted Police investigation of the SIU.

Mr. Clement objected to the statement attributed to Mr. Moore which suggested Ontario authorities were "strangely unco-operative" in providing clarification of provincial investigations of union activities.

He said a special team of police officers has been set up to pursue matters. Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—High Park) had already participated in a speech to the legislature last November.

"All the information provided to this team by Dr. Shulman on November 19 was forwarded in a general affidavit on December 10," the solicitor-general said.

"I have written a letter to John Moore demanding that he substantiate his charges regarding the alleged lack of co-operation."

Mr. Clement also repeated the provincial view that "if there is to be an inquiry, it should be held under the Ontario Labor Code, not the Criminal Code."

Pensioners' Spouses Eligible for Help

OTTAWA (CP) — The government hopes to give pensioners by next Oct. 1 in many provinces "generous" increases in old age security payments, it was announced Thursday night.

The plan would mean that a person between ages 60 and 65, married to a pensioner, would be eligible for the old age pension at the same rate as that received by the spouse.

Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde said in an interview after announcing the proposal in the Commons he hopes to introduce the plan "the next week, possibly the week after."

He said it will apply to about 60,000 married couples whose partners are 65 or older, the eligibility age for normal old age pensions.

The proposed pensions basically would be an extension of existing pension and guaranteed income supplement plans, which require up to $4,000 for a couple both 65 or over.

Opening lead — Q ♥

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

South's four-spade call was one of those inconvenient doubles. He didn't know what he could make what, but he did know that four spades wouldn't be bad.

Actually, it wounded in Dabney's king of hearts lost to East's ace at trick one. South ruffed and led the queen of spades. East won, played a second club trump and a heart. A break was ruffed.

Now South pulled East's last trump, lost a club finesse, but took the rest of the tricks.

That was a long discussion on what else East-West hearts could make. The answer is that it wouldn't because West would not be able to keep enough trumps for his own hand. No one noticed that East could and should have beaten four spades. All East had to do when he got in with the first high trump was to lead a diamond. A second diamond would be led when West got in the next time. After that bit of brilliant defense East could collect a diamond trick in addition to three tricks he was bound to make anyway.

CAB EYE

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 d.	Pass	1 s.
Pass	1 N.T.	Pass	?

What should you do next?

A — Bid three spades. Your partner has indicated a balanced hand. He should have two spades and a doubleton. Anyway this particular jump is not an invitation to game.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You bid three spades and your partner bids four spades. What do you do now?

Hull. A new teak deck will be laid to stop leaks and it will closely resemble the original deck laid in 1869. Teak has been imported from Thailand for the job.

Two Oshawa Men Held

Shotgunners Rob Bank at Stirling

By JOHN CHASE
HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporters

STIRLING — Two Oshawa men have been charged with armed robbery after the bank of Montreal branch in this village located about 15 miles north of Belleville was robbed at gunpoint Friday.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville have identified the men as Brian Reuben Rodgers, 22, and Daniel Nelson Wirth, 23, both of Oshawa.

Police said two men were apprehended by Kingston OPP on the outskirts of Kingston at about 12:30 p.m. Friday, about three hours after the robbery as a result of information received from an alert citizen.

Police would only say a large quantity of money was stolen and a considerable amount recovered but declined to give exact details pending further investigation.

The weapons used have not been recovered as of this morning. Police said they know where the guns are and believe them to be shotguns but they have not been picked up.

The robbery was staged with brazen, lunatic-like audacity that saw:

— Shopkeepers on the village's main street alerted by passersby, phoning police while the holdup was in progress.

— The bandits have escape by two police drivers into deadend streets.

— A shotgunner join in pursuit as got the licence number of the getaway car.

The robbery occurred about 2:45 p.m.

Bank manager George Hagler said two men armed with what looked like sawed-off shotguns and wearing stocking masks entered the bank and informed everyone of the holdup "in no uncertain words."

They took money from the bank's four tellers, then they forced the staff of 11 full several customers to lie on the floor while they emptied with the cash in a wastepaper basket. Nobody saw the short already had been given.

Stan Royle, Dafforin St. Belleville, Northern Electric installation supervisor, was in the bank when the two bandits passed him on their way in.

He dashed across the road to Dave Patterson's grocery store and told clerk Mamie Bush to phone police.

Next door at Hatom's Hardware a passerby had also raised the alarm and Mrs. Vera Hatom was phoning provincial police in Belleville while the robbery was in progress.

Mr. Royle estimated the whole incident lasted about four minutes.

Neighboring storekeepers and others watched as the men dashed from the bank and got to their car parked behind nearby Stirling Cemeteries.

Mr. Royle said the men drove down two deadend streets before heading west out of Stirling along the Ridge Road.

He gave chase in his company's pickup truck, accompanied by Mr. Patterson, to get the getaway car's licence number.

Mr. Royle said they pursued the armed bandits about a mile until they got the number, which Mr. Patterson wrote on a cigarette package.

Then they returned to give the number to police.

"We did what we could" said Mr. Royle. "But I wasn't going to put my lives in jeopardy."

Roadblocks were thrown up by police in 4 wide area — and maintained during rush-hour traffic — as the hunt went on for the bandits.

The bank was closed for more than two hours as one of its tellers was the last to leave while police carried out investigations inside.

B.C. Plant Robbed Of Liquor

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP) — Thieves broke into the warehouse of the Hiram Walker plant at nearby Winfield and stole liquor prepared after strikes shut down the plant, was retired Thursday is RCMP Corp. police spokesman said Friday.

He said some management personnel are among the employees who will be charged with theft, possession of stolen goods and possession of unlicensed liquor.

Police raided the homes of 12 distillery employees. Two trucks were needed to collect the liquor and transport it to the Kelowna RCMP office where it was locked up and put under 24-hour guard.

The raid by 45 RCMP officers followed a three-month investigation into a complaint from the distiller that some of its stocks were disappearing.

Insp. Ed Thrift said no evidence has been uncovered of an organized ring stealing the distillery's products, although police suspect some of the liquor was destined for illegal sale. He said the largest single seizure was 14 cases of liquor.

He said stolen tools and electrical equipment were also recovered.

Postal Contracts Talks Are Stalled

OTTAWA (CP) — The state of contract negotiations between the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) and the government remained virtually unchanged Friday as the latter said that has characterized talks continued.

Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey, who had said Thursday he was to make a statement, considered as members of the union in Ontario and parts of the West booked in sick with "Mackasey On" as a protest against the lack of progress in negotiating.

Mr. Mackasey has said post office negotiators are prepared to meet any time with officials of the 22,000-member union.

Jon Davidson, CUPW president, said Friday Vice-President Jean-Claude Parrot and Montreal local president Marcel Pepin met with Friday with Treasury Board President Jean Chretien, but that after the latter there was nothing to report from the secretariat.

The union has been without a contract since last October when the Council of Postal Unions, which included letter carriers—was dissolved.

Mr. Davidson said Friday Mr. Mackasey's offer to increase

"blatant falsehoods" about negotiations, and had not made any concrete counter-proposals to union demands on anything but wages.

CUPW negotiators asked for an hourly pay raise of $2.35 an hour above the present $4.89 in a three-year contract, and a 30-hour workweek without reduction in salary instead of the present 40 hour week.

The government has a 19-point package, a wage offer of $1.15 an hour in four stages over 22 months.

But Mr. Mackasey has said the two sides reached agreement on workers and postal clerks—until got the same increase offered to the letter carriers' Union. (LCU) in a tentative settlement earlier this spring.

The proposed LCU settlement provides for a cost-of-living raise back to Jan. 1, another 30 cents an hour on July 1, another 30 cents in 1976, and 20 cents more on July 1, 1977. The agreement, however, latter there was nothing to report from the secretariat.

The union has been without a contract since last October when the Council of Postal Unions, which included letter carriers—was dissolved.

Mr. Davidson said Friday Mr. Mackasey's offer to increase

Change in Lebanon Regime Fails to Halt Street Fights

BEIRUT (AP) — Armed men from a dozen factions swarmed in the streets and set up roadblocks before a scattered exchange of fire and explosions greeted Lebanon's new military government.

Noureddin Rifai, 70, a retired brigadier-general and chief of security, was appointed prime minister Friday night by President Suleiman Frangieh in an attempt to keep the peace between rightists and Palestinian guerrillas.

A Moslem former premier, Saeb Salam, called on "the army to recognize its duty" and support it, it is reported.

But Yasser Arafat, chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization and guerrilla overlord, ordered all guerrillas to stay off fire and stay out of Lebanese politics, said a Palestinian source.

"It concerns the Lebanese only, and not the Palestinians," he told Beirut Radio. "We will deal with the new military government in the policies established toward us," Arafat was quoted as telling guerrilla leaders in Beirut.

However, the government did not directly intervene to end the four-day fighting which has left at least 29 persons dead and more than 80 wounded. The ceasefires have failed to hold.

Gunfire and explosions were heard in two areas of Beirut today, but the heavy fighting between Palestine guerrillas and Irregular militia of the mainly Christian Falange party seemed to have subsided.

The fighting was the second round outbreak. Last month 30 persons were killed and 200 wounded. Lebanon's 15,000-man army was largely viewed as either one.

Rashid Karami, former prime minister, said: "The formation of this military government is a violation of the democratic system and the constitution."

Socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt charged that the army was against the Palestine liberation movement and predicted that Moslems were not consulted on the formation of the new government.

In this half-Christian, half-Moslem nation, an unwritten agreement provides that the president must be a Maronite Christian and the prime minister a Sunni Moslem.

Colombian Chickens Will Drop from Sky

BOGOTA (AP) — Over stocked poultry producers proposed shooting the Colombian appetite for their product by parachuting live fowl into cities over the city Sunday.

Anyone lucky enough to catch one could keep it, they said.

But the publicity campaign caught the attention of the Society for the Protection of Animals, which protested that the birds might be injured in the descent first.

City hall agreed. It said the chickens drop is still on, but no live birds—they must be killed first.

Plan to Stop Tainted Meat Being Sold at Olympics

MONTREAL (CP) — Recommendations will be made soon to prevent suspected poultry or tainted meat from being sold at the 1976 Olympic Games, Rejean Paul, chief prosecutor of the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into organized crime, said Friday.

Previous testimony at the inquiry revealed that thousands of pounds of tainted meat had been sold at Expo 67 and there had been fears the same would happen at the Games.

In other developments Friday, the inquiry was told that the Quebec government improved two weeks ago an application by Reggie Enic, to use an official "Quebec approved" stamp on its sausage products.

Armand Couville, 44, partowner and manager of the Montreal plant, said that provincial inspectors had toured his plant and found it "very clean."

Earlier testimony at the inquiry by former Reggie employees revealed the firm accepted weekly shipments of tainted meat between 1967 and 1972.

The government meat section inspectors who inspected the plant were re-arranged a few weeks and things had "not changed" but had "a very nice plant," Mr. Couville said.

Reggie Quebec approved meant a government inspector was present at all times at the plant, he said.

Octogenarians United Third Time in Half Century

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

At 88, Mrs. Alice Coles does little writing now — but these are red letter days for her.

And also for Mrs. Lily Guernsey, 80.

Both sisters now are enjoying a re-union in Belleville. It's only the third time they've met since they parted 61 years ago.

Mrs. Coles is now a resident in Montgomery Lodge nursing home.

Their latest reunion came this week as Mrs. Guernsey flew in from their native Norwich, England to meet her sister once again.

It was such a happy reunion they wept in each other's arms.

"It's very nice, I tell you," said Mrs. Guernsey. Friday, as she sat with her sister.

"Yesterday we had a good weep."

Because of her health, Mrs. Guernsey can't travel alone. The trip was made possible because a Belleville friend, Cyrus Dodsworth, also of Norwich, agreed to accompany her.

Mrs. Guernsey, last of their family, and now widows, first visited Belleville before World War I when Mrs. Coles came to Canada.

They met again in the 1930s when Mrs. Coles returned to England on vacation, and again in 1949 when Mrs. Guernsey came to Canada.

After such a long time, said Mrs. Guernsey, her sister at first didn't immediately recognize her when she visited her in her room at the nursing home.

"We've both changed a bit,"

she said cheerily. "You do — so you get older."

Mrs. Guernsey intends staying a month and will include some travelling in her visit.

Will they have another reunion?

Mrs. Guernsey wants to travel to Canada by sea her next visit again — if her health permits, she emphasizes.

"I will come if I can, I promise," she says.

Brainwashing Unfair Charge

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

A letter in the mail in the May 16 issue of The Intelligencer from Mr. Grant charges today's teachers are brainwashing students with communist propaganda and at the same time moving them further to the left.

This type of accusation does not warrant comment except that it comes at a time when secondary school teachers are facing a right-wing movement among students. It also comes at a time when teachers are desperately seeking guidance from the community on curriculum development.

Ironically, the week which this letter was published, Centennial Secondary School teachers were circulating a questionnaire to parents asking them to list in order of priority what they feel students should be learning from their public school. Most of teachers at the school has been attempting to define objectives in the past year.

And for those who would suggest the questionnaire is rigged one objective on it deals with "... knowledge of the religious and moral heritage of his or her country." Many of the objectives also deal with basic human values such as respect for others and a sense of morality.

Other objectives include a concern for an appreciation of the individual's role in the political and economic worlds. Are these the concerns of brainwashed school teachers attempting to brainwash students and parents?

Teachers are beginning to understand their local autonomy in the development of curriculum. There is a growing awareness that too many decisions which are made in Toronto and students vary vast across the province.

The Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation is now attempting to involve parents in a way that will eventually prepare reports on the subject of curriculum and education. When the teachers are seeking community input they deserve the support and respect of the citizens.

While there are many valid points to be made by teachers and educators on, it seems pointless and unfair to make such charges and cast dated charges of student brainwashing.

Quite the contrary, students are subjected to more points of view and outlooks on life and its problems than ever before. Teachers should be applauded for this, not criticized.

Answer;
WOW is a slowly cycling speed inconsistency causing an up and down in the playback sound. FLUTTER is a high speed driver capability noticeable in long held notes. Both are caused by deficiencies in the drive system and expressed as a percentage in the specifications. The smaller the figure, the better. Maximum for Hi-Fi Turnables is around 0.2%.

Amputees Speak Out

Contingency Plan Will Allow Amputees to Continue Key Tags

Official Urges More Aid For Civilian Amputees

Two executive members of the War Amputations of Canada study the catalogue of prostheses which is included in a book on amputations during a recent visit to Belleville. They are Cliff Chadderton (left), national secretary and Bert Coulson, national vice-president. Both men say they feel the federal government should provide more assistance for civilian amputees.

After 30 years of operation, the War Amputations of Canada has formulated a contingency plan to maintain its work for amputees as its membership at First and Second World War veterans declines through death, says its national secretary.

Cliff Chadderton of Ottawa told The Intelligencer in a recent interview, "we have arranged to set up a foundation which will administer the key tag service and carry on the objectives of the association."

Both Mr. Chadderton and Bert Coulson, national vice-president, visited the Quinte area recently and talked about their organization.

"The foundation will be aligned with one of the national trust companies," explained Mr. Chadderton. "The veteran part of the association will step into the background."

He pointed out there is no separate body to present veterans' problems to the government. "This foundation will be in effect a civilian amputee association," he said.

He noted there is less of life expectancy and less of psychological well-being. "I don't think the government takes this into consideration."

The federal government should provide special assistance to civilian amputees as it currently does for First and Second World War amputees, says the national secretary of the War Amputations of Canada.

Cliff Chadderton said in a recent interview with The Intelligencer, "we feel that representation could well be made under civilian amputees should be given special consideration."

He said there should be higher pensions for amputees whether or not they are war veterans.

Both Mr. Chadderton and Bert Coulson, national vice-president, visited Belleville recently to meet with Quinte area war amputees.

Mr. Coulson, an employee of London Life, pointed out most insurance plans are satisfactory with regard to amputations but asked federal authorities do not contribute more than their end.

"I think the government feels there are plans, such as workmen's compensation, which covers these things," he commented.

Mr. Chadderton remarked, "I think we do feel the effects of amputations is not always understood. I think this is where we can serve Canada and the public by informing about amputations."

He explained an amputation is not simply an anatomical loss. "There are psychological factors," he said.

He noted there is loss of life expectancy and loss of psychological well-being. "I don't think the government takes this into consideration."

He said the foundation will aim to improve the quality of life for amputees and to help them lead a normal life.

Shots Can Lessen Danger of TGE

Pig producers should be on the lookout for signs of TGE (transmissible gastro enteritis) in their swine herds this winter, warns Ontario ministry of agriculture and food swine disease consultant Dr. P.G. Oliver, of the veterinary services branch.

"The majority of the outbreaks occur in the winter," says the veterinarian, "because the virus is very stable during cold weather. Already cases have been reported in southwestern Ontario."

Traditionally, TGE is a highly contagious disease. "It affects all ages of pigs, but the heaviest losses — almost 100 percent — are in pigs under three weeks of age," says Dr. Oliver.

Diagnosis of TGE is done largely by assessing a herd's clinical history. There is usually evidence of sows sick and litters dying and, very often, an animal brought into the herd from an unknown health-status source. The virus disease is characterized by diarrhea, vomiting and loss of weight. In little pigs it is often confused with white scours.

"For confirmation of TGE, producers should call in their veterinarian to assess the problem. Diagnostic tests are also available through him or the Ministry's veterinary services laboratories," says Dr. Oliver. For backup proof, farmers should submit a living, sick pig to a laboratory.

To prevent outbreaks of TGE, no visitors should be allowed in the farm unless they are provided with protective clothing: plastic disposable boots.

"Herds can also be 'immunized' by being fed the ground-up intestinal tracts of pigs that have died of the TGE virus," says Dr. Oliver. Feed it to the sows and gilts about one month before farrowing. They will become ill for several days, but will overcome the virus and produce antibodies that are passed on to their litters."

Producers should also check the health status of any new additions to their herds. TGE-carrier pigs could have a devastating effect, especially with farrowing units.

Fence-sitting Hampers Growth

By AL EARLS
Staff Reporter

For years, it seems that Trenton municipal officials have struggled to establish a degree of solidarity between the town and its largest and nearest neighbor, the city of Belleville.

Struggled? Yes, since Trenton, much to its chagrin, is tied to Belleville in ways that are not defined, both Belleville and Trenton fall under the same school system, the same police force, administration, the same planning board.

Intercourse between the two municipalities is, if not excessive, at least no more than normal. Such is the legacy of the town's previous councils.

Yet, it is not accepted. It appears to grate, go against the grain, despite the obvious advantages Trenton receives from its ties to the city's municipality.

Councillors continue to talk about Trenton's autonomy. The West, as the place that draws the town, from which it must expand there, they say.

Of course there is, there's no denying that. But the question is: Why does the west attract the interest of Trenton more than does Belleville?

Does it all come down to that simple now? Trenton would prefer to be a big fish in a little pond, rather than a little fish in a big pond. Smallness in Trenton having glorious definition?

One can't help but feel that is the attraction. The town is aware of itself. It's unsure of its ability to withstand the influence of the larger centre. It's unsure that it can control its own destiny, despite the fact its destiny is already partly charted by Belleville.

That preamble, or stage-setting, or state of trepidation, seems well illustrated in Trenton council's present decision not to decide.

Mayor Rob Patrick seems the leader in this case. For the time being, claiming the interests of the town at heart, he has sat on the fence between Northumberland County and Hastings County (Belleville's home town, so to speak).

Let us wait, he says, to see which county will offer us more for our participation in its structure. Trenton, it appears in his estimation, is the pearl waiting for the right oyster.

The trouble is that agreement is that neither oyster seems to want the pearl. Hastings County remains some indication there might be a change, has decided to undertake a study of its structure. Northumberland, in the midst of its own study, but Trenton, though asked, is to comment on its own future, is not included in that study.

The mayor has said Trenton must weigh the advantages of belonging to either county. Fine, that argument makes sense, but one can't help feel that it is an unnecessary agreement of the town's future in either county setting.

Each oyster does seem closer to it. Besides, what probability is there in Trenton seriously considering going east when it harbors the animosity it does for Belleville? And is not Trenton predisposed to the west?

It seems Trenton should be a little more honest with itself. Let waste time, and get on with the business of finding its own solutions to its own problems without looking for some vague panacea.

It's Still Vine Time

Ground was still being broken in part of Prince Edward County for year's annual pea crop. Spreading herbicide to protect vines on Ameliasburgh Township acreage is Owen Bisma.

Final Payments Now Made For Winter Wheat Crops

Final payments have been made to Ontario wheat producers for their 1973 crop of winter wheat.

The Ontario Wheat Producers' Marketing Board advised that cheques covering the board's 1973 crop final payment and federal government's two per cent payment for the same crop were mailed to producers during the last week in December, Fergus Young, Eniskmore, chairman of the marketing board, emphasized that the payments were for 1973 crop and not for wheat harvested in 1974.

The marketing board's final payment amounted to 23.61 cents per bushel, and the federal government's payment amounted to 39.39 cents per bushel, making a total of $1.26 per bushel on all 1973 crop wheat sold by producers.

The federal payment is based on $1.75 per bushel on that volume of wheat used for domestic human consumption which totalled approximately 6 million bushels or about 50 per cent of producers sales.

However, the total government money available including interest came to about $11 million, and by agreement between the government and the board, it was paid on total bushels sold by producers at 90.19 cents per bushel rather than on the basis of $1.75 per bushel on about one half of the producer sales.

The board final payment totalled more than $4.3 million at 35.81 cents per bushel, which also applied to all wheat sold by producers.

Mr. Young said complete 1973 crop payment and approximate end price was as follows:

1973 — Initial price to producers $1.51 per bushel less 1 cent per bushel licence fee —first board interim payment of 50 cents per bushel made to producers in December 1973 —second board interim payment of $1.00 per bushel made to producers in September 1974

—final board payment of 35.81 cents per bushel made to producers in December 1974

—federal government two price payment of 39.19 cents per bushel made to producers in December 1974

Total end price to producers for 1973 crop wheat was approximately $1.75 plus escalator allowances.

There were 12,194,349 bushels sold by Ontario wheat producers out of the 1973 crop which was officially estimated at 14.8 million bushels. The difference between the amount sold by producers and the estimated total for the crop is accounted for by either on-farm carryover or on-farm carry over or on - farm feed utilization, and seed use.

The $1.26 applied to the 14.8 million bushel figure is an all-time record for the crop and resulted in a total farm value at well over $65 million.

The previous high total value was recorded for the 1948 crop at $45 million at $2.05 per bushel on 21.9 million bushels produced.

Time to Examine Council Tradition

PICTON — It's "Westward ho" for Prince Edward County council's road committee and the county engineer this fall despite efforts by Picton reeve Lorry Richardson to brake the wheels on the wagon train.

The committee is off to Calgary with council's blessing for a five-day convention of the Roads and Transportation Association this September.

Reeve Richardson has observed in this "age of austerity" a smaller representation of two delegates would be preferable to a five-member committee and an engineer but council disagrees.

Athol reeve Keith Perry says the cost of the trip is $70 per day per delegate for allowances for transportation and registration.

He doesn't expect all five members of the committee will attend as the stampede to Calgary may not be as large as it appears on the surface.

However, council has authorized all five committee members and the engineer to make every effort to travel with the taxpayer's dollar.

Reeve Richardson's attempt to win approval for a smaller delegation met with council's overwhelming cry of "this is the way we have always done it."

Sophisticated reeve George Foster says he has been a member of the road committee for about seven years and it's "customary."

"This is something that always has been done," he asserted to council this week.

The world was flat until 1492 and inhabitants lived in constant apprehension of wandering over the edge but but fortunately along came Columbus.

With council's apparent determination to do it because its always been done that way, the need for a modern-day counterpart to this explorer seems obvious.

If custom is council's best defence for authorizing five men and the engineer to attend a convention it's time for a break with tradition.

The exact value of this and other conventions always seems a little vague. County warden Clifford Walker says perhaps council's delegates do not learn much but "tis fun to contact you make with people."

You get to know your neighbors and this is a pretty important thing," he notes.

If the conventions are so important perhaps its time committee prepared written reports for presentation to other councillors including a list of contacts.

Unfortunately, Richardson's motion to amend the proposal to send six delegates to the convention to two representatives was voted down this week.

The wagons will roll west on September 22 carrying Prince Edward's pioneer delegates to their first convention in Calgary.

Suggest Vaccination For Breeding Calves

The veterinary services branch of Ontario ministry of agriculture and food now recommends that heifer calves intended for breeding purposes be vaccinated against brucellosis between the ages of three and six months.

In recent years, it has been ministry policy to de-emphasize calfhood vaccination in order to reduce the possibility of a positive blood test from vaccination and thus to allow for the total elimination of the low incidence of disease through the federal testing program.

However, commencing in 1973 and continuing in 1974 there has been a significant increase in the number of infected animals detected. Because of the increasing incidence over that period it has been decided that voluntary calfhood vaccination should be encouraged in order to provide additional protection for Ontario herds.

The only exception to this recommendation would be the cattle breeder who is interested in the export business. In this case importation requirements of other countries may be such that it is against his better interests to vaccinate.

German Gang Before Court, Vigilantes in Britain, Symbols of Global Anarchy

By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The open as well as the incident gunning of terrorism in the world caused by the five again in West Germany this week with the trial of members of the Bader-Meinhof gang.

If anyone has followed their activities to date, you should. They represent an especially vicious form of terrorism against affluent and urbanized societies which many Palestine Liberation Organization hi-jackings of airliners the past year's amateurish by comparison.

The indictment against the gang, named for two leading members, runs to almost 300 pages and includes 54 attempts at murder, five murders, the capture and then destruction by bombing of the West German Embassy in Stockholm, attacks on U.S. Army installations in Heidelberg three years ago, other kidnappings and robberies.

Their intention, not only to disrupt German society but to die in their cause is clear from the death of one of five defendants, from a self-imposed hunger strike.

In Italy, kidnap gangs continue similar, well-planned kidnapping mainly against Nouveau riche citizens and their families. They have resulted in such operations as the recent seven-month confinement of an Italian millionaire's son during which time his father was forced to sell off his properties one by one to make a payment of $2 million for his son's release.

In Latin America, Argentina in particular, kidnapping, political assassination by right-and left-wing terrorist groups continues at a scale unprecedented for the time being in any other national society.

And in this country, worry is growing in the department of national defence and the RCMP that violations by such groups as these, or others unknown, have started up anew, with the theory that Front de Libération du Quebec members are responsible for the kidnapping-extortion style of several bank robberies in Quebec.

The method is to enter the home of a bank manager, hold his family hostage while he goes to the bank, opens the vault and lets the kidnappers walk out, the bank has in the way of ready cash.

The inference here is that such a technique isn't worth it unless the terrorists already know a given bank vault has enough cash and negotiable securities to make their attack worth-while.

And in New York Times a few days ago, there was a chilling report about the growing number of black and Hispanic-(meaning mainly Puerto Rican), teen-agers who now are permanently beyond the job market.

In the present deep U.S. recession they are unskilled, will never obtain the funds or the support to go to trade school. In time they will form a wider basis for the at-present unemployed craziness, robberies and murders which already plague New York City.

This is a devastating catalogue of existing and anticipated acts of violence by the so-called ordered communities.

The signs are they will increase rather than subside as long as world economic conditions continue to slide and the leadership of free and democratic societies cannot find ways to solve their vast human and material inequities.

The next nation to conceivably experience this kind of thing could be Britain, already called by extremist politicians, the "Ulster of the 1980's."

Vigilante organizations already exist in Britain, recruited mainly from unemployed and manned by crack ex-army veterans trained and skilled things cut but to kill, kill-and-run.

Mounting terrorism more than anything else reminds the main threat to the civilized world. There is an end or abatement of it in sight.

Farmers Need Support

You are driving along the highway, or maybe enjoying a round of golf. In a neighboring field a farmer is plowing his land.

It's a familiar sight . . . a comforting one too: the man who tills the soil because that is his life and there is no nonsense about downing tools or saying the heck with it, like so many others do these days.

Oh yes, the farmers have their problems, still do, and they have taken time off on occasions to go to Queen's Park or to Ottawa, or to rally together publicly with their tractors, to make some point or other.

But by and large the farmer is a working man all his days, although again, lately, there have been those who for one reason or another . . . including economic pressures and insufficient return on high investment — have sold their property. To retire perhaps, or to take more rewarding work in town.

And there was a warning from someone of late that if it goes on this way, there will not be sufficient food to go around in Canada by the year 2,000.

As of now things are strangely quiet on the agricultural scene. The farmer is still out there working, but there is silence from spokesmen such as Agricultural Minister Whelan — who not so long ago was championing higher prices for food, because the farmers had to stay in business — silence too from Mrs. Beryl Plumptre and her Food Prices Review Board who was saying of late that she was afraid "respectability" had overcome her grit-ness. And that, as anyone in politics or public life must know, can be the kiss of death.

There was one little item in the paper recently, in which Ontario Agricultural Minister William Stewart was quoted as saying that his ministry had been unable or expand its programs to send city teens to farms for summer visits, because there are not enough farmers willing to take them. There have been more than 600 applicants, but only 200 farmers 'who' will take them.

Maybe it is just a matter of statistics, and logistics; the farmer is a busy man, and for any number of reasons he can function better with the situation as it is without taking on anyone else.

Of considerably more gravity is a report from Brantford that farmers are resisting government appeals that they hire more Canadians. Farmers interviewed have complained of drugs, drunkenness, broken beer bottles, threats of violence and, in one reported case, prostitution by hired help. And they are turning instead to what are described as the well-behaved, quiet and steady black farm laborers from the Caribbean.

It's something to think about. Bear in mind too, that without our farmers and the food they produce there is really nothing left, is there? They need our recognition and whatever support they need to stay in business.

Sitting Pretty In The Throne Room

Drapeau's Spunk

Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal has to be one of the most determined and forward looking men in municipal life anywhere.

The peppery little Quebecer brought off the magnificent Expo 67, in face of opposition and difficulties, and he is confident that the 1976 Olympics will go ahead on schedule too.

Whether they do come about or not remains to be seen, but if Mr. Drapeau has any doubts they certainly are not apparent.

We recall the hassles over whether Expo site would be ready in time. It was, of course, and the rest is history. Let's hope we have an Olympics that is both successful and trouble-free.

The latest word on the Games is encouraging. One report has Mr. Drapeau saying that the work is three months ahead of schedule.

Viewpoint

The Christian Science Monitor

A few comic-opera aspects of surveillance in Czechoslovakia, as described by former Communist leader Alexander Dubcek, may sound familiar to Americans today confronted with tales of their own domestic spying and such things as "stress seminars" to test undercover agents' resistance to women and alcohol. But there is really nothing funny about such matters in either country. And there is a very serious difference between them that ought to remind Americans just how far their flawed free society still is from the iron repression of a land like Mr. Dubcek's.

Advertisers Wary of Controls

The Montreal Gazette

Canadian advertisers recently got together for their annual discussion of economic concerns. Predictably absent from the discussions was the dread figure of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) that CRTC television is phased out of advertising by 1978.

Such a phasing out would reshape the Canadian advertising environment and the advertisers do not like the idea. At this stage, however, they seemed content to leave it up to the cabinet where the issue now rests.

Instead they rehashed their enduring concerns, which are dominated by fear of further government regulation of advertising. The speaker used as far as to criticize legislation restricting a company's right to say that it — rather than he — was as an element of free speech.

As long as the advertisers can produce honest and reasonable advertisements, they should have no fear. Who cares if most of the programs are seen on television are interrupted by commercials? The most cases the worst that can happen is that the commercials will be put in with the quality of the program. Often it improves it.

The television has not been successful so far. Who would pay money to see the wretched parade of forced situation comedies, repetitious police dramas, inane panalin soap operas offered as a steady diet on North American television? It's sad enough that people watch as much as they do.

Advertising is part of our way of life. We use it to find out what other people in the way we speak and the clothes we wear. And as the commercials in everyday life, so we must be prepared to advertising. Of many men really believe that if they drink the right beer the beautiful woman will be there. Or that a new car will bring them than while wash will bring them clean clothes. And if they did, what good would it do them to remove these advertisements?

Our society is founded on the concept that people can think for themselves. Advertising that does not dissemble, lie or use ridiculous "brainwashing" techniques that defy analysis by reason or logic can be reasonably used to support the private sector of the mass media.

In this public sector is another matter. Pierre Juneau, chairman of CRTC, has called the CBC "the central nervous system of Canadian nationhood." Itself a central nervous system should not be to carry foreign culture to every corner of the country. It should instead be the main Canadian culture with a presence of Canadian ideas and programming.

It is just the principle of no advertising that "bothers CBC executives, but the cost. The corporation became as commercial-free as possible April 1 at a cost of $2 million a year. The television cost is just as high, $20 million, which according to CBC brass. It is time Ottawa looked to television as a means to support a truly national broadcasting system and that the commercials in the private sector where they belong.

Looking Backward

— GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

May 24, 1955

Beneath the basement of the living room wall of the Reciprocible home of Walter Holmes, a tattered but still definable piece of newspaper was found by boarder Ed Mattingy. Yellowed from age, the paper, which dates one has been part of a Toronto Sunday edition of 1885. Among the readable material are the following items: Steam packet boats plying the lakes, Shipping announcements and a property sale that lists the price of a lot on the north side Walter Street, Picton. Tattered news items, set in the ornate Queen type of those days mention such names as Lord Palmerston, Napoleon III, Louis Philippe, Emperor of France.

May 24, 1945

In a speech before the South Hastings Education Association's spring meeting, Bob Howie made such a fuss about the great indoor botanical garden that the government, embarrassed, had Public Works uproot it away.

Where did it all go?

"Up to our eighth floor lounge, under the chandeliers amid all the convicts you usually don't find a bench," reports Bob Howie.

"Now when the boys come up from home, I take them into the lounge and tell how does this hit you as a way to spend your tax dollars?

"And as it usually seems to hit them, where it hurts, right there in the pocketbook. I tell them that as taxpayers they'd better start raising hell in their own financial self-defence about all this waste and extravagance."

But it wasn't just up to the MPs' doorstep where all the tropical greenery went.

For about, the Commons has discovered that part of "the great indoor botanical garden" was transplanted in the offices of the Finance Department and the Treasury Board.

Treasury Board President Jean Chretien was giving an accounting of its trying to square the $1,200.00 retail with Finance Minister John Turner's call for restraint.

"Restraint," snorted Conservative finance critic Sinclair Stevens, "you never saw such luxury in offices, the waving palm trees, the Australian umbrella trees, even waving gently in the air conditioned breeze."

"And split leaf philodendrons and all the lavish way of the gorgeous greenery," cried Mr. Stevens.

"Beyond extravagance," sighed Pat Nowlan.

"A lotus land," exclaimed Mr. Nowlan.

"A paradise," sputtered Mr. Stevens.

Poor Jean Chretien! What did he do but explain that Treasury Board had rented 230,000 square feet of office space at $6 the foot.

What I cried Sinclair Stevens, had astonished acreage for clerical floor space and a rental running not over a million dollars.

And in acres with another million dollars worth of the generally gorgeous office space for Finance were installed in the two-department total.

But that wasn't all. Sinclair Stevens wanted to know how much it cost to fill that roomy 230,000 square feet of rentable office space with real budgies, finely crafted furniture and potted shrubbery.

Jean Chretien said he would get the exact figures but obviously isn't holding his breath.

Lain American Corruption Unmasked by Payments From Big Oil Company

By VINCENT EGAN

Thomson News Service

Multinational enterprises are under increasing siege throughout the world this year.

Canada, the home base of some of the biggest multinationals — International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. and Massey-Ferguson Ltd. are the best to many more, has a special concern in the outcome of the political and economic assault on the giant organizations.

The Pittsburgh-based multinational has admitted that it paid $460,000 in "political contributions" in Bolivia during the 1960s.

The disclosure came out at United States legislative proceedings that confirmed that a president had bribes must not be paid to local officials by any multinational organization wishing to do business in most countries of South America and Africa.

In pious indignation, the Bolivian government reacted to Gulf's confession by seizing Gulf's senior Bolivian employee, throwing him into jail, and surrounding Gulf's chairman to La Paz to explain the company's flagrant breach of Bolivian morality.

The government couldn't seize Gulf's assets in Bolivia. It had already expropriated them in 1938, and hasn't got around even yet to paying the agreed compensation (it owes Gulf $9 million.)

Bolivia has a notoriously convenient double standard of morality. It is a haven for drug criminals, the most prominent of whom is former Nazi Colonel Klaus Barbie, sentenced to death by French courts on charges of murder and killing scores of French resistance fighters during the Second World War, and sending bushcrods of Jews to their deaths at Auschwitz.

Even a personal appeal by the Pope failed to persuade President Georges Pompidou for the extradition of the terrorist-torturer "hangman of Lyons" was ignored by Bolivia's military-fascist government — possibly the same authorities who today are so energetically prosecuting Gulf's employees.

Granted, bribery is a repugnant practice, made worse by the fact that those who used to conceal it from the public.

But that doesn't negate the positive role that multinationals have played in the expansion of world trade.

If multinationals do, on occasion, show too little concern for the interests of their host countries (and the examples of foreign subsidiaries), there are ways of dealing with such problems.

Host countries can change the rules, and multinationals have to respect the sovereignty of the host country or get out.

But the record of the three post-war decades shows the multinational enterprise has created much wealth for the world.

Some Third World countries, namely Venezuela and Iran, are even poorer today than in the days when they were colonies.

Others, such as Nepal and Singapore, have accepted the principle of partnership in industry and commerce, and have made steady economic progress.

Overseas Orphans

Editor,

The Intelligencer:

Now I know we Canadians are NUTS. Last week's article on the "SICK AND STARVING GET CHILDREN has convinced me.

Why should anyone bank over a basin of soybean (physically deformed ones YET.) Aren't there any normal Canadian orphans left? Anyone else would prefer WANT a deformed orphan has to be a bit deformed himself . . . mentally.

I just think we are carrying our good samaritan role a bit far. We can't take in the whole disabled world, as why waste good resources on a few baffle efforts.

The Pay Raise for MPs

Editor,

The Intelligencer:

The majority of the present Members of Parliament have not left any doubt that the monetary reward for service the people has top priority. As they gave themselves a 33 and 50 per cent per year pay raise and up, to 7 per cent cost-of-living increase each year.

It is incredible that Finance Minister John Turner, a person who today are so energetic ally prosecuting Gulf's employees.

Granted, bribery is a repugnant practice, made worse by the fact that those who used to conceal it from the public.

goes up $223 a week to $2800 a week. Also MP's giving large tax free allowances for expenses.

Yet, they refuse to negotiate with governors, judges, Senators the elite of society.

Then to show their appreciation for the sacrifice Senator Chiasson have made by Canada they are following the basic old Age Pension to rise from $109.00 to $125.76 in July.

Not to be left behind, the number of MP's in the House of Commons the fifty Council somewhat themselves a 30 per cent increase or cent increase or $7,500.

KENNETH R. PROPHET

We Need St. Paul's Spirit Of Playing by the Rules

By DR. GORDON C. SMITH

In all his various descriptions of the Christian life St. Paul shows a preference for two metaphors. He lived in a military world, in an empire where, in the last analysis, the soldier made and unmade empires. The apostle loved to compare the Christian life with a holy warfare.

But he used another metaphor that he took from the athletic environment of the times. For instance, he wrote: "An athlete is not crowned unless he competes according to the rules" (2 Timothy 2:5).

Of course, every game has its rules. The rules for the games of life are put in part by our traditions, in part by our moral and religious views, and in part by the laws of the land.

Many are now claiming that the function of government should be widely extended to cover almost every sphere of human activity. They want the competitive game abolished. But I think that a nation may eventually suffer from too much government just as much as from too little.

Moreover, it is surely evident that our industrial and political security is being threatened by inflation and, most, by groups who say, "We don't like the rules and we won't play if you don't change them to suit our convictions of liking."

We need a new baptism in the spirit of fair play in the industrial and political sphere. We have too much intolerance and vicious propaganda. The world-wide classes have been tricked so often that they naturally suspect the very mention of wage controls. Many of they themselves been guilty of so many broken promises and agreement that they have lost the confidence of management which naturally answers as ideological strategem with regard to price control.

We need the temper in society that plays with every ounce of strength, but will be governed only after a lawful contest. Besides, it is not as if there were not another day, another round of negotiations. Another track meet. There deserve to win who know how to lose.

Jewish Community in India Dwindles to Mere Hundred

By GERALD RATEN

COCHIN, India (Reuter) — After nearly 2,000 years, the Jewish community in the south Indian state of Kerala is fading away.

Emigration to Israel over 20 years has reduced its number to fewer than 700. The young people in particular have gone in search of security and land—and marriage partners.

Six of the eight synagogues in Kerala have closed and one more is likely to do so this year. That will leave only the 400-year-old Cochin synagogue as a repository of Jewish faith and culture.

The Cochin community is about 60 strong and its secretary-leader, Sarki Kader, 67, has no intention of leaving.

In his office, from which he runs a prosperous retail food and hardware business, Kader said that he does not feel the situation is so marvellous in Israel. Of the Indian group, he said: "I think they are dead."

But of the 2,000 who have left, many have returned despite the vastly different way of life in Israel.

The reduced size of the community has meant there is no one available to carry out the ritual slaughter of animals for those wanting to adhere to dietary laws. Kader, who traces his ancestry back five years to families who made their way here from Baghdad, admits the community will die.

The exodus is not due to discrimination, he said. As a minority group, Jews enjoy certain privileges including priority in college admissions.

Kader, also honorary Dutch consul in this port town, said Jewish holidays were always included in the official Kerala government calendar.

Raymond Abraham Salem, who manages one of Kader's stores, is a 35-year-old bachelor who also will not leave.

"Life is easy here," he said, "and I have been shared by Jackie Cohen, caretaker of the synagogue which stands in a narrow street in an area of the city which is called simply and without prejudice, Jew Town.

Most of the Jews, many of them professional men such as doctors and lawyers, still live in Jew Town in an extraordinary but canal embarrassment to merchants trading with Arab countries. Attempts to have the names changed were rejected on historical grounds and the traders now use simply "Cochin" as an address.

In spite of their small number, a "minyan," the required 10 males before a sabbath service, is usually found in the whitewashed synagogue, the oldest in the Commonwealth. It is lit by dozens of chandeliers and on the floor are mosaic tiles, each one different, brought from China in 1768.

Tradition has it that Jews first came to India and settled at Cranganore, about 40 miles north of Cochin, shortly after the destruction of the second temple in 68 AD.

They were granted land by a Hindu ruler and the copper plates on which the agreement was made are preserved in the synagogue. Their exact date is unknown and is put anywhere from the fourth to the 16th century.

More settlers came from Babylon and Persia and in the Middle Ages from Spain.

The Portuguese colonists expelled the Jews from Cranganore and they moved to their present area, building the synagogue in 1568.

The Jewish community has been divided by historians into "white," "brown" believed to have come from Yemen, and "black" converted south Indian slaves.

The Yemenite Jews were mostly from the poorer class and Kader conceded that German emigration to Israel was beneficial.

Home Grant Great If You Can Get It

That no-strings-attached Ontario Home Buyers' Grant is a great boon to new home owners — or at least it will be if they can apply for it. Real Estate agents have few, if any, of the necessary forms, and people who have written to the province have received letters of acknowledgement but no forms. The responsible department is the Ministry of Revenue, Guaranteed Income and Tax Credit Branch, Province of Ontario.

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet recently announced new minimum standards for the flammability of carpets and rugs, beginning January 1, 1976. All carpets and rugs imported, advertised or sold for consumer use must meet regulations designed to minimize the hazard of large carpeted areas which tend to spread fires.

* * * * *

The same department warns about the dangers inherent in the chemical sodium peroxide — a component of denture cleaners. First, it can cause painful and serious injury to children swallowed. Secondly, it can start fires under specific conditions — that is, if you wipe spilled solution with a damp paper tissue and discard the tissue with paper or combustible material, a chemical reaction can occur resulting in fire. Of course, this occurs only in special and unusual circumstances.

* * * * *

Not all toothpastes which contain fluoride are equally effective in preventing dental decay.

Dr. Tony Hargreaves, chairman of the University of Toronto Department of Pedodontics, says that where fluoride is combined with abrasive teeth whitener, the abrasive interferes with the protective action of the fluoride.

According to Dr. Hargreaves, fluorides have been added to some brands of toothpaste simply to boost their sales potential — the toothpastes do not claim to reduce cavities.

The researcher adds that the whitening compounds can create problems by wearing down the protective surfaces of the teeth. In certain extreme cases, in fact, long term users of abrasive toothpaste have teeth that have become so thin they could easily be snapped.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Levick

Levick—Lawrie

Stella Caroline Anne Lawrie and Peter John Levick exchanged wedding vows May 3, at an afternoon service in the First Unitarian Church, Ottawa.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. R. Lawrie, of Ottawa. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Levick.

Rev. Vernon C. Nichols officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore her mother's wedding dress of white satin brocade with long sleeves. She also carried a bouquet of red roses and white carnations.

The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Jessie. She wore a pale blue gown and matching hat. Her bouquet was cream-colored roses and deep red carnations.

Stephen Levick, the groom's brother, was the best man. Helping as ushers were the bride's brothers, David and Jamie Lawrie.

The reception was held at the Embassy West Hotel where a buffet dinner was served.

The couple plan to reside in Smith's Falls during the summer and then continue their studies at Carleton University in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Rushlow

Rushlow—Pope

Mary Catherine Pope became the wife of Stephen Earl Rushlow in a spring wedding held in Holy Rosary Church, conducted by Rev. George Mullin.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Pope, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rushlow.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an organza gown with a high neckline, yoke and cuffs bordered by accordion ruffles, with chantilly lace inset in the bishop sleeve and yoke, and sequins and pearls at the bottom of the skirt and waistline train also edged with ruffles. The empire waist was trimmed with ribbon tied in a bow at the back, and a white picture hat trimmed with velvet ribbon completed the ensemble. She carried red roses.

Lorrie Sagriff was maid of honor in mauve, and Janet Pope, the bride's sister, and Juliana Corrigan were bridesmaids in pink and yellow respectively. Their gowns were cotton with raised white velvet doves, with high necklines with frilled yokes and lace ruffles on necks, cuffs, and skirt bottom. They carried white nosegays centred with daisies.

Ann Pope, the bride's sister, was flower girl in a matching mauve gown, carrying a basket of flowers.

The groom's best man was Tom Rogers, and his ushers were David Pope, the bride's brother and Maurice Golden.

Formals—On The Way Out?

By CINDY MORTON
Staff Reporter

Secondary school formals may soon be another victim of inflation.

Some schools in the Belleville area, for example, report that 25 per cent of their students did not attend recent formal dances. Due to this low attendance the dances may be cancelled in future years.

Centennial Secondary School has already taken the step and this year is not having a formal because of a lack of interest among the students. Belleville Collegiate Institute, Quinte Secondary School, Albert College, Moira Secondary School and Bayside hold spring formals while Nicholson has a dinner dance in its place.

Bill MacKay, Centennial principal, feels that students are "not interested".

"It's not the expense of the formals that keeps the students away," said Mr. MacKay, "they just don't want to get dressed up." Whether or not this school holds formals in the years to come he says, "depends on the students — if they want one, we'll have one."

Students may not be able to afford to dress themselves appropriately for the occasion. It may not be a question of whether or not they want to, but whether or not they can afford to.

Doug Dixon, a 16-year-old Belleville Collegiate Institute student recently attended his first formal. He found it very expensive than he had anticipated. Since he did not have a proper suit he purchased one, which he felt was a more practical thing to do than rent a tuxedo.

To rent a tuxedo in Belleville could cost anywhere from $20 to $40 for one night's wear.

Then there was the ticket to the dance that Doug had to buy. School social tickets run from $6 to $12.

A corsage is another expense and they range in price from $2.50 for carnations to $7 for an orchid.

There are also many other things that add to the overall bill such as transportation, a bite to eat after the dance or possibly even dinner before the dance.

The night cost Doug well over $100 and he spent only money he had earned himself.

"It was a lot of money, but it was worth it," said Doug, "I'd do it again."

A common misconception is that only boys suffer from the high cost of the dance. Any girl who has recently attended a formal will tell you that she too had to dig into her pockets for extra funds.

Janet Gibson who recently attended her first formal had an idea on how to cut costs.

Her primary concern was to buy a suitable dress and she realized that a belt, shoes and accessories were also needed.

"It was a lot of money for one night," said the 15-year-old girl.

Centennial Secondary School student Carolyn Fisher feels that formals have always been thought of as a girls' event and is sorry that her school has stopped holding one.

"Girls still want to be asked to formals, and I think boys still want to ask us, but with the high costs of the dance it makes it impossible. You have to have a fair amount of money to be able to attend a formal," she said.

Carolyn feels that formals may soon be a thing of the past, only to be remembered by those who attended one before inflation hit.

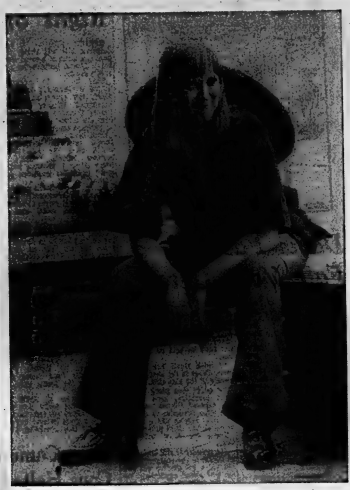
Marcel Grobba, hostess-waiter dressed in unbleached beige cotton coolie top and cold skirt, strolls along Toronto's Yorkville Ave., with John Black who is also in a coolie outfit. Marcel describes —"His as "depression clothes".

Fashion Kick

Young people in Toronto are on a khaki kick. They're sporting coolie tops and pants identical to the Chinese worker's uniform which can be laundered at home to avoid dry cleaning bills.

It's a trend towards cheap, practical clothes for hard times. Described as "depression clothes" by several boutique owners, khaki pants may challenge denim jeans as the weather gets warmer.

Khaki clothes are cheap and comfortable, yet elegant enough to wear to work. Natural accessories — leather, rope or khaki belts; straw hats and handbags; woven leather flat sandals or canvas shoes with rope soles and jewelry carved of wood or tortoise shell — should be worn with the khaki look.



Lois Macaulay, Toronto salesgirl, relaxes in indigo blue coolie top identical to the Chinese worker's jacket, matching drawstring pants, wide-brimmed hat and low-heeled shoes. They're super cheap and she washes the outfit at home.

Ann Landers

Crying 'Necessary Release'

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 21-year-old male. My problem, Ann, is that when I get the least little bit upset I cry. It's very embarrassing because I've cried in front of people whose respect and esteem mean a lot to me. I've done this all my life and it's beginning to knock my ego to pieces.

I've never heard of a 21-year-old male who cried so much. Why am I so different? What can I do about it?—Ashamed Of Myself

Dear A. O. M.: You may not be so different as you think. Many males cry, but they do it privately. And crying isn't such a bad thing. Weepers aren't necessarily losers. It can be a healthy release for anxiety and frustration.

Since the real problem is your fear of crying, my advice is to get off by myself when you feel the tears coming on. If you've been a weeper all your life, chances for changing this pat-tern are slim. (P.S. A bota of consolidate Tears are better than bottled rage which can cause ulcers.)

Dear Ann Landers: I wonder how many wives among your readers have my problems. I am accused by my husband of being frigid, cold and unresponsive. Why doesn't he take his misery and set himself such questions as these: "When did I last shower, use a deodorant or brush my teeth? Am I sober. Does my breath reek of beer or booze?

I'm basically an affectionate person. When we married, nearly 30 years ago, we were very much in love. Shortly after our honeymoon I became disenchanted. My husband's lack of personal hygiene was something I couldn't deal with. I hinted at first. Nothing changed. Then I came right out and told him. Still nothing changed.

This man is a college graduate. He holds an executive position with a well-known firm, is considered charming and intelligent—until he drinks too much, which is becoming more frequent. Our life is almost all because of his lack of bodily cleanliness and excessive drinking.

Please print this letter, Ann. It's too late to help our marriage, but perhaps it will help someone else's.—Just Sad

Dear Sad: When people disregard personal hygiene to the point that they become offensive, it is often something beyond "carelessness." It's mental illness.

I've received similar letters from men who have the same complaints about their wives. I hope your letter will reach those who need it to seek outside help.

Dear Ann: I think your advice to "Scarred Forever" (she found a bunch of dirty pictures among her dead father's belongings), was wrong. You said, "His ability to lead two completely different lives is a symptom of a severe personality disorder."

I am a bisexual who has a terrific marriage. But every month or so I like the "companionship" of another guy. I've been carrying on like this for nine of the 11 years of our marriage. My wife would divorce me if she found out. Of course, I'd never leave dirty pictures lying around, but I don't believe I have a "severe personality disorder." It's just that my sex and life provides me with a necessary release.

You owe couple like me a retraction. I'll accept the label "rat" but I resent being told I'm not normal.—Happy In Southern California.

Dear Happy: I wouldn't call you a rat. I'd just say you are the unfortunate victim of a severe personality disorder.

Kids Meet Parents At Adoption Party

It was pretty much like any other children's party. There were games and daughters and pop.

The difference was that the adults who attended were interested in the adoption of the older child, and the kids who attended were definitely interested in being adopted.

When it was over and time to go home almost all of the children had found prospective new parents.

Interagency adoption parties — like the one described above are an innovative method of finding homes for older, hard-to-place children, being tried by the adoption departments of Family and Children's Services. The idea originated in a think-tank of agency adoption workers.

At the second and most recent party, held in a United Church in Winona, there were 14 children from Niagara, Hamilton, Toronto, and Brockville, and 36 couples from Hamilton, Burlington, Brantford and Niagara.

One couple who were interested only in a four to six-year-old girl when they came to the party fell in love with a 13-year-old boy who is now on adoption placement in their home.

At a result of the first party four out of 11 children were placed in adoption homes. At the second party in June of 14 had offers of homes, and these included two sets of siblings who had to be adopted as a unit.

The majority got involved right away. In fact, enthusiasm was so high that the only worry was how to prevent some couples from monopolizing certain youngsters.

At first there were worries that organizing adoption parties amounted to putting kids on the auction block, according to adoption worker Keith Dixon.

In view of the result, and the attitudes of the children and applicants involved, such fears were unfounded. "All the kids knew exactly what the party was for beforehand, and they seemed to be extremely relaxed about it."

A few of the older children were doing their own sizing up, but the majority of the younger kids were pre-occupied with the food and toys.

In years to come, many of them, will be able to say in retrospect that it was the best party of their lives. And that the benefits were life-lasting.

Nursery for Forgotten Children

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Outside Cassie Campbell-McIntosh says she can justify charging higher rates to parents who already have added financial problems dealing with their handicapped child."

pathizes with parents of handicapped children because their care is a "labour loh."

Consequently, she has opened a private day nursery for children ranging in age from two to six years at Eldgerlov Public School here.

She said $25 a week for day

A privately-funded day care centre for the "forgotten" children of society is unusual she said. The usual course was for an association or a government to provide funds for such a service, and even those were few and far between.

Mrs. Campbell-McIntosh, former director of the Bo-Peep Nursery for the Handicapped, run by the Brampton Association for the Mentally Retarded, said: "Two hours a day of play is not enough for handicapped kids."

Her full-day program, which started with five children, now has a bank of 40 volunteers to help.

"Caring for handicapped children, both mentally and physically, is a very enormous problem," she said, "specially at home."

Enough volunteers for a one-to-one relationship with the children is necessary to ensure an intensive program of help, Mrs.

The centre will operate until 5 p.m. and will not beginning in September it will be open year-round.

Mrs. Campbell-McIntosh said she is operating for only two months this season to allow staff to work out any problems that arise. A full complement of children is welcomed in September.

The school will have a minimum enrolment of 20 children, but will accept only 15 registrations once a year to allow five places to be kept open for "emergencies."

Fees will be $25 a month, which includes transportation and a hot meal.

She's Loved the Sea Since Childhood

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Dora Wales is the captain of the $2,000-a-day Polish ship Tovarisz Wielkopolski which was docked in Sydney unloading a cargo of 12,000 tons of coke.

She has spent 27 years as a merchant seaman and the last 13 as a ship's captain and commands a crew of 35 men including her husband.

"Ever since I was a little girl I have loved the sea and so, when I grew up, this is what I decided to do," he said.

Mrs. Wales had to apply 19 times before she was accepted at the Polish navigation school. She graduated at the top of a class in which she was the only woman.

After graduating from the school in 1950 she worked as a merchant sailor and then switched to a tugboat where she commanded an all-women crew.

After a short stint with the Polish navy she became an inspector in charge of safety equipment on board ships.

She has been in charge of my ship earlier but I had to prove myself because I was a woman, she said.

Mrs. Wales received her master's ticket in 1965, 13 years after her graduation.

Mrs. Wales said her only regret is not having enough private life.

"Sometimes we stay more than our usual one day in port and I like to get off the ship and shop and look around but I never have enough time because I'm bothered by press and other people who find a woman captain unusual."

Captain Wales said she and her husband, the ship's first mate, have no difficulty working together.

The Wales's only son has just graduated from navigation school in Poland.

Women's Lib Not 'Lesbian Plot'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The women's liberation movement may increase the number of women who consider themselves bisexual, says Dr. Pepper Schwartz, assistant professor of sociology at University of Washington.

She stressed that she was not saying that the women's movement is "a lesbian plot."

However, "through the women's movement, women are learning to respect and love other women" she said, and women tend to "accomplish what they love so perhaps more will become involved in homosexual relationships.

Dr. Schwartz and Phillip Blumstein, also of University of Washington, did a study in five largest American cities of 150 people who had experienced or had an interest in bisexuality.

"It's not the kind of thing you could go to every third house on a census crack and ask about," she said, explaining that the study is not drawn from a random sample.

She said the study shows that people tend to label themselves as bisexual, homosexual, heterosexual because of what they consider their identity to be, rather than their past behavior.

Davis Favored Fall Vote Date

TORONTO (CP) — Despite widespread speculation that he would call a election this fall, Premier William Davis has always favored a fall date for an Ontario vote.

In the premier realized the ramifications of some constitutional members of his cabinet who believed party fortunes rise on the upswing and urged him to call an election for June. Party officials were also aware Mr. Davis is about to unveil a sweeping government policies and gamble on a fall campaign probably late in September or October.

"There was never any talent on Davis' part to go in June," one of the premier's aides said in a recent interview.

Inspection Of Quebec Plants Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) called Friday for a full inspection of all meat packing plants in Canada.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde should "examine all meat inspecting capacity he has and send those inspectors into Quebec," Mr. McGrath said in the Commons.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield asked what Mr. Lalonde has done "to ensure that food unfit for human consumption is not being packed in Canada."

Mr. Lalonde told the Progressive Conservative leader meat inspection is primarily a provincial responsibility and federal officials have no evidence that tainted meat has been sold in other provinces.

Mr. Stanfield said the health minister was using the mainly provincial jurisdiction over meat inspection as an excuse for inaction. The Food and Drugs Act gave the health department full jurisdiction over meat inspection standards.

He was speaking after the deadline for Mr. Davis to call a spring election had passed. Ontario state there must be 37 days from the time the vote is called until it is taken and voting must be held on a Thursday.

"I think Davis has got too many things in the wind for this summer," the aide said.

He added that many government programs, such as a new regional government, will look more attractive to the voters after they've had a chance to get shaken down properly.

There are other considerations.

The premier is still hoping for an upturn in the economy in the fall and a fall election will give the new riding associations under the redistribution bill a better chance to organize.

June is also the time when many home-owners get their municipal tax assessment. Opinions

Two Youths Held for Car Theft

Two Hamilton area youths are being held in custody by Belleville city police following the recovery of a car early today that was reported stolen Wednesday by Hamilton-Wentworth Regional police.

A city police spokesman said today regional police were en route to Belleville to charge the two youths with car theft.

The youths are identified as John Peter Dimattia, 17, of 790 Burlington St. E., Hamilton, and Jack Walter Tholl, 18, of 3211 Homestead, Mount Hope.

The spokesman said Constables Gary Lanier and Steven Tolworth spotted the car driving along College St. E. at about 8:30 a.m. today and stopped the vehicle near Bell's Tile.

He said the two occupants did not resist arrest.

Glanmore House Gets $13,620 For Three Summer Projects

By ROBIN CHASE

The federal and provincial governments are pouring $13,620 into three summer projects at the Hastings County Museum.

Marion Lewis, museum curator, said in an interview Friday that the grant, totalling $4,080 from the federal state department, will fund a "student community services" project.

The project, which will be supplemented by additional money from the museum budget, will employ three students to assist in the work of volunteers in the areas of interpretation, education and volunteer training, he explained.

Names of the students, who will perform duties at the back of the museum at 257 East Bridge St. in Belleville, will not be released until their hirings are formalized, he said.

The project will begin May 27 and operate for 16 weeks.

The second largest amount is an Opportunities For Youth (OFY) grant of $4,380 from the federal department of manpower and immigration for five students in an oral history program.

The students are Belleville residents, Nancy Potter, Cindy Newman and Christie Strahan of Centennial Secondary School and Dave Masters and Rob Miller of Moira Secondary School.

They will be entrusted with the task of travelling throughout the Quinte area, collecting and researching people's reminiscences, Mr. Lewis said. Anyone with information to relate is invited to call the museum at 962-2329, he added.

The program will begin on June 1 and operate until an undetermined date in late August.

A third project for $4,360 funded by the historical museums branch in the provincial ministry of culture and recreation was named Operation Museum Catalogue.

"The three students involved will be Loyalist College team captain and Lenox Secretary of Belleville and Joanne Schannon of Plainfield, registrars.

Mr. Lewis said this is the final year in the two-year project. Over 4,000 artifacts are retrieves from last year. He said Joanne, as a newcomer, will attend York University in Toronto on Monday for training and will start her assignment at the museum on June 3.

He explained the project, which began two weeks ago and will finish by the end of August, involves cataloging to accomplish a cross-index of all collections at the museum. The team will also arrange storage for easy access.

Mr. Lewis elaborated the cross-index is designed to be used in a future national inventory of collections from all museums in Canada by computer.

"They're looking for people to record . . . looking for what it was like to live back then," he commented. "They (people) don't have to be notable."

New Boarders

Mrs. Connie Potts of 450 Yeoman St., Belleville has two new boarders. Their names are Bucky and Peanuts; and they are baby squirrels. Adopted by Mrs. Potts' cat, Highway; Bucky and Peanuts have been with the Potts for just over a week. Mrs. Potts says she feeds the squirrels bread, peanut butter, and has even tried pablum and cat food.

Two Die In Blaze

CAMPBELLFORD — Two persons were reported dead today in a fire north of here.

No immediate details were available.

But provincial police at Brighton said the scene of the fire was on the Pratnevest and that two people had died.

Convention Endorsed

PICTON — Conventions are "invaluable" to members of Prince Edward County council, says Hillier deputy-reeve Donald Sutton but possibly the number of delegates could be reduced to cut costs.

The deputy-reeve was commenting on recent conventions in council when Picton reeve Larry Richardson opened a motion authorizing a five-member committee and the county engineer to attend a roads convention in Calgary this fall.

Council defeated a motion to have the money for this authorization deleted from a committee report adopted in committee of the whole.

Deputy-reeve Sutton emphasized the contacts made by delegates at the conventions are important as is the information accumulated there.

"Prince Edward county council should be represented at all conventions," he said.

He added that possibly fewer delegates could be sent in the interest of costs.

Mohawks To Mark Landing

TYENDINAGA — Mohawks of this reserve Sunday mark the 181st anniversary of the landing of their ancestors.

An annual event, the commemoration is staged at the end of the reserve close by a memorial cairn marking the arrival of the Mohawks in 1784 — the first settlers on the Bay of Quinte.

Pre-Olympic Tour Draws Fewer Cyclists

There'll be fewer cyclists passing through Belleville this year than earlier expected.

The same goes for next year.

It all has to do with the Canadian Olympic Bike Tour.

For the event, city authorities were told earlier this year, up to 5,000 cyclists might pass through the city.

And a pre-Olympic (PREO) testing tour to be held late in August would draw 700 this year.

However, these figures have now been reduced — by a wide margin — the city parks board and recreation committee was told Tuesday.

The 1976 event now is expected to draw a maximum 1,000 and the PREO 200.

Ken Hutchinson, recreation director, said Zwick's Park had been suggested as an overnight accommodation.

Lloyd Spry, parks director, said overnight camping was a deviation from parks board policy. He overall that it could set a precedent and bring similar inquiries from other organizations.

However, it was a special event, said Spry, and there also found a solution to the problem.

The parks bylaw permits the board to designate campsite areas.

So the city parks board will designate one day only to accommodate the cyclists.

Pedestrian Hit by Car

TRENTON — HR by a car which struck Thomas St. West at McGill St. on Friday Robert Graham, 46, RR4, Trenton, suffered serious head injuries, said police.

Mr. Graham was given emergency treatment at Trenton Memorial Hospital and later transferred to Kingston General Hospital.

Police said the driver of the car was Lance Baxter, 1823, Carrying Place.

Archers May Get Chance To Join in Deer Hunting

Bow-hunting is being recommended for the southern areas of the Quinte district by natural resources ministry wildlife officials.

The counties involved include Prince Edward, Hastings, Frontenac and Lennox and Addington, says the ministry.

The regulation firearm season in the last three counties are not affected by the recommendation, which must receive final approval by Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier.

The new archery season was suggested after "careful consideration" of local deer population levels, say ministry officials.

Populates estimates, together with statistics on archery success, indicate that the area is capable of supplying hunting days for the sport with little impact on deer numbers, they say.

In southwestern Ontario during archery season less than four per cent of hunters succeed in bringing home venison. The number of deer taken is much less than the total killed each year on roads, says the ministry.

OPP Use Eggs to Show Benefits of Seat Belts

And provincial ministry of transportation and communications officials say they hope to crack the shell of parents who neglect to buckle up.

Those are two observations following an OPP demonstration, available to students at Hermony Elementary School near here Friday where Constables Turner and Don Kuzyk used fresh eggs and a model car to stress the importance of wearing seat belts.

Caroline Foley and Cathy Stephens of the ministry's driver-vehicle operations research department and Jennifer Harvey of the Ontario Education Communication Authority (OECA) were present to guage the reaction of students to the program which they hope to introduce into Ontario's public schools this autumn.

Constable Turner says the eggs are first placed loose into the car which is propelled down a ramp and hits a wall, throwing the eggs out. On the second run, the eggs are strapped in by a rubber band and sustain only minor cracks upon collision, only showing seat belt use reduces the threat of serious injury.

Ministry people say they plan to use the presentation in an animated film to be produced by DECA for showing in schools. It will be part of a package which will see safety officers give regular seat belt safety instruction in Grades 2 and 3 beginning in October, a six month pilot program before designing an overall program for all elementary grades.

All the King's Horses...

It's not exactly Humpty-Dumpty, but an unstrapped egg flying from a model car at Harmony Elementary School Friday proved a point for the necessity of wearing seat belts to pupils in Mrs. Barlow's Grade 2 and 3 class. Conducting the demonstration is Constable Don Kuzyk, a community services officer for the Belleville OPP. The egg demonstration will be used by the provincial ministry of transportation and communications in future school instruction.

Deputy Reeve Questions Timing of Council Raise

PICTON — Hillier deputy-reeve Donald Sutton says he supports increased indemnities for Prince Edward County councillors but feels the timing is wrong in initiating the raises in mid-term.

Deputy-reeve Sutton observed, "I don't object to the raise. Until you get to county council you have no idea of the work involved."

"I think the timing is wrong. It, (the increase) should start at the beginning of the next county council semester in January, 1977."

Prince Edward County councillors this week approved a consultants' report recommending an increase of $5 per diem.

Councillors this year will receive $25 per meeting and in 1976 the rate will increase to $40 per session.

Deputy-reeve Sutton says he also feels payment to council on a yearly basis is preferable to the present system of per diem rates.

He notes under the current system, it seems a small group of county councillors sit on interlocking committees. One councillor sits on a total of five.

"Since county government is a committee arrangement, unless you are on a committee you are at a disadvantage sometimes and generally unaware, until you meet at county council, that decisions have been made," he says.

The deputy-reeve suggests the workload could be distributed more evenly to keep all members of council more fully "in the know".

"I am sure if the electorate were to attend county committee meetings they would see why certain county councillors have very little opportunity for input," he adds.

Council to Examine Tax Break for Pensioners

A city councillor will be named Monday as acting mayor for part of the month of June.

It's to cover a period when Mayor Robin Jeffrey is expected to be out of the city.

The agenda for Monday's council meeting contains a resolution calling for the appointment of veteran city councillor Ald. Don Corke as acting mayor.

Council also is to discuss a recent request that pensioners and those on fixed incomes be exempted from education taxes.

The issues had been before council before and was renewed recently with a petition from the Belleville Branch of Pensioners Concerned Canada Inc.

Most Favor Stiffer Penalties for Drinking Drivers

It was reported in Tuesday's paper that Jack Ellis, MP for Hastings has introduced a private member's bill to amend the Criminal Code with stiffer penalties for impaired drivers.

The proposals for change include a possible 10-year imprisonment for impaired drivers involved in a fatal accident; a 6-month to 5-year sentence for mishaps with injuries; possible fines of $25 to $500 or three months in jail for a first offence (up to 12 months for a third offence); and convicted drivers could lose their license for a period of up to three years.

A random survey was taken at the Quinte Mall the other day and over all the people questioned felt the proposals were a step in the right direction.

Here is a sample of the results:

LINDA CARSON

Linda Carson, 20, an import clerk at AGCO believes stricter regulations are needed because impaired drivers "endanger thousands of lives."

When pressed, "people will think more about getting intoxicated and getting into their cars."

Mrs. Carson said, "it is a step in the right direction."

Talking about herself, she always makes the number of drinks she and her husband have at parties, just to be on the safe side.

GREG KETCHESON

Greg Ketcheson was "all for it". A city firefighter, he said, "It is a good idea because there are a lot of needless killings on the highways."

Even though Mr. Ketcheson agreed with the proposals, he stated "they will have to be modified." He believes the age limit should have been kept at 21 and not lowered to 18 a few years ago.

The consequence in the amendment, he felt his second accidents would increase.

MRS. GRANT KIMMETT

Mrs. Kimmet, a housewife, felt the proposals were "terrible" because if a man or a woman made one mistake on the highway, it is fatal.

"I could possibly be faced with 20 years which makes "no sense at all."

Mrs. Kimmet also felt third-time offenders should be imprisoned but a better deterrence for first and second offenders would be "less imprisonment and heavier fines. Hit them where it hurts the most — the pocketbook.

ROB LORIMER

A student at Loyalist, Rob Lorimer, 19, agrees with the proposals because they are logical.

A driver himself, he felt "the more offences a person had, the longer he should stay in prison."

Saying that he sometimes drives after drinking, Rob said "these proposals would certainly make him think a bit before he took the "one for the road" drink."

CURTIS SPENCE

The initial reaction of 44-year-old Curtis Spence was "pretty stiff!"

The stationary engineer felt moderation for the different offences was in order. The courts should be "lenient the first time but any more, they should be hit hard."

Mr. Spence also mentioned hit-and-run accidents. He thought, "knowing what they were facing, a person might just take the chance to try and get away in a hit-and-run for instance."

Red Sox Spoil Bid by Ryan

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

California's Nolan Ryan wasn't heading his pitching spots for the Angels—so Boston Red Sox located the fences.

Ryan, who had allowed only three homers per his first nine starts as he posted an 8-1 record, gave up homers to Bernie Carbo, Carlton Fisk and Dwight Evans in the six innings he worked Friday night and Boston won 7-2 in the American League baseball game 6-1.

It was the second time in four days the Red Sox tolled a pitcher's bid to become the major leagues' first pitcher with three victims of the season. Last Tuesday, Boston beat Vida Blue of Oakland.

In other American League games: Friday night, Milwaukee Twins edged Milwaukee Brewers 3-1, Detroit Tigers topped Texas Rangers 11-7, Oakland A's blanked Cleveland Indians 3-0, Kansas City Royals trounced Baltimore Orioles 10-1 and Chicago White Sox beat Detroit Tigers 6-1.

"My location was lousy," said Ryan. "That was the only thing I had trouble in my other games.

When I could get the ball over, I couldn't hit spots."

Besides clicking his seventh victory, Ryan moved into the No. 2 spot behind Jim Palmer, 9-1, in the left-hand screen leading off the first. Carbo slammed a shot off Ryan. Before Friday, right-hander had struck out 13 times in 35 at bats against Ryan.

But hitting Ryan has not been a problem for Yastrzemski, who has 11 hits in his last 26 at bats against the Angel ace for a .379 average. His home run was a two-run shot.

Graig Nettles hit home-run against the Angels in the first inning and Fisk crashed a two-run homer in the fifth. Evans then crashed three runs with a single and double in the eighth inning.

Sonny Siebert, going five innings in his first start for Oakland, and Jim Todd combined to limit the Indians to three hits. Bert Campaneris and Joe Rudi backed the combined pitching effort with bases-empty home runs off Gaylord Perry, 5-3.

Harmon Killebrew hit a pair of two-run homers, in the first and seventh innings, for Kansas City as A's Fleming created in his sixth victory in nine decisions. It was the 45th time in his career Killebrew had hit two home runs in a game and they gave him a total of 305.

Chicago broke a 3-1 tie with a four-run rally in the sixth inning. Jorge Orta singled to break the tie-breaker, Deron Johnson singled in two runs and Bruce Dreyfuss' sacrifice fly produced the fourth.

reliever Tom Murphy with a two-run scoring single and Ken Berry followed with the winning homer off Steve Foucault, 2-1, pitcher's nemesis for the Twins.

Milt (Catfish) Hunter ran his record to 6-4 for New York but he needed stubbornness after relievers Sparky Lyle and Sid Fe-ng into the inning with an 11-2 lead.

18th 500 For Foyt

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The winner of Sunday's Indianapolis 500 may be whoever comes out on top in the fierce rivalry between A.J. Foyt and master mechanic George Bignotti, the two men who have been the most dominant figures in the event for the last 15 years.

Bignotti, whose brilliant red Wildcats entered by 1973 winner Gordon Johncock and Wally Dallenbach are the serfiest of Foyt's rivals, has brought drivers to victory lane here six times. Foyt, the lanky cotton picker mechanic in the 59-year history of the race, now worth more than $1 million in prizes.

Foyt, a three-time winner, started out with Bignotti and won with the fortmer Sam Friedman Sorbi as chief mechanic in 1961 and 1964, but the two have since gone separate ways.

There are, of course, others with a chance for the $230,00 winner's prize, including former winners Al and Bobby Unser, Mario Andretti and defending champion Johnny Rutherford.

Though the Indianapolis Motor Speedway stood relatively quiet today, outside thousands massed for the 4 a.m. carnaval blast Sunday that will open the gates here.

Speedway owner Tony Hulman will send engines down the pipes of perhaps as many as 330,000 fans at the scheduled 10 a.m. start with the utters those famous words: "Gentlemen, start your engines!"

Foyt will be sitting in the cockpit for the record 16th time, with the advantage of his own bright orange Coyote being the 33 proven among the 33 starters.

Alongside him will be Johncock and Bobby Unser in the first of 11 three-driver crews lined up for the most harrowing start to any sporting event.

Foyt won't say just how much satisfaction he would get from beating Bignotti on victory lap this year, but it is known that A.J. is steaming about the charges made last month by Bignotti, accusing Foyt of cheating in his March victory at the California 500.

Bignotti said Foyt carried extra fuel in a trick fire extinguisher. Foyt has denied the charges, but a bitter controversy ensued and one of them is threatening to sue.

U.S. Auto Club officials promise to see that the machines of the top three finishers will be completely torn down and inspected to make sure no rules have been broken.

Track watchers are looking at Team Penske and McLaren as have been the fastest machines around during the last two practice sessions.

The 34-year-old driver, the youngest in the 33-car field, qualified at a disappointing speed, and finally wrecked his car Thursday while attempting to find more miles per hour.

The car will be repaired by the 11 a.m. green flag Sunday, but there will be no chance for practice beforehand to make sure the car is working right.

There are four rookies in the field, although none are considered threats for victory in the usual circumstances. The rookie with the best chance is Gary Bettenhausen of the fastest qualifier of the four, Bill Puterbaugh.

Wednesday Coverage May Be Out

TORONTO (CP) — National telecasts of Wednesday night hockey games are likely to be dropped next season, the president of the CTV television network said Friday.

CTV president Murray Chercover said Friday that the Canadian Sports Network — a branch of Maclaren Advertising Ltd. which owns telecast rights to the games — plans to use a decision to drop the Wednesday games because of rising costs.

Coverage of Saturday night games on the CBC English network is expected to continue, CTV Chercover said.

Chercover said if advertisers had to choose between the network they would be likely to lean to CBC because they would need the CBC French network.

Local stations in Toronto and Montreal will continue to carry Wednesday games, but other CTV network stations will not. They carry local games or movies in place of network hockey.

Warriors in Command Thanks to Rick Barry

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rick Barry scored 30 points Friday night, sparking Golden State Warriors to a 109-96 victory over Washington Bullets, their third consecutive triumph in the National Basketball Association championship series.

The Warriors, leading the series 3-0 despite being underdogs all the way, can win their first NBA title since moving to the West Coast from Philadelphia in 1962 by beating the Bullets on Sunday in Landover, Md.

No team in NBA history has overcome a 3-0 deficit.

The victory was the most lopsided in the series, the Warriors having to rally to win 96-95 and 95-91. This time, however, they were never trailing by more than two points.

Barry, leading scorer in the series with 30.6 points a game, was off 8.7, got the Warriors off with a 19-point outburst in the first quarter.

In the first period, Barry had 19 points, including three of four consecutive Golden State points, as the Warriors raced to a 31-21 lead.

But halftime the Warriors led 59-48. Barry sat out a good portion of the fourth quarter after fouling out. He was far ahead.

Elvin Hayes paced the Bullets with 30 points. Barry Parkin added 21 points for the Bullets while Phil Chenier scored 1 .

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y. (AP) — Trotter Ford ranked in his favorite cure in hospital Friday, but his condition was reported "satisfactory and stable." Ford, 46, collapsed Wednesday night after pitching 25 minutes of batting practice for New York Yankees. Ford, member of the baseball Hall of Fame, he is pitching coach for Cincinnati Yankees spokesman said that tests showed Ford had not suffered a heart attack.

Harris Steadying Influence

100th Cup Game Sunday

BUFFALO (CP) — Fred Harris was eager to call on Ted Harris in overtime this week.

The Philadelphia Flyers coach has nothing against the 35-year-old defenceman. He just figured the younger Buffalo Sabres would give the 18-year National Hockey League veteran trouble in the sniffing confines of Buffalo's Memorial Auditorium.

The Sabres won that game 5-4 in overtime Tuesday night to capture their best-of-seven Stanley Cup final at two games apiece Thursday night with a 4-2 victory.

Fifth game in the championship final will be at Philadelphia's Spectrum Sunday at 3:30 p.m. EDT and will be televised nationally in Canada on the CBC network.

"My legs are telling me it's time," Harris has said often in recent months.

He hasn't been a regular this year, although some of his better performances have been in the post-season games. Harris, however, is inclined to give it "one more short year" because he's reluctant to uproot the family.

If nothing else, he is a realist.

"I don't think they (the Flyers) would try to convince me to play another year," Harris says. "Not that I wouldn't think about it. But not now. This isn't the time to think about next year."

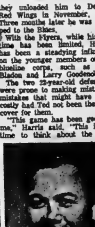
The hard-rock defender, playoff hardened from his early years with Montreal Canadiens, was obtained by Philadelphia in an off-season trade with Los Louis Blues to shore up a defence weakened by the loss of veteran Barry Ashbee.

The Winnipeg native had earned many happy years in the Montreal organization, earning four Stanley Cup rings, before being picked up by Minnesota North Stars in the intra-league draft in 1970.

He stayed with the Stars until they unloaded him to Detroit Red Wings in November, 1973. Three months later he was shipped to the Blues.

With the Flyers, while his ice time has been limited, Harris has been a steadying influence on the younger members of the blueline corps, such as Tim Bladon and Larry Goodenough. The two 22-year-old defenders were prone to making mistakes, mistakes that might have been costly had Ted not been there to cover for them.

"This game has been good to me," Harris said. "This is no time to think about the bad times.



TED HARRIS

Sabres Wary

BUFFALO, N.Y. (CP) — Team captain Jim Schoenfeld says the Buffalo Sabres will play just as well in Philadelphia as they did in front of their own home games this week.

The Sabres defeated the Flyers 4-3 Tuesday and 5-4 Thursday to even their best-of-seven Stanley Cup final at 2-2.

"If we didn't think we could play well, we would steal them the points," Schoenfeld said. "We can't go in there cocky and say we've got them on the run.

"We are going to have to work hard for everything we get. We're going to have to fight for every goal.

"I think we forced the play better boys. Whenever their defence made mistakes, they made them count. We were the ones able to capitalize on them."

Defence partner Bert Stanfield said the club could not afford to open up against the Flyers.

"We've got to play it too wide open now," he said. "We've got it 2-2 playing at home games and we were out of it playing at home.

"We've been putting a lot of pressure on ourselves and that's like we did when we beat Montreal in the seventh game. They haven't run away from us yet.

Perez Hit the Bottom But He Bounced Back

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tony Perez makes his batting drought is over.

Perez has got him pressing," said Cincinnati Reds manager Sparky Anderson. "Sometimes you just have to get to the bottom before you can get back."

"I hit the bottom hard enough to bounce back," said Perez, whose two-run homer Friday night helped the Reds down Philadelphia Phillies 5-2 in a National League baseball game.

The homer gave Perez six hits batted in for the last six games and a tie for league leadership with Dave Cash of New York Mets beat Atlanta Braves 3-1, San Diego Padres stopped Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3, Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3 and San Francisco Giants edged Chicago Cubs 3-2.

The Reds got another strong pitching performance from Gary Nolan who picked up his fourth win in their last five starts and head the Phillies for their second consecutive defeat.

"I'm still not consistent but It's just a matter of time," said Nolan. "I'm still the same pitcher."

He evened his record at 3-3, winning consecutive starts for the first time since July, 1973. He was 13-3 at the all-Star break and finished in fourth place with 20 victories.

Dave Roberts, who left the Astros earlier in May after being three times on the disabled list, limited the Expos to six hits at the Astrodome.

Roberts says his team-mates have done their best to make him comfortable since his return from the disabled list and the Astros won't leave him alone.

"Dave Bristol (Montreal third base coach) kept yelling at me from the dugout. 'Gonna win tonight? Gonna quit again?'

"I wasn't ever behind third base to back up a play and he yelled, 'This is the longest you've gone in a long time. Don't you have relatives, so you can leave again?'

"I love it. If a guy's got a weakness, you shout at him. That's one of baseball's seasons is my temper."

Ed Kranepool and Rusty Staub each had run scoring singles in a three-run fourth. Jiffy Stone relieved Atlanta starter Jim Merritt and got the win when Mets jumped on Carl Morton for four consecutive hits to begin their big inning.

Dave Winfield reached first in the ninth inning on an error by Padres' Enrique Romo and eventually came around to score the winning run for San Diego on Fred Kendall's single.

Bill Madlock's run-scoring single sparked a two-run rally for St. Louis in the eighth inning as the Cardinals past the Dodgers.

Pinch-hitter Glenn Adams tripled home the tie-breaking run. Ted Sizemore scored twice in the eighth inning to beat Chicago.

Ireland Wins

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (Reuter) — Northern Ireland beat Wales 2-1 in the final match for both teams in the British championship Friday night. The result moved Northern Ireland into a first-place tie with Scotland in the round-robin series, both with three points. The loss, however, gave a game against England in hand.

Terry Meagher And Jim Chase Bolster Macs

When the Belleville McDonald's take on Burlington in a doubleheader tonight at 6 and 8:15 o'clock on Sunday night, there'll be a couple of new faces in the lineup.

At third base, local fans will be watching Terry Meagher, and, on the mound, General Chucker Jim Chase will make his debut.

Meagher will be taking Wayne McTaggart's place. McTaggart is nursing a shoulder that's back to health. He has been having trouble with the arm since the McDonald's began workouts in the early spring.

"Jim (Meagher) came with us last at the right time," said Old Dawg Adams. "Hop (McTaggart) is out with his shoulder and Ken Genereaux, our other third baseman, decided to go back to the Quinte League."

Defensive prowess isn't Meagher's only asset. While he played in 71 games last year without an error, he also batted .362. The 5-foot-11, 175-pounder will give the Macs a few giant steps in their walk to a winning season.

Chase is also a timely addition.

He will join Ted Weiss and Scott Reid to give McDonald's the vital three man staff that this league demands.

"If he's in shape, they're no fluid to what he can do for us," said Adams.

On one occasion last year in the Barrie Tournament, Chase lost a bid for a perfect game when he walked the 21st man in the game. As it was he settled for a no-hitter, however, that was the fourth game he had thrown that day and the no - hitter was against St. Thomas — the team that beat Rollins Construction out of Ontario Amateur Softball Association playdowns last season.

Hamilton Squad Is Looking Good

While the Macs will play Burlington in a doubleheader Saturday night at 7:30 at the Alemite, their biggest test may come against Hamilton Scrappers in a single contest Sunday — also at 7:30 p.m. at the Alemite.

The Scrappers have, literally, put together a lineup of all-stars for 1975 season. Bill McNeilis, a 36-year-old right hander who is rated one of the best; Wally Dick, a hurler with the Canadian Champions in 1968, '70 and '74, and Ed Neudorf, a top all-around player, make up the pitching staff.

First baseman "Cookie" Lapolley, Ralph Christie and Neudorf have all hit well over .300 in the past several years. Along with Bill, Larry Christie is also in the lineup for Scrappers, single contest Sunday — also at 7:30 p.m. at the Alemite.

It sounds like an invincible lineup, but the Scrappers have certainly lost its share in the young OFL season.

Burlington has always had a consistent contender. Last season they were tied for second place in the East Division with Niagara Falls and beaten out in a sudden death game with Niagara Falls.

Thanks to Wildman

Stasiak Still Has Belt

Stan (The Man) Stasiak still has his North American Championship Belt today but he can thank the Canadian Wildman and a wild series of events which led up to chairman Tony Parisi's defeat.

Referee Will Jennings and Stasiak were both seeing stars when the Wildman arrived on the scene.

Jennings nodded off after he was slammed heavily by Parisi who had Stasiak lined up before the villain decked, leaving the referee to take the full force of the collision.

Stasiak was rendered senseless when his head caressed a ring pole after he was felled by a chair.

Naturally, before the referee came to his senses, the Wildman had made a hasty exit.

Stasiak was declared the winner.

They wants a cage match with Stasiak and I'll handcuff the Wildman to my arm to keep him from interfering," Lyons shouted.

A dazed Parisi screamed: "I want you, Stasiak, you (bleep)!"

Stasiak accepted the challenge. The two will be caged in for their June 4 match at Memorial Arena.

The Alaskans, making their first appearance here were beaten by Lyons and Dory Robertson. Lyons got his Atomic Drop to work after taking time out to chase the Wildman from the vicinity of the ring.

CNR, Intell Log Wins

The Belleville Industrial Softball League moved to Alemite Park for its regular Friday night twin bill and The Intelligencer, behind Ron Culloden's clutch pitching, took a 7-6 squeaker from Brooke Bond.

The nightcap produced a far different result. In it, CNR exploded for a 13-run sixth inning on the way to a 16-0 win over Leaders who are still looking for their first victory after four reversals.

Culloden, nicked for 12 Brooke Bond hits had 3 when it counted most, coming through with men on base to preserve The Intelligencer's third win of the season. The losers left 10 men on base. Over the route, Culloden fanned five and walked four.

Brooke Bond starter Ross Gear was touched for all runs in the first inning, off four hits and three walks. Tom St. Jules came on to finish up and limited the winners to one run over the last six innings, walked two and struck out four.

Intelligencer: Bill Cooney banged a double while Fred Kuhle and Glynn Symonds each connected for one single.

Jack Walsh stroked a triple and two singles for Brooke Bond. Al Colden supplied a home run and a single, and St. Jules checked in with a double and a triple.

Perry Soule got his shutout for CNR on an eight-hitter and he got plenty of support from his mates who collected 16 base hits off Leaders' pitchers Ed Dawson and Jim Maloney. Soule fanned five and did not walk a man.

Warren Hay was the game's hitting star with a five-for-five performance and five runs batted in. Gil Nesbitt hammered a bases-loaded triple and Soule clouted a homer and a single.

2-stroke Lead For Mahaffey

MEMPHIS (AP) — John Mahaffey's two-stroke margin for victory in Friday's second round of the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis golf tournament.

"I'm thrilled to death," he said. "The way I've played the last seven days, I'd have to be thrilled to death to win this thing."

He birdied two of his last three holes for a four-under-par 67 and a 36-hole total of 138, 11 under par for 54 holes.

Little curved into second place when two of Nicklaus' eight all-time crowns set up a birdie on his 17th hole.

Lanier, winner of the Greg Crosby early this year, had 4 at 4 and 1 at 1st trial. Nicklaus had to settle for a 70 and a tie with Weiskopf.

Weiskopf, one of the game's longest hitters, shot a 71 after he had driven a four-iron shot although he reached one of the par-5 holes.

Larry Hinson was next with a 72 for a 139 total. Andy North, who shared the first-round lead with Mahaffey, Lanier and Weiskopf, went to 76 for a 139. Also at that level was Jerry Heard, who won this title two years ago. He had a second round 70.

Trevino, who holds a two-stroke set of irons and went back to the old sticks, rallied with a 69 and finished at 140. Nicklaus, the last, behind day—and was at 141.

Robert Green collected $19,500 for a hole in one on the par three 17th, lipped at 230 yards, he used a four iron. The ball popped once and then dunked into the hole. It was his fifth ace.

10C Will Keep Close Watch On Proceedings at Montreal

LAUSANNE, Switzerland — (AP) — The strike-threatened 1976 Olympic Games at Montreal have run into another crisis, but the International Olympic Committee (IOC) seems to keep a stiff upper lip despite reactions by the Montreal and athletes' village.

"My main concern is to make sure there will be Olympic competition by athletes next year," said Lord Killanin, the IOC president.

The 53-year-old Irish peer, after two days of worry, was impressed his confidence that Montreal will be ready for the Olympics in July.

For the moment, the IOC does not see any need to take up Mexico City's offer to take over the Games, but in the next few months, three leading members of the IOC will go to Montreal to check on progress.

The watchdogs are Hermann Van Karnebeek of the Netherlands, who has ended a four-year term as vice-president, Dr. Arpad Csanadi of Hungary and Adolf Kindelan of Spain, newly-elected members of the executive board.

Killanin, a swimming and yachting enthusiast and former chairman of the World Swimming Federation (FINA), will be told to assess progress on Montreal's housing problem.

The IOC came to its 79th session in Lausanne with a threat over Montreal. They left with another one, after hearing delegates from Montreal's mayor, Jean Drapeau.

Drapeau told them six months strikes have halted construction work on Montreal's building sites. Each time Drapeau has given in to union demands in the interest of the IOC.

Killanin was asked by a reporter whether the IOC had enough power to be more open in his reports on the troubles at Montreal.

The president replied: "I think it is terribly important that we never hide the truth.

"I am not inferring that we have hidden it, but I think there are times when people do not realize the problems in building and suddenly that then they realize they believe it is not happening."

Killanin said he visited Montreal recently before the latest round of strikes, and that the barring a catastrophe" all would be well.

"I did not expect a cataclysm so soon," he said. "I hope there will not be another one."

On the final day of the session, the IOC shelved an application for the admission of mainland China to compete in the Olympics. Peking's All-China Sports Federation applied for recognition and demanded that Taiwan be excluded.

The committee approved a plan for Killanin to visit both mainland China and Taiwan to see how national sport is run in those two countries. He said he has been assured China will be represented at Montreal next year.

Europe May Go Without TV Coverage of the Games

LAUSANNE, Switzerland — Europe's hopes of watching the 1976 Olympic Games on television will depend on a fresh round of talks with Canadian Games officials in a few weeks.

Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC) today said a new meeting will be held soon because there has been no official word from Canadian organizers that he did not want to see. The last round of talks will begin in two or three weeks.

Earlier talks have left the Canadian Games Organizing Committee (COJO) far apart from the European Broadcasting Union (EBU) and the East European network Intervision and officials have said Europe may have to go without any Olympic radio or television unless the chasm is bridged shortly.

Originally COJO wanted $25 million and the EBU offered $1.5-million—the same fee it paid for the 1972 Munich Games.

The EBU increased its offer to $5 million earlier this year but Sir Charles Curran, director-general of the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC), said they intend to stand firm there to protect the principle of "reasonable" television fees everywhere for future sporting events.

Lord Killanin said the negotiations are important for Montreal and the IOC.

"It may take time to reach an ultimate conclusion but I am sure it can be reached around the table," he said. "It is, however, more important we have a stadium and a Games in Montreal than that we worry about television coverage."

Reporting on preparation to the IOC session, COJO said its television pricing was based on the principle that the Games cause pay for themselves and that the rates were intended to spread the cost of television widely and equitably across the world.

COJO said its main worry was on the wealth of the countries wanting to screen the Games, their degree of interest in amateur sport and the nature of their broadcasting systems.

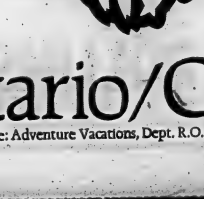
Rites of Summer

The sky darkens above the trees. In a clearing, the firelight glows brighter and the chants echo and the dance begins.



The Six Nations Indian Pageant at Brantford, held in the evenings of August 1 & 2, 8 & 9, 15 & 16, is one of eight scheduled summer celebrations of Ontario's original native heritage.

Repeat visitors usually come early to take in the native beadwork, moccasins, leathercraft and food-stuffs on exhibition and sale.

Then, just past sundown, they take their seats, in a natural forest amphitheatre, to enjoy the spectacle, the music and mythology of times long past.

Other events scheduled for the summer include a major annual powwow on Manitoulin Island, with games, dances, songs and ceremonies.

For a further appreciation of our Indian culture, plan a trip to the Midland Huronia Village, or spend an afternoon among the Indians of North America exhibits in the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto.

For motor-coach packages to Huronia, or to many other interesting historic sites, contact your local travel agent or auto club.

Four acres of freedom, complete renovation and tasteful decor... seldom have there been the most impressive homes between Belleville and Kingston! You would have five bedrooms, an ornamental fireplace, broadloom and care free aluminum siding. Just ten miles east of town on Highway 2.

Let us show this estate.

Relax!

This compact electrically heated home in Wellington has a perfect view of West Lake just across the main street. Real plum panelling in the two main rooms will please the discriminating buyer. This home would suit a young couple or two "seniors" who wish to retire at low cost.

There's more to tell! Phone now.

Why Pay Rent?

When you can have a choice of condominium town houses with low interest, four bedrooms in each, and also a $1,500 Provincial Grant to first time home buyers.

Phone tonight or this weekend for more information.

The Human Cotton Plant

Even with the spectacular growth of medical science there are mysteries about the human body the experts haven't solved.

For example, why do rare people have phenomenally sharp eyesight or hearing? Why do some people have an unusual ability to tolerate pain so that they can bear without flinching an electric shock that would make others scream?

And, possibly strangest of all, why do some people develop peculiar substances in their bodies?

One of the most striking of these cases is that of the woman in Japan who was known as "the human cotton plant."

The case was first reported in an English language newspaper, The Japan Times, in May, 1957. Since then it has been followed up at intervals.

In April, 1957 the woman — whose name was never revealed to protect her from curiosity seekers — came to the Tahiri clinic in Japan's Okayama Prefecture. She complained of lumps on her right arms and legs, five of them in all.

The lumps were cut open by Dr. Tamotsu Tahiri and from each a bit of what looked like cotton popped out. Tests revealed that it was indeed just that — cotton.

The doctor cleaned and bandaged the incisions. For several days the woman kept returning to the clinic with more bits of cotton protruding from the incisions.

The patient's mother of four children, told Dr. Tahiri that her cotton-bearing lumps had formed two years earlier after she developed a high fever and spent several days in bed.

From since, she said, the painful lumps had formed on her body and when she squeezed them what looked like cotton came out.

The woman was studied by doctors at several Japanese hospitals. In 1963, her case was the most one discussed by scientists at an international Symposium on Carbohydrates in Munster, Germany. At that conference it was reported that analysis of the woman's cotton proved it to be identical to the natural variety.

Japanese doctors said that the woman had been carefully observed, even when she wasn't aware of it, to catch her in possible fraud. However, they said, the possibility that she herself was inserting cotton in the lumps or otherwise introducing the substance into her body had definitely been ruled out.

At the peak of the human cotton plant's production in the early 1960s she was said to have turned out three grams a day from each of 20 lumps on her body — a total of 60 grams of cotton daily. Later reports indicated that the phenomenon was defaulting.

Its cause?

That's part of the UNEXPLAINED...

South should have made the contract. He could be certain that East didn't hold the ace of spades. He had only to lead and passed and shown up with a long club suit headed by the ace-king.

There is no point playing a man for a card he can't have as it was up to South to try for an end play. Furthermore, since West almost surely held at least five hearts all that was necessary was to find a 3-2 trump break.

South should win the first heart in dummy and ruff a club. Then a trump to the nine, ruff the last club, and cash ace of trumps.

Both opponents will follow. Now South cashes ace of hearts, throws West in with the third heart and smiles happily.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

"Nice three-diamond bid, partner," said South. "You showed a 15-point pride due to my honors and they would have made three clubs."

"A very nice bid," replied North. "Too bad you didn't take the trouble to make three diamonds."

East had taken one club and shifted to the jack of hearts. South had taken his ace, played six five rounds of trumps, led a heart to dummy's king and a spade to his own king. West had produced the ace and South was held to eight tricks.

Mandatory Leases Proposed

TORONTO (CP) — Mandatory leases of at least three months to give tenants more security will be proposed to the Ontario cabinet, Donald Irving, minister of housing, said Friday.

Mr. Irving said during question period in the legislature that a tenant has a right to some security and the lack of security will be lessened to a certain degree was one of the major concerns of tenants.

Outside the legislature, he said the three months will give tenants time to find new apartments if the rent is being raised. He said he intends to discuss this announcement next week at a private member's bill committee, which is considering legislation giving the City of Toronto authority for rent controls.

Attorney-General John Clement said his ministry is reviewing landlord and tenant legislation and will make a decision on rent review, which gives both landlord and tenant an opportunity to file grievances.

Found Guilty

TORONTO (CP) — Hyrex Reina Wartman, 46, and Joe former lover, Manfred Bauer, 39, were found guilty Friday of conspiring to murder her husband Isaac Wolf, 45, of last year. His body was burned in an oil drum.

An Ontario Supreme Court jury of two women and 10 men returned its verdict after deliberating two hours. The trial, which began Monday, had been scheduled after six hours' deliberation Thursday.

Mr. Justice Robert Haines ordered a pre-sentence report and said he would pass sentence June 20. Maximum sentence is 14 years.

Mr. Justice Haines said he agreed with the verdict and said his sentence would have to "protect society and the needs of the accused."

Assails Probe

MONTREAL (CP) — Roman Gralewicz, president of the Sudbury International Union (SIU), said Friday that Labor Minister John Munro's decision to launch another investigation into the internal affairs of the union is unjustified.

"Members of the SIU deplore the decision. . . no inquiry or investigation is justified," Mr. Gralewicz said in a statement.

Cut Services

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Final region secondary school teachers say they have decided that beginning Monday they will stop supervising extra-curricular activities.

Charlie Nobagusky, communications officer for District 18 of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, said teachers have been directed to leave school by minutes after regular classes stop.

They have also been told not to arrive any earlier than 15 minutes before classes start in the morning.

The council said the price of a basket of items marked for it increased $2.18 to $104.36 from the first week of April to the first week of May.

Criticize Aide

TORONTO (CP) — Jim Foulds (NDP—Port Arthur) criticized in the legislature Friday the attitude of an executive assistant to the premier for award welfare recipients in light of recently-published rebates.

He said comments by Claire Hoy, executive assistant to Premier Davis, in connection with the government's decision to award welfare recipients, amounted to a "slur" on welfare recipients.

Outside the legislature he said the excerpts from letters quoted at a Toronto conference and reported May 9 in a newspaper article "smacks of hypocrisy" and "a rather unhealthy attitude" on the part of the Premier's adviser to people who are disadvantaged.

Grants Awarded

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario education ministry has awarded $761,200 in grants for educational research to 30 independent projects.

Education Minister Tom Wells said in a news release that 13 of the grants were awarded to research staff at Ontario universities, 13 to researchers at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education (OISE) and seven to staff employed by school boards.

Largest of the grants is a $90,000 award to an OISE researcher for an evaluation of bilingual education programs in Ontario.

Study Urged

TORONTO (CP) — NDP Leader Stephen Lewis urged the Ontario government Friday to consider a joint planning study for the Windsor, Ont., waterfront area.

He told the legislature the time for a study was opportune in light of recent developments which have thwarted efforts by commercial interests in the area.

Thorold to Be City

TORONTO (CP) — A bill to give city status to the Ontario town of Thorold was introduced in the legislature Friday.

Oil and Wage Problems Delayed Date of Budget

TORONTO (CP) — The federal budget, originally scheduled for last month, was delayed until June 23 because of problems in reaching agreement with labor on wage restraints and with the provinces on oil and gas prices, Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday.

He identified these as two of the delaying factors and described the government's attempt to reach a consensus with the Canadian Labor Congress on limitation of wage demands up to $5 or 12 per cent as a "setback" in the search for voluntary restraints.

Throughout a two-day meeting with the premiers, which ended Friday, Mr. Trudeau said he was asked about wage and price controls, which he said the government has resisted and isn't considering.

"We're obviously not getting through," he said when the question was raised for the fourth time in the four. He reiterated that government is seeking voluntary restraints mediated by labor but encouraged by businessmen, landlords and investment.

The questions were serious but the audiences were friendly in communities that have traditionally elected Conservatives both to Parliament and to the Ontario legislature.

At each stop Mr. Trudeau also met privately with local Liberals, encouraging, as he put it, "the grassroots building strategy of organizations such as the old Liberals would be forced to do if Liberals were not there."

Asked whether he planned to succeed Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon in a provincial election expected this year, he replied:

"Quite frankly, I don't think Mr. Nixon needs my support. I am not going to involve myself directly in this campaign."

However, Mr. Nixon would have the support of every federal and Ontario Liberal.

Mr. Trudeau told a news conference at Port Hope that both inflation and unemployment remain acute problems.

"We are pulling more feedback from people about the high cost of living than we are from the high rate of unemployment," he added.

"You yourselves as observers cannot be wondering about that but it's true. You know, we have unemployment up somewhere near, what is it, 7.5 per cent?

Meeting Invalid

TORONTO (CP) — John Rhodes, minister of transportation and communications, said Friday he has ruled invalid a meeting Wednesday of the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission (ONTC) chaired by Ed Havrot (PC—Timiskaming), for the purpose of the chairman's post a day earlier.

Mr. Rhodes said he has informed the commission all matters on the agenda Wednesday would have to be dealt with and dealt with again at the next meeting.

Premier William Davis asked for and received Mr. Havrot's resignation Tuesday following published reports Mr. Shaw by Mr. Havrot on Ontario Indians in connection with the government's Moosonee Mountain project in Northern Ontario.

Milkshakes Full of Germs

OTTAWA (CP) — There is a big chance that the chocolate milkshake you buy at your local fast food chain has more bacteria in it to make you sick.

The Consumers' Association of Canada (CAC) said Friday 125 of 227 chocolate milkshakes it tested from outlets across the country had bacteria counts far in excess of federal standards.

Nola Wiles, vice-president of the CAC, said this is a good indication that the outlets in question have poor sanitary standards.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde told reporters outside the House of Commons he is studying the brief. He said because most milkshake outlets are under municipal and provincial jurisdiction, all his department can do is help enforce by-laws.

WARRINGTON (CP) — A plan to export Alcan gas in summer from the United States to Canada for storage, compared by it back during peak winter heating periods, has been rejected by an administrative law judge with the Federal Power Commission (FPC).

Montreal Mail Again Disrupted

MONTREAL (CP) — Postal workers engaged in sorting mail did not show up for work today after hooking off sick a post office spokesman said.

The workers failed to report for the midnight shift and so one was working when the morning shift began.

The spokesman said nothing was moving at the main post office but work was being carried out normally in other Montreal-area postal stations.

Members of the Montreal local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers voted Sunday night to book off sick for one hour to protest the suspensions of fellow workers.

The postal workers' illness was described by some union members as a "strong case of the Mackassy flu" named after Postmaster-General Bryce Mackassy.

Meanwhile, 322 postal workers reported "sick" in Quebec City, a post office department spokesman said, while 28 others were off work in Cap-de-la-Madeleine, Trois-Rivieres, Chicoutimi, Port Alfred, Bagotville, Jonquiere-Kenogami, Alma, Lo-retteville and Baie Comeau.

The Post Office said 73 workers were handed one-day suspensions during the weekend because they "refused to work." The union said 260 suspensions were given out.

"We must show our solidarity with our suspended comrades," Marcel Perreault, president of the 1,200-member union local, said. "We will never accept their suspensions."

Mr. Perreault also said the union will consult its lawyers today on the possibility of launching legal action against supervisory and management personnel "including one supervisor who used a knife to provoke a worker."

Union members also voted to accept the Post Office's proposal for setting a dispute over the hiring of casual labor on condition that suspensions and other disciplinary measures be revoked.

The proposal calls for the hiring of 160 new full-time employees in work each week Wednesday to Sunday.

Earlier Sunday, Mr. Mackassy told a news conference the Post Office is planning security measures to permit hundreds of casual workers to clear a backlog of 25 million pieces of mail at the Montreal post office.

"More than 25 million pieces of mail have accumulated in Montreal, mainly as the result of deliberate work stoppages, slowdowns and interference with those employees who would prefer to work," he said.

But Mr. Perreault said the backlog of mail is caused by all the suspensions that have been given out, not by any strike by mail sorters.

Mr. Mackassy also warned other locals against supporting the Montreal workers in fight against the use of casual workers.

Mr. Mackassy said on the CTV program Question Period that infiltration of "a bonfam fide postal worker" into union ranks has caused, at least in part, the erosion of management rights in the Montreal post office."

Lebanon's Army Premier Ousted

BEIRUT (AP)—Modern opposition forced Lebanon's first military premier in 32 years to resign today after only three days in power.

Brig.-Gen. Noureddin Rifai, 56, announced he was quitting after a storm of protest greeted his appointment.

Gunfire and grenade explosions continued during the night, and police said most of it came from left-wing Moslem Lebanese militiamen trying to drive Rifaien out of offices.

About 180 persons have been killed in the street fighting and about 200 have been wounded, say unofficial police counts.

A joint Lebanese-Palestinian committee called for a cease-fire but gunfire began touring the streets during the night in an attempt to stop the firing and to get the warring factions to dismantle barricades of barbed wire and sandbags.

The militias had orders to open fire on anyone violating the ceasefire. Some gunfights were cruising the streets firing machine-gun burst cars with concealed license plates, the junior ministry said.

Palestine chieftain Yasser Arafat ordered his lieutenant in Lebanon's 14 refugee camps to keep out of the campaign to help Rifai's military government down.

Meanwhile, an Israeli raid across the border into southern Lebanon touched off infantry, artillery and air attacks by Israeli and Lebanese forces that lasted from midnight Saturday until nearly noon Sunday.

An Israeli officer said it was the hardest fighting between Lebanese and Israeli regulars in three years.

The Lebanese defence ministry said seven Lebanese were killed and three were wounded.

Armed Forces Group Meeting in Portugal

LISBON (AP) — The Armed Forces Movement, Portugal's quasi-parliament, is meeting today to discuss whether to abolish political parties because of the bitter crisis between the Communists and the Socialists.

Many of the 207 officers of the left-leaning movement were reported divided over whether or not their limitations on the activities of the parties.

The Socialists, who outscored the Communists 38 to 1 in the constitutional assembly elections a month ago, held a five-hour rally Sunday attended by 10,000 persons in the Tivoli sports palace.

Socialist leader Mario Soares asserted that Portugal is threatened with a Communist dictatorship and declared: "Only a party can the unity of the Armed Forces Movement and the democracy Portugal."

The crisis began when Communist printers seized control of the Socialist party newspaper Republica. It was the only newspaper in Lisbon controlled by the Communists, and the military government closed it, declaring that the dispute was a private problem that would have to be settled by the courts.

VIENTIANE (AP) — Matt Frassjola, a United States correspondent for The Associated Press, and Jean Lartegay, a French journalist and novelist, were expelled from South Vietnam today.

Frassjola and Lartegay arrived in Vientiane on a North Vietnamese plane with about 40 other reporters and about 60 French "refugee" staff evacuated from Saigon.

There were no flights today in the charter airlift that has reduced the U.S. community in Laos to about 250 from close to 4,000. But more evacuees left on commercial and embassy supply flights.

Students continued to occupy the Vietnamese compound of the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID). One student carried a U.S.-made rifle, and others had American military field rations.

A crowd of about 200 students and Laotian AID employees cheered when told the AID workers would be paid by tonight. But informed sources said this increased the potential for violence because the pay records are inside the occupied compound and it might not be possible to get the payroll ready.

Laotians employed by the U.S. government have been demanding immediate payment of their wages as the evacuation of Americans continued.

The embassy was pressured Sunday into giving three months' severance pay, instead of the one month agreed to in a contract, to 937 employees of the security firm that guarded U.S. government property.

Loyalist Convocation Held

Auld Says Students Neglected Because They Are No Problem

By ROBIN CLARK
Staff Reporter

Students in Ontario's 22 community colleges have not received the attention they deserve because of the focus of attention by college officials and the provincial government on the areas in which there have been problems, says James Auld, minister of colleges and universities and MPP for Leeds.

The students have not been a problem, he told a convocation audience at Loyalist College here Saturday, and one reason "is the increasing acceptance which graduates of the colleges are receiving from prospective employers."

Mr. Auld pointed out that statistics figures show 94 per cent of 1974 graduates who were available for work found jobs by last October and "of this number, about 86 per cent are working in fields directly related to their training".

He emphasized that the six per cent unemployed "includes all those students who were travelling who got married and decided to stay home for a while or who, for whatever reason, have decided not to seek a job at this particular time".

Mr. Auld did not elaborate on problems in the college system but said subjects such as lack of money are "what I consider to be the secondary aspects".

He commented, "the primary concern of the colleges is not buildings, maintenance or teachers. It's the students."

a second study on the rest of the property now are being through local government channels.

When the second phase is completed in about a year estimates Mr. McCord said, the studies will provide a basis for deciding the property' uses for the area.

Cabins and Contents Sold

Potter Property's New Era Ushered in by Auctioneer

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

An auctioneer's spiel ended one era of summer vacationing in Belleville - area recreation and tourist industry.

Up for sale were the tourist cabins and contents of the southside Potter property — the big farm once west of the city marked for a prime recreation-conservation belt.

The Potter project is a joint undertaking of the Moira River Valley Trust and the city of Belleville.

Studies have yet to be completed or commissioned to evolve a pattern of usage for the big 340-acre property, reaching from the Bay of Quinte at Jones Creek north along the Wallbridge - Loyalist Road.

Some of the auction action Saturday was for the 13-acre property sector between Highway 2 and the Bay — for years a tourist residences with its waterfront cabins.

The area has been tenting or camping since about 1904, said Ernie Potter, 87, as he watched the crowds throng around the auction wagon. Mr. Potter's father bought the farm at that time. He and his wife Celia have run the tourist operation for many years.

With the sale of the farm, the cottages became the property of the conservation agency, supervising the project for both local governments.

But the building's contents, from household effects to stoves and the rest — were sold for the Potter family.

The auction through most of the warm, humid day — drew large crowds which bought everything from pillows to pots and pans.

The authority had 25 cabins up for sale — along with the tourist site's office building.

The auction sold 24 of the structures — and the office — were auctioned, the only one remaining being an old cabin.

Stipulation of the sale was cash and the buyer to clear the structures from the property.

While no total price was disclosed, Mr. McCord said authority officials were satisfied with the sale.

"We didn't get a lot for them," he said. "But after all, we did get rid of them — removed without it costing us anything."

The southside of the property — the 13-acre sector — has potentialities in a current Bay of Quinte study, commissioned by the authority along the waterfront from Point Anne to the Bayside. Terms of reference for

CUPE Plans One Hospital Contract

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) will bargain for one master agreement for 22,000 Ontario hospital workers, even if it is against the law, says Lynn McBrearty, a CUPE executive member.

Miss Nicholson, a Niagara Falls, Ont., hospital worker, told the union's Ontario division convention Saturday that province-wide bargaining will take place later this year "whether the Ontario Hospital Association (administrators) or Premier (William) Davis likes it or not."

"We will get one contract for all hospitals," said Miss Nicholson. "We will get this even if we have to fight for it. We want the same contract, with 29 hours in or their grasses."

The convention passed a resolution amending the constitution to allow multi-union bargaining, district councils, local bargaining and Ontario-wide group bargaining. Previously, each union local bargained separately.

The Ontario government in 1974 appointed a commission which recommended regional bargaining and refused to allow demands for province-wide negotiations and the end of hospital strike legislation.

Miss Nicholson said there is no reason why CUPE workers in one region should receive more than those in other areas, since both do the same work.

South Vietnam Considering Refugees' Please

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new head of President Ford's interagency refugee task force says the South Vietnamese government is co-operating with the United Nations in negotiating about refugees who wish to return to their home country.

Julia Vadala Taft said in an interview the names of those who wish to return are being submitted to the UN high commissioner on refugees, who submits them to the new governments of Cambodia and South Vietnam.

"The receiving country has to say yes to each one before he is returned," she said.

An estimated 1,800 refugees have indicated a desire to return to their native countries, it estimated 130,000 refugees fled South Vietnam and Cambodia.

Auld Says Diploma Beginning

"A higher education is no longer the pleasure it formerly was," James Auld, "psychical researcher" of "college of knowledge, revelation and myth" for Loyalist College graduates Saturday during the Loyalist College convocation here Saturday. "Education is a life-long process."

He commented, "The days are over when a higher education was universally accepted as a mark of superior ability."

"You may have completed the full course of formal studies required to earn your diploma, but you have demonstrated nothing yet except your ability to attain a certain standard of work in an educational setting."

"You have earned nothing yet except the opportunity to compete in your chosen field," he emphasized.

Homecoming Planned

Loyalist College has problems but it also has people who are willing to help solve them, says Wilf Wilkinson, chairman of the college board of governors.

He told a college convocation audience here Saturday, "it is important our respective problems are recognized" and noted there are well-meaning people in the college who work together to resolve them.

Mr. Wilkinson, presiding chairman for the convocation, announced the college will hold a homecoming weekend this autumn. He hopes a more concrete alumni association will develop," he said.

Names Mixed Up

In a story about the first Canadian play in Belleville in the last night years to be produced by the Belleville Theatre Guild, on page two in Friday's edition of The Intelligencer, it was incorrectly reported that the name of a man hanged for murder in Picton in 1825-26 was Lester.

Lester was actually the name of the man who was convicted, according to Bill Culp, local playwright, who is the author of the play "Round Around and About Us 1825-

The Quinte Mohawks added a touch of reality Sunday at annual celebrations marking the arrival of their ancestors on the Bay of Quinte in 1784. The ceremonies were opened as members of the Tyendinaga reserve paddled canoes ashore near Deseronto.

'Keep in Touch,' Young Tells Loyalist Grads

While putting their students "through the hoops of learning," the teachers of Loyalist College have benefitted also, says Herb Young, college president.

He told graduating students at the college convocation here Saturday, "we try continuously to maintain sensitivity to your needs as individuals and as students".

"To be sure, we have to observe external standards set by the world in which you are going to operate," Mr. Young commented, but meanwhile, you have been teaching our teachers how to teach, teaching them sensitivity, teaching them awareness and influencing the whole system by which we operate."

"I want you to know that you have also conferred recognition on Loyalist College, and this you will continue to do, deliberately or unconsciously, for lots of years to come," he stated.

Mr. Young urged "the graduates to "keep in touch" with the college.

"If there were parts of your education here which were useless, let your teachers or me know," he said. "If there were parts which were particularly useful, let us know that also."

Mr. Young explained, "only we can gauge the value of what happened during these many hours in the classrooms against the professional demands which will be made on you after graduation."

He remarked the certificate or diploma each graduate receives "is also the subject of controversy".

One Dead, 4 Missing In Mishap

NAPANEE — A Napanee woman is dead, another is in serious condition at Kingston General Hospital and four other people are missing following a boating accident early Sunday on a one-mile wide channel between Amherst Island and the mainland several miles east of here.

Ontario Provincial Police at Napanee identified the dead woman today as Patricia Lockhead, 21 of RR 2, Napanee. Her body was found along the mainland shore at Conway, about five miles west of the Lennox Generating Station at Bath. Cause of death is established by drowning.

Police said the injured woman is Deborah Gibson, 23, of 171 East St., Napanee. She was found in the water off the Bayshore Rd. about three miles west of where drowned woman's body was recovered.

Searchers have recovered the seats and paddles of the 15-foot fibreglass boat in which they were riding but no sign of the craft has been found. Divers are searching the northwest tip of the island where the boaters embarked and an area of Conway Rd. 2 where their cars were parked.

The six people left the island at about 1:30 a.m. and police were notified at about 10:30 a.m. Divers from several OPP districts, an OPP helicopter from Trenton, OPP boats from Belleville and Kingston and CFB Trenton search and rescue teams are involved.

High Rider

Dave Carey rides high on the seat of an 1869 Penny-Farthing bicycle as he demonstrates such riding techniques to visitors at the Hastings County Museum in Belleville Sunday. The bicycle is part of a collection owned by Don Fuller of Belleville. The event was a stationary engine display featuring turn-of-the-century engines in operating condition.

Separate Religious Ceremonies Mark Landing of Mohawk Tribe

Traditional anniversary celebrations of the settlement of the Bay of Quinte Mohawks on this reserve was observed in two separate religious ceremonies Sunday.

As in past years, the centenary public observance — which sees a parade and Christian service around the memorial cairn marking the historic event — was as usual the crowd attraction.

But a small band of Mohawks, dedicated to the ancient Iroquois religion — hailed the event with a sunrise ritual that sent drum beats over the Bay of Quinte.

The annual official cairn ceremony — celebrating the arrival of the Mohawks after their territorial expulsion as British allies after the American Revolution — followed long-established custom.

For the event the Mohawks had a distinguished churchman as a participant — Bishop Henry Hill of Kingston.

The Bishop's brief message about brotherhood was delivered against a muffled background of drums and chanting by the Iroquois traditionalists some distance from the cairn.

Sunday's traditional memorial ceremonies went without a hitch, as the Mohawks celebrated the original landing of their ancestors here in 1784. They were the earliest Bay of Quinte settlers and the first group to bring Christianity to the region.

The ceremonies bowed to long-established practice. Chief William Brant led a group of Mohawks in three canoes onto the shoreline near Deseronto in a symbolic re-enactment of the first landing.

At the memorial cairn the Mohawks' most prized possession — a Communion service presented by Queen Anne more than 200 years ago — was placed on a canoe as the centrepiece for the ceremonies. The gesture annually recollects the fact when the first Mohawks landed they had a Thanksgiving service on an upturned canoe.

But the ceremonies, which drew the usual large, annual crowd of spectators, was preceded by a lone daybreak ritual on Forrester's Island in the Bay of Quinte by the group adhering to the old pre-Christian religion.

After it was over the small band of Mohawks moved to a private lawn near the cairn for what was called a "social" event of chanting and drum beating. One member of the group, Tom Maracle — known as Adoryo in Mohawk — said many do not know the true meaning of the landing Mohawks pledged their allegiance as allies of the British Queen Anne. After their conversion to Christianity they were termed "loyal subjects".

"We are a sovereign nation — and allies of the Queen," he said.

"It's a shame they should have given away our nation for a commandment set," said Wes Barclyn, another member of the group.

In his sermon at the cairn, Bishop Hill said it was important that all men "keep track" of their ancestors "no matter who we are".

Behind the Mask of Communism Will the New Vietnam Have Unity and Peace?

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Mme. Duong Thi Thoa is a quiet, convincing and intellectual lady editor of the magazine Philosophy in Hanoi, Democratic Republic of Vietnam, and a teacher there of political science.

During her Toronto visit we spoke in French, in spite of the fact the American press reported the Western influenced "last" Vietnam with the helicopter loads of refugees had April 30.

And we met in a setting rarely selected by one of a doctrinaire creed in the People's Republic of China, in a large-ranging room with "real" representatives of the Marxist regime in Vietnam sipping tea poured from a large pot, waiting patiently for questions from the press.

Mme. Thoa was one of them. The other three were Mme. Phan Thi An, "an official from the Vietnam Women's Union," also in Hanoi, and two male representatives of the new Provisional Revolutionary Government, now in power in Saigon.

They were Messrs. Vo Thuan Nhat and Do Chi Duong, both from the PRG Delegation to the Paris Peace Conference and Consultative Conference in Paris.

The meeting place was the Friends House on Lowther Avenue, a local headquarters of the Quaker movement. It had been deeply involved in bringing medical aid and other assistance to the North Vietnamese, even during the height of the American bombing raids on Hanoi.

I chose Mme. Thoa to talk to, in spite of all the implications of being in the presence of two PRG officials, because in me the North Vietnamese experience with both a national and a social revolution appears strongly to both the Orient and the Chinese revolutionary systems I have seen in the last 12 months.

The North Vietnamese revolution, I have not seen in Mme. Thoa was the first North Vietnamese intellectual I have met and what she had to say could be more important than all-the-stuff political pronouncements from the PRG representatives at the meeting.

Questions were spread out with intended neutrality, relative to national independence within a Marxist system and to find out from her if the North Vietnamese, in spite of much public declaration of friendships for Cuba, China and Russia, were Vietnamese first and foremost.

"We have both tradition and ideology to become the new Vietnamese women," she said part from historic tradition and Marxist experience.

Mme. Thoa and her companions from Hanoi had earlier told us of the number of women in senior ministry posts in Hanoi. The men from the PRG reminded us that Foreign Minister and former head of the PRG delegation to the Paris conferences on a Vietnam truce is a woman.

Mme. Thoa smiled when I put to her my question that women have had powerful political and cultural roles in Asian societies when one remembers the two great Chinese empresses of history, Tse Hsi, who ruled as long as Victoria in the late 19th century, and the Empress Wu of the eighth century, who rose from concubine to ruler of China.

In asking this, one could scarcely imagine Mme. Thoa being in that category. Rather it is the self-effacing nature of Asian Marxism, with personality must be downgraded on behalf of the larger cause which hides their humanity from us.

And yet what a paradox with these effective and gentle women of Vietnam, the sowders, after so much blood, carnage, human suffering and travail why anyone would wish to fight the Vietnamese or why they should be placed by Western, less noble powers they have destroyed each other.

I have commented in earlier columns about the ability of historic Indochinese cultures, the Khmer in Cambodia, the Annamese in the old Annam to absorb the influences of great external cultures, Buddhism, Confucianism and now, I suspect, the Marxist.

Mme. Phat, in answer to my one question to him, said: "Reunification is the dream of South Vietnam is the deep aspiration of the Vietnamese people. Unification depends on the relations between south and north and the domestic situation. We believe the unification of Vietnam will be implemented soon."

A single Vietnamese nation, unattainable in the post-war era through either the Geneva Agreements of 1954 which split Vietnam in two, or through American Vietnamization policies, is attainable now through a Marxist ideological and political victory.

Yet none of the four visitors had it this way. What Mme. Thoa emphasized was the "independence" of the new Vietnam like the Cuban, one, as suggested by her also, not like the Chinese.

One hopes the conquering Vietnamese communists, unlike Castro's revolutionaries who took over Cuba on January 1, 1959, like the PRG and North Vietnamese when we Saigon in April, 1975—will maintain a benign and non-violent new society.

Otherwise a sense of wrongdoing by the West, which these four representatives left with their Canadian friends and the press, will be remembered as a sad propaganda ploy.

Treadmill — Or Escape?

The escape syndrome means many things to many people — and some of them is easily attainable.

So you have been on the treadmill all these years and the thought occurs that things might be more pleasant . . . say in Tahiti.

Tahiti is indeed a romantic spot (Prince Minister Trudeau met his wife there) but like any where else the tourist might hit it on an off day, as it were, when mood and atmosphere and weather and natives and visitors alike are not in complete harmony.

To go to Tahiti or anywhere else though, with any long-term prospects in view, or with the thought in mind that everything happens with be rosy, is erroneous. One man who went there wrote later that an individual must have something to do if only for his own satisfaction, the focus-seeing days of an earlier, romantic, time are over for most of us. Besides, if memory serves, there is a six-month limit on residency for casual visitors. In any event, the treadmill at home is difficult to escape. Those of us who know little else are aware that winding down is both desirable and pleasant, and yet the novelty wears off before long.

Some brave souls do drop everything and take off into the unknown country, such as the wagon train worthies who have been heading for Alberta. The trip has not been without its difficulties, but the new pioneers have been persevering just the same, and attracting a lot of attention along the way.

Wagonmaster Gordon Roberts spoke for all when he told one interviewer that they had "just got tired of the trials and tribulations of urban life." But again, what of the future for these folk? There is talk of homesteading by some and it will be interesting to see how they fare.

Escape for others can range from the comfort of a bottle — a sad outlet indeed — to the lotteries which have been growing in popularity in Canada. Of course they have their detractors, such as the Ottawa psychologist who has been quoted as saying lotteries are a "sleazy way for governments to raise money . . . that they pay too on an individual's economic worries and raise false hopes for quick riches.

What harm though in a little fling now and again? As it is, Canada has come late to the lottery game — it has long been the vogue from Italy to New Zealand — and the proceeds do benefit a lot of good causes. It is noted that a Trenton man won $10,000 in the first Wintario draw, and, human nature being what it is, the prospect of similar success — and escape — springs eternal among the rest of us.

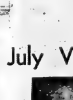
July Vote a Possibility at Least



By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Now that the possibility of a July election is out of the way there has been some talk, as mentioned by the other day, of a possible July vote, on either July 3 or 10.

This would seem to be pinching it, but it is strong enough to warrant looking at some of the considerations.

All there is the question that immediately below in Ontario.

The original reason for this was that farmers were busy on the land during the summer months and weren't available to vote.

Then as we switched to an urban society summer vacations became the big problem; again interfering with party workers.

The consequence has been that there have been only two summer votes in the province's history; the original vote in 1867 and that of 1943, both held in August.

Indicating that the thinking of them being bad is right is the fact that the G election had the lowest voter turn-out in history, only 51 per cent.

Then there are other and factors such as what we probably are going to be in for labor and unemployment trouble this summer.

Against this, however, there are some reasons why Premier Davis might decide to gamble and try a summer vote.

One is that he is at an apparent crest now and a good many issues in Ontario are likely to should go (Though others definitely don't want him to).

Then if an election were called reasonably early in July the major share of the campaign could be fought in June and the return of workers on vacation might not be so significant.

One also can wonder whether the really will be able to improve his standing through the summer months.

It is a time of little political interest, the house won't be in session, and generally the opportunities for the government to make points are plentiful. But against this he could be going into a bad climate in the fall.

There is the prospect of bad teacher problems at time of school opening, a dramatic confrontation with the OPSEU over wages, there will be due and forecasts for the fall months in the economy generally are gloomy.

Looking Backward

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

May 28, 1955

Motorists who had tickets on their cars for overtime parking will no longer have the excuse that they weren't working when they call at the city police station or appear in magistrate's court, in order to remove all doubt as to the operating efficiency of the parking meters, in cases where overtime parking is noted, police have been instructed to drop a penny in the meter before filling out the parking ticket.

30 YEARS AGO

May 28, 1945

Belleville and district motorists greeted with approval the announcement from Ottawa on Saturday, May 26, four instead of three gallons of gasoline would be permitted on each gasoline coupon. Despite the fact that Victoria Day had been celebrated as a public holiday, service stations remained open to take advantage of holiday sales which were expected to provide the heaviest holiday drive this year.

40 YEARS AGO

Whether or not cadet training will be started up in the schools of this city next year is expected to be decided by the local Board of Education at its next regular meeting.

Women in Politics

In this international Women's Year, municipalities will point with pride to the fact they happen to have a female mayor, which Belleville has, and such distaff dignitaries as Ontario's Lieutenant-Governor Pauline McGibbon will be given more than the usual share of attention.

But women in western world politics are still few and far between. How many female members of Parliament can you name besides Kingston's Flora MacDonald?

By contrast, look at West Germany, where Frau Annemarie Renger is Madam Speaker, President of the Bundestag, and Vice-President Lieselotte Funcke, Health Minister Katharina Focke, and parliamentary Secretary of State Marie Schlei are key figures in Bonn.

This is more than tokenism. In fact, Frau Renger is one of the most vocal opponents of a proposed constitutional amendment that would provide that a fixed proportion of West German federal and state parliaments should consist of women members.

Her feelings on women's liberation run along the same lines as those of Ann Scanlan, Belleville's first woman bus driver.

When Ms. Scanlan was approached about being the subject of an Intelligencer feature, she noted: "When men drive buses nobody writes stories. Women are supposed to be equal now so there is no story."

Someday she may be right.

Ministry Bureaucrat Raises Questions Among Members

OTTAWA (CP) — Michael Pitfield, the country's highest-ranking civil servant, has begun placing his executive calls in an attempt to set a more relaxed and informal tone among the people who work for him.

Mr. Pitfield, the 37-year-old clerk of the cabinet, now does his own dialing when he wants to speak to an underling. His secretary used to place the calls.

It is said that Mr. Pitfield, a friend of Prime Minister Trudeau, is anxious to dispel the image of Ebotcish that he her cautious, other civil servants.

But this does not mean he will be any more accessible to opposition MPs who have tried unsuccessfully to have him answer questions on cabinet and party council spending estimates. Mr. Trudeau is deployed to maintain the long-standing practice of shielding the cabinet clerk from direct questioning by MPs.

Mr. Pitfield is the only civil servant to sit in on all secret cabinet meetings.

The celebrations will include a sod-turning for the Diefenbaker Library at the University of Saskatchewan, a mammoth birthday card and an evening of various displays recalling Diefenbaker's life.

Mr. Diefenbaker was born Sept. 18, 1895.

Apparently wives of MPs and senators are not the only ones nowadays allowed into the ladies' lounge near the entrance to the Parliamentary Restaurant.

The sign outside the lounge now reads: Parliamentary Women. It used to read: Parliamentary Wives.

Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday that about one-half his staff of 90 is needed to handle his correspondence.

"I am talking about, in a slow year, 113,000 letters. That is more than 300 letters a day and I believe that, if not all of them, the overwhelming majority are dealt with and dealt with well.

"That is half the reason for the size of the prime minister's office. I believe that in the days of previous prime ministers correspondence was considerably fewer than that and the habit of communication between citizens and their prime ministers had not developed to the same extent."

Angola Factions at Odds

By KEVIN DOYLE

The Canadian Press

An escalating series of street shootouts, murders, riots and bloody ambushes appear to be moving the emerging Portuguese African colony of Angola dangerously close to outright civil war.

A number of knowledgeable observers are predicting the situation could deteriorate fairly quickly into something resembling the near-anarchy that gripped the Congo in the early 1960s.

And, as happened in the Congo—now Zaire—there is continuing speculation as to the possible involvement of outside powers. The United Nations may be asked to intervene in Angola to restore order, perhaps through the use of a peacekeeping force.

The struggle within Angola, which has claimed well over 1,000 lives in the last several months, results from bitter divisions among the three major political groupings there which were previously guerrilla armies fighting against the Portuguese colonial regime.

There is no apparent evidence that extreme leftists in the Portuguese army in Angola are giving covert aid to the MPLA and the Neto and Andrade faction among the various government factions in Portugal.

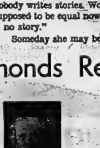
It will be the first college in the Eastern Ontario development designed in time to link Cornwall and district with degree-granting courses, provided this co-operation with the University of Ottawa, so as to ensure a technical and technological training.

Diamonds Remain a Good Buy But Dealing Can Be Tricky

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service



"Diamonds are a girl's best friend," proclaimed the Anita Loos film character, Lorelei Lee, to Gentlemen Prefer Blondes.

Today, a half-century later, diamonds — and other gems — are just as highly regarded by astute investors.

The experts don't suggest that you sell your stock-and-bond portfolio and invest in this precious stones. But an investment of 10 to 20 per cent of one's capital could be a good hedge against inflation.

But be warned: Dealing in diamonds is even trickier than trading other commodities.

For one thing, prices are not determined by the laws of demand in the ordinary sense, since South Africa's DeBeers Consolidated virtually controls the world market.

Second, you'll pay a high mark-up when you buy diamonds, and you might have trouble in obtaining a realistic bid if you should decide to sell.

That tends to rule out an overnight killing in the gem market. Diamonds may not literally be forever, but their attraction is to the long-term investor rather than the short-term trader.

That's a point in their favor, according to people who follow the market in gems. Diamonds are not subject to the sharp ups and downs that characterize the market in gold bullion.

And while the tight grip of DeBeers may be revamped in free-enterprise, it has resulted in remarkably price stability. The cartel has steadily maintained the value of gems against fluctuating currencies.

In other words, a top-quality diamond has approximately the same purchasing power today as it had in 1962, and it purchases roughly the same in 1975—if DeBeers still has anything to say about it.

But there is no return on an investment in precious stones or precious metals. Instead of earning interest or dividends, the holder must pay the continuing costs of safe-keeping and insurance.

The decision whether to invest in precious stones, in the end, comes down to your assessment of where the world's economy is going.

If you expect it to pull out of the current recession and start growing again, you would probably regard diamonds, gold and silver as single investments.

But if you side with those who say the old order is crumbling and that we are headed for greater chaos and run-away inflation, then you might switch into diamonds—or other gems or stones such as emeralds, rubies, sapphires and topaz.

People have traditionally turned to them in times of stress as an easily portable and concealable store of value that can readily be converted into cash.

If that's your choice, gain experience by buying a few small, above half-carat stones. Take the time to study the market first. In the case of colored gems, develop a feeling for price trends by looking at what's underselling, buy at the point.

Kente Principal Resigns In Administration Conflict

AMELIASBURGH — Stephen Bright, principal of Kente Public School, Ameliasburgh, is leaving.

A Prince Edward County Board of Education press release states that, due to the problems created during the recent deliberations concerning the closing of Kente School, Mr. Bright feels that definite action now is imperative and that he is personally withdrawing as principal effective August 31, 1975.

Mr. Bright, says the release "feels that such action is in the best interest of the students and staff of the school system.

The release says that both the board and Mr. Bright regret the unfortunate circumstances created by the recent situation.

Meanwhile, the Concerned Parents Committee, spearheaded by Hadenerville resident David Shoots, has issued its first formal press release rebutting the decision.

"We are soliciting the support of all the citizens of Prince Edward County who are vitally interested in the public education of children," Mr. Shoots told the Intelligencer.

The press release states that it "questions the ability of the board" and that the committee is "firmly resolved" to take all lawful steps necessary to remove those members of the Board of Education, who in their judgement, do not have the best interest of the county's children at heart, and to replace them with persons who do.

The press release stated also that the ad hoc committee was confident that, after given all evidence, the Board of Education would have reversed its decision of March 18.

In that decision the board said it had offered Mr. Bright a transfer to another county school as a teacher. The board cited administrative problems as a main factor in its decision.

Bird Observatory Ready Next Month

PRINCE EDWARD POINT — Reservation to the defunct lighthouse at Prince Edward Point, soon to be the Prince Edward Point Observatory, is expected to be completed by June, says Dr. Rinaldi Weir, of the Kingston Field Naturalists.

The naturalist group acquired a five-year lease on the structure this spring and will use the building as a base for the club's field studies at the point. Dr. Weir said Friday that the club is now in the process of acquiring mist nets for bird banding operations.

The print, situated at the southeastern tip of South Marysburgh Township in Prince Edward Point is a famous migratory point for birds. Dr. Weir said that 120 species were tallied on May 18 during the peak of the migration. Local naturalists say that 160 species in one day is considered outstanding at most migration points.

Also new this year is a model of the warship, Vasa, pride of the Swedish fleet which set sail in 1628, capsizing and sinking in 110 feet of water the same day. Owned by Robert Baker of Mountain View, the replica took three years to construct.

The historic log house now is set up as a weaver's display with wool winders, wool carders and a flat spinning wheel included in its display.

The Ameliasburg Museum, built in 1966 as a Methodist Church, was officially opened to the public in 1968 with one floor of displays. The museum now contains two floors, with a number of additional buildings and outdoor displays and has a staff of five.

Books By And About Women

MRS. G. B. S.
by Janet Dunbar

When Charlotte Frances Payne-Townshend and George Bernard Shaw were married at the Strand Registry Office in June, 1898, everyone — including the bride and groom — was taken by surprise. G. B. S. was forty-two and a philanderer. Charlotte six months younger, seemingly a confirmed spinster.

This is an affectionate biography of a woman who would perhaps rate little attention but for her marriage to a famous playwright. Mrs. Dunbar spent many hours with the letters and papers left by Mrs. Shaw, and from them we get a picture of a master propagandist, her husband.

Was the marriage a success? Their friends in later life thought them an ideal pair, devoted to each other, and a supreme example of married companionship on the highest plane.

This book is available in Canby Library.

Barbara Cass and Betty Price talk to lawyer Joan Heath following the Family Property Law film, sponsored by the Anglican Church Women of the Diocese of Ontario, and endorsed by the city of Belleville, village of Stirling, local boards of education and several clubs and organizations, as well as provincial and federal members of parliament from that area.

Property Reform Affects Women

"Anything can happen if women wait it," said Joan Heath, a lawyer from Guelph, answering questions after the showing of the family property Law film at Centennial Secondary School, Saturday.

She was encouraging individuals and organizations, who have an interest in married property reform legislation, to make their ideas known to the government.

Giving women sufficient information to make up their minds about where they stand in relation to the potential reform bill, the film is being distributed throughout the province by the office of the Attorney General.

A panel, moderated by television commentator Helen Hutchison in the film discusses four case histories from the point of view of current law. Then it looks at what changes would occur once the reform legislation is passed.

Discussing the cases were lawyers Lee Ferrier and Marie Corbett, and Judge George Thompson. They examined the problems that arise when marriages end through divorce or death, when spouses have to will or contract on which to base division of property.

Under existing laws, widows and divorcees can fare very badly unless they can prove that they have helped to pay for the home (or land) they lived in with their husbands. Work (the type of labor a farm wife does, for example) does not "count" in the courts as an equal share in the property unless there is also money involved.

Widows are entitled to their husbands' pensions, but many farmers, who have not had to pay into the Canadian Pension Plan, leave their widows with no income, and often with little else than their dower rights. Ms. Heath suggested that women draw up wills with their husbands, and have these wills revised every five or six years.

Although the reform will not be retroactive, when and if the legislation becomes law, couples may "opt in" by filing their intention. The new law will cover property acquired after marriage as jointly owned, so that the family home and property will belong as much to the wife as to the husband, and she cannot take place without mutual consent.

Ms. Heath recommended that women obtain the currently available literature about the reforms being discussed — papers are available on Family Property by the Law Reform Commission — and then make their opinions known to the government by means of briefs and letters, while there is still time before the laws are finalized.

"You have to remember that the provincial legislature is mainly men, and this is going to keep on moving very slowly unless we push," she said.

Ann Landers

He's Insulted by VD Suggestion

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this in the interest of the health of your millions of readers.

I am not a nurse. I'm a woman in my mid-thirties, married, divorced, I take an occasional lover, but I never sleep with three men in the space of two years. I've never had a friend with whom I slept seven days ago whom I'm not sure he had VD and urged me to get tested immediately. I thanked him, went once to the emergency room of a nearby hospital and was through. I had it.

The point is worrying: I phoned another friend with whom I'd been intimate and told him I'd got tested. He was astounded and shocked that I should even consider the possibility that HE might have a social disease. He said he had an impression of me. He texted not would do inform the four or five girls with whom he was currently sleeping.

I am angered that a person would have so little concern for himself and others. I am angered that my well-paid grance light have given a VD test on a patient requests it. I am angered by parents who teach their children that sometime told me I had been exposed. I was grateful to the people in the emergency room where I was tested and treated. They made me feel responsible but urged me to inform my friend who might also be infected. I was grateful for phone like. Pleased to manhood, when VD mean no more on every woman who comes in for an exam. I am grateful I had someone to help me over the bad mountain of ignorance and I am basically the same person I was before I got VD. Shame so many people talk about, but never think could happen to them.

Thanks for letting me sound off.—Older And Wiser

Dear D. and W.: Thanks for your letter. I hope you promote the trust of some readers who have the same attitude as your friend who was "insulted."

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is very handsome, and could have the pick of the town. Greg informed us last night that he has bought an engagement ring for the girl he plans to marry in August.

We have met her, Ann, and she is very nice.

But the girl is handicapped — has only one leg. She doesn't even wear an artificial limb — says she prefers crutches.

I love tried to make Greg see that this girl will be a burden to him throughout life. If anything happens to her (like she'll be pregnant. If they have a family, he will have double responsibilities.

It makes me sick when I think of all the beautiful, healthy girls my son could have picked. Please, Ann, say something to help him see the light.—Disgusted Mom

Dear Mom: He sees the light. YOURS! the one who is stumbling around in the darkness. You should be pleased and proud of your son's mature judgment. Any man who would not have chosen this girl because of her physical handicap, Greg was able to base his choice on qualities far more important and durable than appearance. Incompetence. Please give him my heartiest congratulations.

Guerrillas Release Girl with Demands

DAR ES SALAAM (AP) — United States and Tanzanian officials are awaiting word on whether Sara Jane Moore, an American kidnaped a week ago, will be freed.

It should arrive from guerrillas in the Tanzanian-Zambian capital if the demands delivered by Carter were delivered by a third kidnaper, Mrs. Barbara Jones, 36, of Ann Arbor, Mich., was freed Sunday and flown to Kigoma, on Lake Tanganyika in western Tanzania.

Contents of the letters were not immediately known, but officials said they presumably would have to be met before the release of the other captives, Carole Jane Hocker, 31, of Alhambra, Calif., Kenneth Stephen Smith, 22, of Santa Cruz, Calif., and Emily Camille van Hemlick Bergman of The Netherlands.

The three Americans, all Stanford University students, and Miss Bergman were seized last Monday by shots as armed, unmasked guerrillas attacked a party of members of the Popular Revolutionary Front for Liberation, a Marxist group opposed to President Makoto Sese Seko.

Mrs. Jones said that I am all right," Miss Jones told friends after being flown from Uvira to Dar es Salaam. "My treatment as well as could be expected. I don't want to say any more because of my family's safety and the lives of the others."

U.S. diplomats said the reported the other three were in good condition. She said several guerrillas brought her back across the lake Saturday night and left her on the shore about a mile from Kigoma about 5 a.m. She walked into Kigoma and notified the Tanzanian police.

The guerrillas crossed the lake in a 24-foot motorboat last Monday night and raided the Combe animal research station 14 miles north of Kigoma where British anthropologist Jane Goodall directs a program of study into the behavior of chimpanzees and baboons.

Mrs. Goodall's children, cabin boys in the Milk and Honey Marxist group opposed to President Makoto Sese Seko, called Mrs. Jones a "capitalist" and escaped.

Man Fired by Davis Named PC Candidate

ENGLEHART, Ont. (CP) — Edward Havrot, fired last week as chairman of the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission, was unopposed Sunday for the Progressive Conservative nomination in Timiskaming riding for the next provincial election.

A motion to postpone the nomination meeting for a month was defeated. Mr. Havrot was fired last week by Premier William Davis following published reports in which Mr. Havrot made derogatory remarks about Indians in connection with a government project in the Maple Mountain area of Northern Ontario.

"I've had literally hundreds of telephone calls and telegrams in the past week from all across the country," he said to a meeting supporters. "I've had phone calls from Bill Davis's riding with people saying we wish we could flee in your riding because we want to vote for you."

In an angry nomination speech, he accused the Toronto Globe and Mail of "yellow journalism" and "tossing the fires of racism."

He said if his remarks regarding Indians had been made down the road that would politicians before they'd criticize them. A politician now has no reason of being a racist, but to use it or be it attacked in the press."

He accused Derek Hodgson, Globe and Mail reporter, of fraudulent "hot mic" making the anti-Indian remarks over a loudspeaker during a warm-up session for the festival. He said they should become part of the Canadian folklore and culture by completing the Canadian language the same as the rest of the people."

Mr. Havrot said he would like to see an ombudsman established that could hold MPPs responsible for their actions and provide those "who destroyed a province for equal justice."

"I think reporters should sit down and think what publication

Havrot Backed

ENGLEHART, Ont. (CP) — An Ontario cabinet minister said Sunday that Edward Havrot, who was unopposed to run for the Progressive Conservative party Timiskaming riding in the next provincial election, has the support of the Conservative party.

Rene Brunelle, minister of consumer and social services, told the nomination meeting that the party wants "to ensure that Timiskaming remains with the government."

It's No Secret, Boris, You're All Invited

Who said the United Soviet Socialist Republic (that's what USSR stands for, I think) hasn't been all there it is to know about hockey?

Like any good students of the game, Boris Kulagin, Anatoli Tarasov and company have not just probably, but definitely, watched the junior varsity there have been watching it since 1936.

And that, I will be fine with me.

SLICES — Auto racing fans attending the Labatt's Blue 200 Molson Grand at Mosport Park June 13, 14, 15, may be seeing the start of one of the most successful auto racing series ever staged in North America.

The Formula 2000 race, the feature event of the weekend, is one of plan to a series to be held in Canada and the United States.

Following years of negotiations, two of the largest governing bodies in North American auto transport, the United States Auto Club and the Sports Car Club of America have joined forces to create the series along with the Canadian Automobile Sports Club. As a result, each race features Formula 2000 cars that are capable most of the world's leading road courts.

Two Bay of Quinte Soccer Association teams, Quinte Hellenic and Belleville Olympics, will be the representatives of the Ontario Provincial Soccer League in competition on the weekend.

Both matches are scheduled for Dick's Island. The Saturday game kicks off at 2 p.m. and Sunday, kickoff is at 6 p.m.

Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund will donate $2,000 to Belleville Minor Baseball Association, with the amount split between the senior and minor sports.

This summer's team coaches will no longer approach BYBF for financial help. Requests should go to JOCA.

Quinte Hellenic Soccer Association has accepted an offer from the Ontario Soccer Association to hold a coaches clinic in the area.

Suggested dates are October 4-5 (Thanksgiving weekend) or 27-28 (second choice).

The 108th running of the Queen's Plate (June 26) could be worth more than the purse of $245,185 if there are 20 starters in the year's prep race, $268,352.

Olympics Produce

A fine defensive stand led by Bob Wanless produced an early Peterborough Vi-Mar victory over the Belleville Olympics Provincial Premier Soccer League exhibition contest on Sunday afternoon at Dick's Island as it take a 3-1 win.

Playing at Dick's Island, it was 2-0 for Belleville at half time, on Mike Bird and Mike Brown and Bruce Mohr. Newcomer Dave Hammond converted a penalty shot.

Bay of Quinte Under 21s Win

The Bay of Quinte Soccer League Under 21 squad upset the Belleville Juniors 2-1 in an All-Star 3-1 Sunday in exhibition action at Dick's Island.

Tom Maxwell and Bruce Mohr were the goal scorers for the locals and Kim Bolton replied for the Belleville team.

Ken-Yen-Geh Rallies For 6-3 Lacrosse Win

Belleville Yardmen Benefit worked out some of the pre-season kinks in its new lacrosse game with Hamilton Ken-Yen-Geh.

Sunday, at Memorial Park.

Scoring three unanswered goals in the third period, Ken-Yen-Geh posted a 6-3 win. The visiting Hamilton's came after Belleville's Steve Riddell had scored to make it a 3-3 game with 10 minutes left in the third.

Yardmen and The Lions Club of Belleville play at 2 p.m. Tuesday, for an exhibition date.

Goodfellow once again was the offensive leader with a single and a triple.

Either took the loss, striking out seven batters. Hal Kang was the winning pitcher allowing four and scattering six hits.

FRANK ROBINSON

Sunday, Ted Walks was the starter. Walks' proved his worth as the game's pitching, giving 10 and one-third innings before being relieved by Jim Chase in the 11th.

It was a tight defensive game, with the pitchers and the infield stealing the show. Three and three, Walks, Hal Kang, Barry Wally, Dick Hamilton pitched themselves out of jams or let their infield help out.

One good break about the Belleville loss was the fact that Sunday's infield took like the team's best. Belleville played first Meagher; second, Goodfellow short and Ryan McTaggart, third.

Two consecutive singles in the 11th brought in Chase who gave up a run scoring single to Jim Thompson, and two more runs on a single by Jim Reed. He got out of the inning by striking out the last two batters.

The Macs threatened in the 11th. Robinson popped and after two mis-cue put runners on first and second. Goodfellow ended the rally, hoving to winning pitcher Wally Dick.

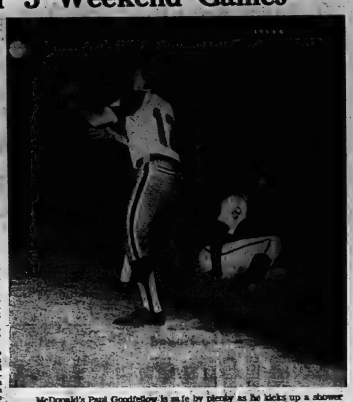
Final may have seen Bob Slater's last game as manager of McDonald's. "Slats" pitched on Saturday in the doubleheader, but didn't draw on Sunday. It looks as though Bob Wanless will take over the helm.



McDonald's Paul Goodfellow is safe by plenty as he kicks up a shower of earth while sliding into third base after poking solid sixth-inning triple, in second game of Saturday's Ontario Football League doubleheader at Alemite Park. Burlington third baseman assisting ball is Keith Daw.

Petes Draft Thompson

By DOUG JEFFERIES

Now that the Ontario Midic Junior "A" hockey league has finished its overage midget drafting, hundreds of boys will be working hard this summer to be drafted by leagues in shape for training camp next year.

Belleville Petes will be in that group when training camp opens late by overage juniors.

On May 15, the Petes were held in Toronto and the two picked out of the many hopefuls were Belleville's Bob Thompson, and Trenton's Tom Manley.

Thompson was chosen by Roger Nielson's Peterborough Petes and Manley was drafted in the seventh round by the Cornwall Royals who play out of the Quebec loop.

Bob is a Grade 11 student at Bayside Secondary School. He's 5-foot-6 and weighs 150 lbs.

Bob is a quick skater but his special ability lies in his puck handling. In practice, I hadn't that too many player back.

The Petes have sent him a physical fitness schedule which Bob plans to follow throughout the summer.

The Petes under Nielson have always been a competitive team. "It will be tough making the club, but I'm going to give it a good solid effort," says Thompson.

Trenton's Tom Manley was a surprise pick. He broke his leg in the early part of the season and didn't see action until December.

Tom, who is 17, played out the Belleville Flyers' system with the Panthers of the Metro League, along with his brother Tim, who is 19.

A seventh round choice, Tom is 5-foot-5 and weighs 150 lbs. He relies on his quickness, and the natural ability to put the puck in the net.

Although he played only the half of the schedule, Tom managed to score 26 goals.

OSHAWA (Special) — Oshawa beat both clubs of an exhibition Ontario Amateur Softball Association Bantam A series from Belleville Lads Saturday, edging the visitors 6-5 in the first game and posting a 7-1 victory in the second.

Randy Chapik got the nod over Belleville's Rick Tripp in a best pitching duel in the game. Chapik finished it up with a neat four-hitter while Tripp was solid in defeat, yielding nine and walking two, allowing only five hits, but struck out four.

Sarlo Provenzano homered a home run for the winners. Chapik supplied a double.

Andy Rozall drove in two runs with a single and a timely single. Sharing the other Belleville singles were Ward Morrison, Rod Hedge and Ron Bagley.

In the 7-1 win, Oshawa's pitching was shared by Harold Sarlo and Provenzano in relief, giving up three hits, limiting Belleville to walking two, and Grove Sutton who worked three innings, allowing no hits, striking out three and walking four.

Wanted: All-star Material

All-star soccer will attempt to fly a little higher tonight when it holds another general workout at Twick's Island at 6:30. Last week the whole idea got off the ground when coaches for the teams were established in mosquito and atom age groups.

However, more bodies are needed to form a team in the older age group. Tryouts will be open to any Bay of Quinte residents.

Flyers 'Hound' and 'Hammer' Dull Sabres Into Submission

Bob Kelly – The Hound

Dave Schultz – The Hammer

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Dave Schultz and Bob Kelly overlooked targets Sunday afternoon and their latest victim regretted the move.

Schultz scored two goals and Kelly one as Philadelphia Flyers whipped Buffalo Sabres 5-1 to take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final.

The first goal was a lucky one, said Sabres coach Floyd Smith. "On the second one, I think he (Derlago) thought it was going to miss the net."

When asked why the Sabres performed so poorly in Philadelphia, Smith said: "How come the Flyers didn't play well in Buffalo? We can't win here if we don't score goals. Parent plays well against us in this building."

"When the score was 4-0 and 4-1, the goalie came to save for them. I didn't think we played that badly. I hope we play (so) well against Philadelphia Tuesday night and we could do today. We should do better."

Smith said that Schonfeld had recovered after stopping a shot in the groin area in the second period but the coach wouldn't say whether his team captain was c. definite starter for Tuesday's sixth game.

"Maybe Bernie's turn might be next Thursday," he said in reference to Flyers' defenceman Bernie Parent and the possibility of a seventh game back here on Thursday.

"Their first goal was a lucky one," said Sabres coach Floyd Smith. "On the second one, I think he (Derlago) thought it was going to miss the net."

When asked why the Sabres performed so poorly in Philadelphia, Smith said: "How come the Flyers didn't play well in Buffalo? We can't win here if we don't score goals. Parent plays well against us in this building."

Two Big Goals? He'll Take Win

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — There was a heap sigh heaved at one end of the Philadelphia Spectrum Sunday afternoon which read: "He who plays for the Sabres dies by The Hammer."

Dave (The Hammer) Schultz of Philadelphia Flyers didn't kill Buffalo Sabres' chances of winning the Stanley Cup but stuffed them a bit as he scored two goals in the Flyers' 5-1 victory.

The win gave the Flyers a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven National Hockey League championship series going into the sixth game Tuesday at Buffalo.

"I am not a goal scorer," Schultz said. "I played just as well in other games and I've not scored. I don't care if I score as long as we win.

"What's the use of scoring the 18th goal if you're up 18-17 I had a lot of pride like that during the season.

"The only good thing about the two goals is that it was a big game and we needed it. What did I do? I got a couple of lucky goals," he went on and down but there were a lot of guys who worked a lot harder.

"If we'd lost, they wouldn't be anything."

Schultz, noted more for setting penalty records than for scoring, has been playing well against the Sabres, with only 11 penalty minutes and five games. He received "a five-minute major for a wrestling match with Buffalo's Jim Schoenfeld in Thursday's game.

"I'm not going to go out there and pick a fight for no reason," he said. "If they were playing dirty and some guy was trying to give it to us, then I'd go out there and go after him. I'm not going to go after a guy if he wants to play hockey."

Schultz has also served a goal since March 29. His first goal of the playoffs at 16:21 of the first period appeared to go all goalie Gerry Desjardins' way said into the net.

"He thought I was going to pass it across," Schultz said. "He started swerving. He was off balance and it hit his stick or something and it went up in him. I don't know how it went in."

Desjardins looked weak on that goal as well as on the second scored by Rick Dudley.

"Desjardins just had a bad night," said Sabres general manager Punch Imlach. "Everybody has a bad night.

"Schultz and Kelly are backchecking forwards, perfect to defend and goaltender Gerry Desjardins of the Sabres was caught in the middle.

The Flyers were also backed by Bernie Parent's solid goaltending and outstanding play from defencemen Jim Watson, Rookie Larry Goodenough, Andre Dupont, Joe Watson and Ted Harris.

It was the reverse for the Sabres who received shaky goaltending early in the game and miserable checking performances from their forwards and defence.

A win in the sixth game of the National Hockey League series, scheduled for Tuesday night in Buffalo, will give the Flyers their second Stanley Cup in a row. If the Sabres win, the teams will return here for the seventh game Thursday night.

Schultz scored his first goal of the playoffs at 2:32 of the first period. The shot caught Desjardins off guard and he admitted to be going the wrong way. Martin Had got his second goal on a breakaway midway through the second period.

"Desjardins thought I was going to pass it across to Don Saleski, so it was kind of lazy and he was off-balance, I guess," Schultz, who had nine regular-season goals while setting a record for goal penalty minutes, 472.

Gary Dornhoefer and Reg Leach, who got his eighth goal of the playoffs on a power play in the third period, completed Philadelphia's scoring. Rick Martin scored for the Sabres at 14:32 of the third period.

Coach Fred Shero of the Flyers used five players in his third line—Terry Crisp, Orest Kindrachuk, Saleski, Leach and Schultz—and they all turned in strong performances.

Parent didn't have many tough saves but made a goal on a shot while stopping 27 shots. Desjardins was shaky in the first period but rebounded well in the third.

The Sabres played most of the second and third periods without defenceman Jim Schoenfeld who was hit in the groin by a puck fired by Goodenough during a Philadelphia power play at 1:14 of second. Coach Punch Imlach said Schoenfeld, the team captain, will return for the fifth game.

The last time the Sabres were in the Spectrum was when they joined the league five years ago. They are 9-13-2 in Philadelphia, counting league and playoff games.

"We've got no complaints," said Buffalo coach Floyd Smith. "We just didn't play that well. We played really well at times, play was concerned in the first period and then they got a couple goals.

"The first one was lucky, it hit him (Desjardins) and bounced in. The second: I don't think he saw it or he must have thought it was going to miss the net. And that's the ball game."

Dionne Flirting With WHA Offer

MARCEL DIONNE

TORONTO (CP) — The Sporting Post says Marcel Dionne of Detroit Red Wings will meet with Edmonton Oilers officials today and is ready to sign a contract with the World Hockey Association team.

The paper said Dionne, one of the top centres in the National Hockey League, was accompanied by his legal adviser, Jules Eagleson. The sun said Eagleson reiterated his earlier stand that the NHL all-star expulsion will have to use the NHL because of its "compensation rule."

"It is obvious the actions by Detroit Red Wings will result in a lawsuit and the history of the Dionne case will be in the lawsuit," the paper quoted Eagleson as saying.

"I negotiated with three NHL clubs who were interested in Dionne now that he becomes a free agent June 1. Naturally, they said it was subject to a deal they can make with Detroit because of the existing compensation rule."

When asked if the trip to Edmonton was just a tease, Eagleson replied: "Not at all."

"It's true Marcel wanted to remain in the NHL but I also quoted Eagleson as saying: "But now that he's being pressured from the Detroit combination dressing, he's ready to play in the WHA. We'll talk to Edmonton, but that doesn't mean he'll wind up in Edmonton.

"He could wind up with another WHA team, which also showed interest in his services. Or he may sign with Edmonton, if the price is right."

In Edmonton, Bill Hunter, Oilers' general manager, declined to confirm or deny Dionne was en route to talk with club officials.

"We would be delighted to have the opportunity to sign Dionne," Hunter said. "But, he's Houston's property."

Gene Littler

To Do This Well A Bonus — Littler

Casper's victory in New Orleans clinched a spot on the Ryder Cup team which will pit Britain's best in Ligonier, Pa., this fall. He made it ev..; time since 1961.

Littler's victory in Memphis clinched a spot on the Ryder Cup team. He's made it every time since 1961—except for the time he was sidelined by cancer surgery.

"I'm just happy to be playing on the tour at all," Littler said Sunday after his closing six-under-par 66 had provided a five-stroke triumph.

"To play this well is just a bonus."

His six-under-par closing round, including birdies on his first four holes, was the best of the warm, windy day. His total, ... over the 7,092-yard Colonial Country Club course.

His second victory of the year, and the 27th in a 29-year career, came over the best field this tournament has ever had.

"If I couldn't win this golf tournament, I think it's the greatest thing in the world for Gene Littler to do it," said Dave Marr, who started the final round tied for the top spot and eventually finished second. "To me, he is the epitome of golf."

Mahaffey, who had a roll up a point lead, take all a shot and ... ge volley after bogeys with ... tery shot, finished off with a ... scramble 73 and a 275 total. It was the second time this year and the fifth in 17 months, that he's finished second.

Jack Nicklaus and Tom Weiskopf tied for third at 277. Each had a 70. Nicklaus included a birdie on the final hole while Weiskopf put off a birdie-eagle-birdie start, went six-under-par through six holes and then finished poorly.

Gary Player, the 1974 Memphis champion, and Lee Trevino didn't get in it. Trevino had an 80 Saturday and Player

Nicklaus won $30,235 and Weiskopf took home $18,000 each and Jabbar Miller in the race for the one spaceman's money-winning title. Nicklaus now has $365,990, Miller $125,235. Littler's share of the $175,000 total purse was $23,000 and pushed his winnings for the year to $139,235.

It Rains on Unser's Parade and He Loves It

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — It rained on Bobby Unser — parade, but he didn't mind it a bit. He was leading it.

"What a day, what a beautiful day," Unser exulted after he climbed from his Eagle-Offenhauser to Victory Lane, his beautiful face turned upward into the waning rain of a thunderstorm that had just given him his second triumph in the Indianapolis 500.

It was supposed to go the standard 500 miles, but Unser just like the race he'd won here in 1968 when he beat Dan Gurney.

But on the 172nd lap Sunday the storm Goddess which had been mistaking the Indianapolis Motor Speedway for more than an hour finally unleashed their fury.

First it was with a brief sprinkle, then with a torrential downpour that had Pat Vidan waving the red and yellow checkered-and-white flags which signaled the race was over and Unser had been at it after Pancho Carter — 500 miles.

When he crossed the finish line, he was cruising along at 39 miles an hour, nowhere near his winning speed of 148.213 m.p.h., and accumulated in two hours, 30 minutes, 29 seconds.

Carter, who came here from Indy victors in 13 tries as a driver and builder at Indy, was in a race alongside Bobby in the winner's circle. "I've never forgiven Bobby for beating me in '68," he joked.

It was a clear case of "If You Can't Beat 'em, Join 'em."

That's what Gurney had done five years ago when he teamed up with Unser to build the American Eagle cars that Bobby drove. It nearly paid off last year when Unser came in second behind Johnny Rutherford.

This time it was Rutherford's turn to be second-best, all because of an untimely pit stop.

Actually nearly fog figured on either of them being the victor. That mystery was supplied, was reserved for Wally Dallenbach, who had never finished better than 12th in eight previous Indy races.

Dallenbach started from his 21st starting position into the fog by the 6th lap, then had it virtually all the way until the 161st, opening a commanding 22-second edge, about half a lap.

Then, engine troubles, caused by debris from the day's only major wreck, and Dallenbach limped into the pits for good and Rutherford into the lead for just about of Unser.

On the 165th, though, Rutherford decided to make a pit stop of his own, 19 seconds after Unser is front.

Five laps later, Rutherford faced out lost how costly his pit stop was. In the 170th lap, the drivers were frozen in their respective positions under a yellow caution flag—the fifth and final one—when Gary Bettenhausen blew a tire and plunged headlong with his car into the main straightaway's outside wall.

"We had no assurance the track would dry, no assurance we wouldn't rain again," said chief steward Tom Binford, explaining his quick end to the race. "In my mind, to stop and then have a 45-mile sprint race didn't meet the requirements."

Bobby, told Rutherford, "How would you feel if you were almost ready to get into the million purse) and the guy behind you said, 'Hey, that's not it, it's $75,000.' If you can put that feeling into writing, then you've got it . . ."

Had it gone all day, we would have been in position to win it. But you never know. Bobby drove a hell of a race. There's no doubt about that."

The way Bobby was talking, though, his driving didn't have all that much to do with it.

"Luck is everything," he said. "If you don't have luck and the race track, you don't win it.

Luck controls everything we do in our lives. I've always tried to have it on my side."

Luck was certainly on Unser's side on the 127th lap, when Tom Sneva and rookie Bill Rasmussen got together a little scrambling for the second turn. Sneva's car hurtled along the outside wall, flipped over several times and burst into flames. Debris was flying everywhere.

And along came Unser, who managed to weave his way through the shrapnel without incident.

Luck wasn't on A. J. Foyt's side, though. The veteran from Houston, trying to become Indy's first four-time winner, led for 51 of the first 80 laps and was right in there with the rest of the leaders when he, too, came upon the metallic litter in the second turn.

It ruined all four of his tires, necessitating a 45-second pit stop that put him just about a lap off the pace—and out of where he finished.

Sneva suffered severe burns on his hands and milder burns over 15 per cent of his body, his only serious injury of the race. Rasmussen wasn't even shaken up. He continued on for a lap, then stopped at the accident scene and helped extricate Sneva from the burning wreckage.

Warriors Complete the Sweep

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — There may still be a few hardcore disbelievers holding out, but coach Al Attles of the National Basketball Association champion Golden State Warriors no longer cares.

"Probably some people will still say that it wasn't how well we played, but how poorly the other teams played," Attles said after the Warriors beat Washington Bullets 96-83 Sunday to complete a stunning four-game sweep in the title round.

"But we're not concerned about what people say. We won championships, and we did it the way we had to do it."

The winning formula on Sunday, as it had been in two of the Warriors previous victories over heavily-favored Washington, was in the Western Conference title game against Chicago, was to overcome a sizable deficit.

Golden State won the series opener 96-95 at the Capital Centre—where the Bullets had lost only six of 46 previous games—after falling behind by 12 points.

With their regular home court in Oakland to begin tomorrow at an ice show, the Warriors posted victories in the next two games played in San Francisco's Cow Palace, 93-91 and 108-101. In the second game, they once trailed by 13 points.

Many observers figured Golden State would be the toughest opponent the Celtics or the Bullets, who had not lost a home game to the Warriors since 1970. Even with three homes, Washington was favored by six points on Sunday.

But a field goal by Butch Beard put the Warriors ahead for only the second time in the game at 94-93 with 1:10 to play, and he added two of five free throw attempts in the closing 60 seconds to clinch the victory.

With high-scorer Elvin Hayes limited to just 15 points before fouling out, Washington leaned heavily on guards Phil Chenier and Kevin Porter. They combined for 45 points—26 by Chenier—and 12 assists and steals.

Top winning the series, the Warriors earned another $110,000, raising their playoff booty to $230,000.

Figueroa Brings Red Sox Back to Earth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sunday wasn't a banner day for Boston Red Sox.

The Red Sox lost one American League baseball game, tied another and two sluggers. They made four errors, allowed four home runs and managed only three hits off unheralded Figueroa of California Angels.

"We played a long stretch without a bad game and maybe we were just due for one," said Boston manager Darrell Johnson after California's Angels, Texas Rangers 4-3, Cleveland split a pair with Oakland, the Indians winning 6-5 and the A's taking the nightcap 3-2, and Detroit's Mickey Lolich whipped Chicago White Sox 4-1 in a rain-shortened game.

In Saturday's games, Chicago outlasted Detroit 9-8, New York topped Texas 7-5, Minnesota clipped Milwaukee 4-3, Kansas City shaded Baltimore 5-4, Oakland whipped Cleveland 10-5 and Boston blasted California 6-0.

Figueroa kept the Red Sox bats quiet but not the batters who were, the afternoon erupted with plate antics. Leo Di Marzo, Baraka Cubbs were called out on strikes in the second inning, completed hilarity was kicked out of the game and had to be restrained by team-mates from attacking the umpire.

In the sixth, Johnson was tossed out for arguing a strike call in Yastrzemski's favor. When Yaz was called out moments later by Di Muro, the Boston first baseman knocked down, cleared off the plate, then carefully piled dirt all over it and dropped his batting helmet on top of the pile.

He was promptly thumbed out of the game.

Cubs and Phillies Travel to Skids

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's a good thing the old saying said travel is a broadening experience didn't mean the completed road trips by Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Phillies.

The Cubs, who last Wednesday night in Montreal had the baseball's National League East rounded a 346 journey through three California cities Sunday by losing to San Francisco Giants 6-2, their fifth consecutive setback.

Meanwhile, the Phillies, fresh from a 10-game homestand, ended a winless six-game trip to Houston and Cincinnati by bowing to the Reds 4-3, giving them nine successive defeats away from home.

Elsewhere Sunday, Los Angeles Dodgers trounced St. Louis Cardinals 7-3, Atlanta Braves stopped New York Mets 5-4, Pittsburgh Pirates edged San Diego Padres 8-6 in 11 innings and Houston Astros slipped Montreal Expos 8-7 in 10.

In Saturday's games, the Mets shaded the Braves 9-8, the Reds trounced the Phillies 9-3, the Expos shaded Houston 4-3, the Pirates blasted the Pirates 8-0, the Giants thumped the Cubs 10-3, and the Cardinals whipped the Dodgers 6-2.

The Cubs really had to make an effort to lose Sunday's game. They opened a 7-1 lead in the fourth inning but Chris Speier and Ed Goodson each collected two singles in San Francisco's seven-run fifth and Bobby Murcer provided an insurance run with a seventh-inning homer. The victory was the Giants' seventh in a row.

Three Drown in Pond

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Three members of a family drowned Saturday after the youngest victim was pulled into a farm pond while exercising a trotting horse.

Police said Mark, a non-swimmer, was pulled into the horse which was swimming in the pond.

The boy's mother, Rosalie, his brother and sister entered the water to try to save him while his father tried to reach him with ropes.

Mrs. Graham, 28, a horse trainer, saved his wife but he could not find the children in the murky, 15 foot deep pond.

Doctors Stage Protest

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. Henry Morgentaler's crime was a demographic one which stood in the way of the Quebec government's plan for a higher birth rate, Dr. Morgentaler told demonstrators against Canada's abortion laws Saturday.

Dr. Wendall Watters of the Doctors for Repeal of the Abortion Law committee said it was no coincidence that Dr. Morgentaler was arrested just before the 1973 election in Quebec.

"If you remember one of the main issues in that election was the low Quebec birth rate. As you know it's one of the lowest in Canada. In most parts of the civilized world that is considered an achievement, but not in the eyes of the Quebec establishment."

University Honors Trudeau

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau (Law 1943) received the eighth annual recipient award from the 4,000-member alumni association of the University of Montreal on Saturday. The award was presented at a reception at the elegant city-owned Maison du Citoyen after an honorary convocation for alumni and their wives.

IN MEMORIAM

CONLEY — In loving memory of a dear husband and father who left us one year ago, May 26th, 1974.
Dear husband I give to close his hand
To take his last farewell
To watch his life fade slowly away
That meant so much to me.
No hands on a bed to smooth,
No sad goodbye to receive,
You passed away alone,
And it's not right you have,
So you who have a husband and father,
Treat him with care,
For you'll never know how heartache,
Till you lose one to compare.
—Lovingly remembered by wife Rose and son Robert and family.

Rising Price of Gold Saves Mines in Yellowknife

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The rising price of gold may have saved many mines from closing, but the high prices have also driven prospectors and miners to other areas in search of fortunes for themselves and for Yellowknife, it has been declared the centennial of the city.

"If the price of gold hadn't gone up the chances are some, ordinarily good that both gold mines would be shut down at the moment," said David MacPhail, superintendent of Consolidated Discovery Yellowknife Ltd.'s Con Mine, the older and smaller of the two gold mines in the area.

"This would be a mind-of-Nesbitt, Nothing but the government to keep it going, and all the service industries, which have been affected by the mines in this part of the world, would presumably be in pretty rough shape.

Higher prices have attracted more exploration, to the point where the million was spent on mining exploration in 1974.

"It's just a time as three or four years ago people weren't interested in looking for gold and there is quite a lot of gold in the Northwest Territories," Mr. MacPhail said in an interview.

"It is also the one material which you can mine and remove without having your transportation problems. You can put a couple of gold bricks in an airplane and fly them away pretty quickly, whereas if you wanted to produce a few thousand tons of lead or zinc or something, it's a different story.

"We also have benefited, both the Yukon and the Northwest Territories, from the diminishing exploration in B.C., he said, attributing the reduction to what he called the attitude of British Columbia's NDP government to the mining industry.

On Mine, said the South African-born mining engineer, is encouraged by higher prices it is spending more than $17 million on an expansion program, including the sinking of a new shaft to the 1,800-foot level, 200 feet deeper than the mine now goes.

Con Mine, opened in 1938, had "just about come to the end of its tether" when a new shear was discovered and, coupled with the higher prices, saved the jobs of 220 miners, most of whom live in Yellowknife, stated by their employer.

The mine produces about 450 tons of ore a day. It takes about one ton of ore to yield ¼ ounce of gold and "as far as gold mines go that's not too bad."

Con is about 1.5 miles from the territorial capital and along with its larger counterpart, Giant Mines, provides an annual payroll in excess of $6 million, virtually all of which is spent in Yellowknife.

NEW YORK (AP) — The singing Jefferson Starship rocked down in Central Park for nearly two hours on Monday afternoon, and more than 30,000 persons turned out to enjoy the musical event.

The free concert was given because the Starship members said they like the atmosphere of an oldies, no sellers, no hassles and no "no smoking" signs.

This was also the 10th anniversary of formation of the group, originally known as Jefferson Airplane, before four concerts are planned in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Marty Balin, who has rejoined the group, and Paul Kantner and Grace Slick.

The Starship started playing at 1:06 p.m., with Hide the Tiger, and didn't halt the free concert until 3:30 p.m. when they wound up with Volunteers.

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Bandleader - composer Bob Wills, whose San Antonio Rose became a western classic and his "Faded Love" a popular trademark, is dead at 66.

The colorful Texan died in a nursing home here Tuesday. A stroke six years ago slowed his fiddle and ended his songwriting career. He suffered a second stroke last year.

He was elected to the Country Music Association Hall of Fame in 1968.

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Comedian Steve Allen says it is fine by him that his son and grandchildren are living on a religious commune here.

Allen's son, who took the name Logke Israel when he joined the commune, is one of the long-time members of the Love Family commune, which has several houses in Seattle. But his identity as one of the famous comedian was generally unknown here until this week.

Canada's War Measures Act was warmly received by both the audience and critics at this year's Cannes Film Festival premiere Tuesday.

The film, the only entry from Canada, appeared to veteran festival-goers to give Canada a slim chance of winning its first Cannes festival prize since Claude Jutra's newsy begin competing here in 1946.

The main obstacle may be the fact that the film deals with a politically controversial issue, and might be passed over by the festival jury for fear of offending the Canadian government.

The paradox of the Canadian government financing a film that attacks its own policies was explained by Brault, considered a Quebec nationalist, in an interview that appeared Tuesday in the daily festival bulletin published by the French film industry's trade paper, Le Film Francais.

"Canadian politicians haven't had much political experience," Brault said, adding that the politicians do not know how to go about blocking a film like Les Ordres.

He said his film had been turned down by Canada's National Film Board and that he had to spend two years to raise the necessary production money.

At a news conference after the film's first Cannes screening, Brault said that in preparing Les Ordres, he had talked to 28 out of 29 persons arrested in the October, 1970, roundup, and that the effect of their arbitrary jailing had been to radicalize them politically.

Oswald: "South started by keeping quiet about North's juicy ruble opening bid. After all, the slam might make, with legitimate spade or North's lack of real values. But East did the bidding and played his ace of trumps. When the king failed to drop he led the jack of diamonds and continued with the deuce to dummy's ace and then played dummy's jack. East thought and thought and finally discarded a heart. South took his queen, entered dummy with the ace of clubs and cashed his long heart on the 10 of diamonds."

Jim: "East looked right foolish, didn't he? He had a fine chance to go wrong and he had fallen for the deception. Furthermore, West had helped fool East. West could have schemed in diamonds by playing the ace and then the five. This would have shown an even number of cards in the suit. East would have known that South held all other diamond and the Hamilton would not have worked."

Inner Ear Woes Hard to Diagnose

By G. C. THORTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been having a number of attacks of severe dizzy spells with considerable vomiting each time. I also notice a peculiar deafness in my left ear.

It has been diagnosed as an inner ear problem. I have been given medication, but have heard that a salt-restricted diet would help me. Will I be troubled with this all of my life?—Mr. B.C.

It is often difficult to be specific about problems involving the inner ear. Finding the exact causes can be a long, painstaking procedure. I can only suggest a few possibilities.

The human body contains a very sensitive set of nerves and canals. These canals are normally involved in the sense of balance.

From the symptoms you list, Meniere's disease seems to be listed as one possibility. An inflammatory condition called labyrinthitis is another. A hemorrhaging into the balance system following a head injury, or even during a violent sneezing spell, can produce similar symptoms. This would subside in time.

The canals I mentioned contain a fluid called endolymph. This liquid shifts back and forth, much like tea in a tilting teacup. The t, shifting corresponds to the particular attitude of the body at any given moment, thus maintaining balance. It is a remarkably efficient system. Anything that upsets the delicate structure the slightest disturbance can throw it out of whack.

In Meniere's disease, there is a buildup of this fluid which causes pressure on the nerves. Attacks of dizziness, with vomiting, are followed by a period of complete fatigue. Gradual retention in the body. The suggestion of a salt-restricted diet is very good. Be sure to do that is your problem. Salt, as you may know, does promote fluid retention generally.

In about 50 per cent of the cases, Meniere's disease affects one ear only. It is most common in males between the ages of 45 and 65.

Often, hearing in the affected ear is diminished or lost, and the symptoms can last as long as two or three years. Special care must be taken to avoid falls. The victim will tend to fall in the direction of the affected ear.

The treatment, meanwhile, should be to eliminate the precipitating antibiotics to control an infection, diuretics to remove excess fluid, and medication to promote blood circulation, if that is a factor.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have high blood pressure, and am on medication for it. My blood reading was 170-80. I have been told I shouldn't eat pork, which I like very much. I would like your opinion also on liver. Would liver be a good substitute and cause your blood pressure to rise?—M.T.

Your blood pressure figures you mention seem within safe limits for a middle-aged man such as you. This is probably due to the medication you are receiving.

I believe the pork is being maligned. It may contain bacteria in the raw state, but when well cooked it is very rich in vitamins and high in vitamin B. I see no relationship between pork and your blood pressure.

Perhaps you were slightly anemic and, being a pork-lover, were neglecting other red meats. You were advised to eat liver because this does aid in blood formation. However, liver is high in cholesterol, so if your blood pressure gets elevated, you might want to avoid it.

But as far as liver increasing your blood pressure and that your blood pressure, the answer is no. The quality of the blood might be improved but not its volume.

Canadians Obtain Good Eclipse View

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Only Canadians in Newfoundland and Alberta were thwarted in their attempts to get a good view of the lunar eclipse Monday night, but other spectators reported favorable viewing conditions.

The eclipse, billed as the best lunar eclipse of the century, began around midnight EDT and lasted until 3:36 a.m. The period of total eclipse was from 1:21 a.m. until 2:33 a.m.

In Halifax, persons watched from Point Pleasant Park and the Citadel Hill. Another vantage point was the giant deck of the RCN aircraft carrier Bonaventure berthed in the harbor, but few sailors came for the view.

"A lot of them went out at 1 a.m.," he said, "but a night watch said, 'To tell you the truth, eclipses aren't very exciting to the subjects in ports.'"

Excellent viewing conditions in British Columbia saw hundreds of persons holding campfires along the beaches near White Rock or Van Dusen Arbor, to watch the show.

Members of the public were also able to view the eclipse through telescopes set up at the Vancouver museum by members of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada. One telescope was used to permit photographers to take pictures.

The eclipse was visible across most of the United States. In some places, like Atlanta and Seattle, conditions were perfect, in others, like the Northeast, skies were heavily blocked with fluffy.

In Seattle, it began with a complete, topaz moon and, less than an hour later, the earth's shadow looked like a receding hole in the sky. In Dallas, observers said the moon was a light orange.

All that could be seen in Los Angeles was a cresent-shaped moon. Fog and layers of clouds distorted the view in Kansas City.

In the lunar eclipse, the earth passes between the sun and the moon, with the planet's shadow moving from east to west across the lunar landscape. Even during a total eclipse, some light is reflected from the sun around the earth.

"It was beautiful," said army Pvt. Carrie Hanks in Alamo, Texas. "I might be do it every year."

Unions Ask Power To Probe Hazards

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Labor (OFL) today called on the government to amend the provincial mines act to give mines the power to hold investigations into safety and health hazards in mines, quarries, refineries and related spheres.

The proposal was among 19 recommendations contained in a brief prepared by the OFL for presentation to the Ontario royal commission on safety and health of miners.

The brief criticized both industry and government for failure to act and demanded safeguards for the protection of workers exposed to asbestos, silica and dust.

"Judging by the carelessness made to the hearings so far, it is obvious that . . . measures now exist in law to give the present many workers in Ontario mines and related operations from being afflicted with industrial diseases, being disabled or having died as a result of working in conditions far below the required control of conditions," the brief said. "This misses . . . the brief said.

The OFL brief also criticized the government for not having sufficient power and importance given to the work of the occupational health protection branch. The federation says its investigation indicates that even minimal standards to protect workers from injury from "serious gas, dust and fume dust" are not being enforced by governmental agencies responsible.

The brief recommends urged the government to amend the Workmen's Compensation Act to fully compensate an employee suffering from total or partial disability while employed in mining or related operations.

The OFL requested a complete check by the Workmen's Compensation Board for all coast, lung cancer, or any other silicosis reported in mining, of all employees working on mining or related operations.

Text of the brief was released in advance.

'Easygoing' Ex-con Kills 2 and Rapes 2

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Evelyn Harris of Dayton, nephew, Russell Lee Smith, is easygoing and self-spoken, but "all hell would break loose if somebody pushed him."

Early Saturday the ex-convict killed two persons and wounded nine others in a 7½-hour shooting binge. He raped two women and then took his own life.

"He had concluded nobody cared and wanted to know or see me," Mrs. Smith said. "But he never did."

Authorities said the incident began after Smith accused another case of dating his friend, Joan Gatewood, 18.

Police said Smith opened fire

Mine Union Protests

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — An official of Local 598, United Steelworkers of America says the Ontario Mining Act discriminates against men, chiefly by not allowing women to work underground.

"There are jobs in yards and other surface areas that might be preferred by older miners but they can't bump (women) out of their jobs because they (women) can't work underground," — Norm Cardiff, local vice-president, said.

He said some of the men think the women get easier jobs although they receive equal pay.

Quebec Social Climate Deteriorating: Trudeau

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said about 400 delegates from around the world and that the social climate in Canada in general and Quebec in particular appeared to be deteriorating.

Speaking after a dinner of meatballs and tortiere in a crowded high school cafeteria, he urged more attention to the original peace principles, friendship and sense of justice."

There had to be more understanding among Canadians themselves and between them and their governments, Ottawa and the opposition. These are days on which governments' business is not aside while the House debates topics chosen by the opposition.

Increased taxes, civil disobedience and labor management breakdowns is a call for a return to greater harmony in society.

Canada has the worst strike record of any western country except Italy, he said in reply to a student who suggested that fewer labor unions might mean less strike disruption.

Mr. Trudeau agreed, saying that succeeding strikes by various unions can tie up a single industry, such as Western grain, for several months.

The meeting of young Liberals from 13 federal ridings in the metropolitan area was the first step for Mr. Trudeau after two days in Ontario, when he visited Belleville, Lindsay, Port Hope and Toronto.

This week he will be in Europe for a NATO meeting, but next week he will venture into the Niagara region for another meet-the-people session.

Trade, Sea Law, Fish Will Occupy Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau heads back to Europe this week to talk of sport links, Western affairs, sea law and perhaps even salmon with fellow fishers.

He goes as a somewhat rubber-stamp participant to the NATO summit conference in Brussels on Thursday and Friday. This stop will be preceded by a visit Wednesday to Denmark and followed by a stop Saturday in Luxembourg.

It will be his third trip to Europe in seven months and, in part, will be a continuation of attempts to gain what Mr. Trudeau has described as a contractual link with the European Economic Community (EEC).

If all goes well, he may be back in Europe again in the fall to attend the Conference on European Security and Co-operation (CESC).

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen will join the prime minister in Brussels after meetings of the International Energy Agency (IEA) and the Organization of Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) in Paris.

Canadians consider the NATO summit meeting, called at the request of the British and Americans for stocktaking and a show of western solidarity after Communist military victories in Indochina, largely unwanted.

Mr. MacEachen, returning from overseas expressed by Prime Minister Trudeau, told the Commons external affairs committee last week a NATO summit might be better if it followed a CESC heads of government meeting.

Mr. Trudeau will take advantage of his European visit to talk with Prime Minister Anker Jorgensen of Denmark and Premier Gaston Thorn of Luxembourg, the only two EEC countries he has not visited in recent months.

June 23 Budget Date Means Shorter Holiday

OTTAWA (CP) — Friday's announcement of a June 23 budget destroys any lingering hopes of Parliament clearing some of its legislative backlog before the summer holidays.

The budget will be presented four days before Parliament had been expected to adjourn. It likely will keep MPs at their desks until mid-July.

There are 39 sitting days left before budget day, but substantially the interest in today's business, the problems would get even more severe.

It is mentioned increased sales tax rates, civil disobedience and labor management breakdowns is a call for a return to greater harmony in society.

Canada has the worst strike record of any western country except Italy, he said in reply to a student who suggested that fewer labor unions might mean less strike disruption.

Mr. Trudeau agreed, saying that succeeding strikes by various unions can tie up a single industry, such as Western grain, for several months.

The meeting of young Liberals from 13 federal ridings in the metropolitan area was the first step for Mr. Trudeau after two days in Ontario, when he visited Belleville, Lindsay, Port Hope and Toronto.

This week he will be in Europe for a NATO meeting, but next week he will venture into the Niagara region for another meet-the-people session.

Portugal Army Body Backing Communists

LISBON (AP) — Portugal's ruling military clique sided with the Communists today in their struggle with the Socialist party.

The clique said it will develop its own "popular organizations" to overcome partisan disputes and "generate a correct carrying out of the revolutionary process."

The Armed Forces Movement, the leftist-dominated assembly of 240 military men, said in a communique after a lengthy meeting that it "approved a recommendation to rapidly resolve the (political) crisis, informing the leaders of the Socialist party of the hard general tone of the criticisms expressed in the assembly because of the party's failure to take part in the last cabinet meeting."

The assembly said it was naming a working committee to develop "popular organizations" to "reinforce the alliance between the people and the Armed Forces Movement."

There was no immediate reaction from the Socialists, who have been the victims of increasing leftist harassment since they endorsed Communist threats to use in the constitutional convention elections last month.

The two Socialist members of the coalition government, party leader Mario Soares and Francisco Salgado Zenha, have been boycotting cabinet meetings to protest the government's closure of the Socialist party newspaper Republica after its editorial staff refused to take orders from Communist printers.

Republica was the only paper in Lisbon not controlled by the Communists, who also dominate the trade union movement and many local governments. Soares has threatened to withdraw the Socialists from the government unless the Communists are checked.

The military assembly also reaffirmed its support of leftist Premier Vasco dos Santos Goncalves.

The assembly's statement was viewed as another move toward Marxism and the further erosion of non-Communist civilian political influence.

The military leftists already would ban electoral power through their Revolutionary Council, politburo, and the chief of the army's peacekeeping forces, Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho, urged Monday that the military assume total leadership of the (political) process, bypassing party lead and making direct contact with the rank and file."

Meanwhile, the leftist ministers of the nine countries of the European Economic Market agreed to offer Portugal a multi-billion-dollar package of economic aid in an effort to prevent a Communist takeover. But the military assembly's action indicated that the leftists would not be bought off.

Heat in the Kitchen

Belleville firefighters were called to a house at 34 Strachan St. Monday when a blaze broke out in the kitchen. Firemen Bob Andrus (left) and Tom Nobles survey results that caused fire, smoke and water damage estimated at $2,000. Cause of the blaze was being ascertained today.

Montreal Postal Workers Back After Staging One-day Walkout

MONTREAL (CP) — Inside postal workers were back on the job at the main post office today following a one-day walkout to protest suspension of 16 employees.

Officials of the 4,500-member Montreal local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers said the men were off because of "the Mackasey fix," named after Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey.

Post office management said 73 workers received one-day suspensions during the weekend while union officials said the men were suspended.

According to union figures, since the dispute over the hiring of casual employees and the "slowness" of contract negotiations began, 18 postal workers have been fired, 39 have been suspended for periods varying from one to nine months, eight for indefinite periods and 79 to 80 for one day. The union wants all workers reinstated before resuming contract negotiations.

Marcel Perreault, president of the local, replied Monday to charges leveled by Mr. Mackasey that the Montreal post offices is a "national disgrace" and references to a "hoodlum element" among the workers.

He said Mr. Mackasey is acting as if the country were a totalitarian state and accused him of capitalizing on the aftermath of the Cliche commission report on violence in the construction industry by making subtle accusations against union leaders.

The dispute over the use of casual laborers was partially resolved in June, before acceptance of a department proposal to hire 100 new workers in mid-Wednesday to Sunday to handle the heaviest backlog of mail.

They will also help attack the over-all backlog of 25 million pieces of mail that has built up as a result of the numerous work stoppages.

Lebanese Gunfire Ebbs to Skirmishes

An increasing number of armed security patrols were in the streets and barricades erected by the warring factions began to disappear. But most shops and offices remained closed as tense residents waited to see if the calm would last.

The city government called on employees to return to work but there was fear of disease as garbage uncollected for a week decomposed in huge piles under a hot sun.

Leftist Lebanese political leaders appealed for an end to the clashes after a week of partyhyde. They were joined by leaders of all Palestine guerrilla factions.

Brig.-Gen. Nouredin Rifai's government resigned Monday, seven days after three days of the republic's first experiment with military rule. Frangieh assured the Beirut-old general premier Friday after party a week of street battles between Palestinian guerrillas and militiamen from the right-wing Christian Falangist party.

Rifai's appointment was greeted with an outcry from Moslem leaders, who voiced responsible for military rule and the fear that the officer corps is pro-Christian. Left-wing Lebanese militiamen joined the fighting and the toll rose above 70 dead, 200 wounded.

Tanzania Rebuffs Kidnappers

DAR ES SALAAM (AP) — United States Ambassador Beverly Carter says he has hoped that two American students and a young Mexican held by guerrillas in Zaire will be released during his Tanzanian government's refusal to meet the demands of the Marxist People's Revolutionary party that it send to shoot the five hostages unless the Tanzanian government paid them $300,000 within 48 days, freed a number of the party's leaders held in Tanzania and handed over hundreds of rifles and cannons and thousands of rounds of ammunition.

"Tanzania will not be blackmailed," said President Julius Nyerere's press secretary after a cabinet meeting. "The Tanzanian government flatly rejects all of the demands. Now we must wait."

He told reporters this was the "final government statement on the matter."

"We are not without hope that a resolution of the problem can free the remaining hostages. But he said he was not sure what the next steps would be for U.S. or Tanzanian governments."

President Nyerere expressed his personal and his government's concern about the safety of the students who are still held captive and decried kidnapping as a tool to gain publicity," Carter said.

Hastings Receives Bulk Of Quinte OFY Grants

By BARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Hastings County has again received the bulk of federal opportunities for youth (OFY) granted Quinte-district projects this year.

In total, $153,400 has been allocated OFY projects in Hastings, Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington counties.

Hastings — with the most administrative staff and where local groups received approval for 21 projects — received $104,940.

This, compares with $161,000 last year when 34 OFY summer-work community schemes were launched in the county.

In Prince Edward County the federal government has approved five projects with a total of nearly $23,000. Last year, seven OFY schemes received about $25,000.

Lennox and Addington gets $23,460 for 11 projects, compared to $33,200 for the same number of schemes in 1974.

As in previous years the OFY projects in Hastings will involve recreation and community services with a small degree of historical projects.

The biggest grant — $10,200 to the Red Cross water safety teaching project for youngsters in Hastings County. The project, directed out of Belleville, Tilted Water Safety Program, will involve five young people in a touring, educational program of swimming safety habits.

Second largest grant $8,300 went to Queen's Legal Aid, the law-assistance service set up for citizens which has operated in Belleville for the past three years. It is a project of Queen's University students.

A similar grant — $1,875 — goes to a young Bellevillian, Peter Gallagher, who will write and research the history of the Belleville Naval Unit Reserve area. The route was one of a series of commemorative plaques built in the 1880s.

Heritage: Prince Edward was allocated $7,600 for a project which will research and collect previously unrecognized aspects of the county's pioneer ground. Research will include "visits to historical and economic factors which have influenced local life. The data will be compiled into an illustrated book, 1,000 copies distributed at cost. Free copies will be given to school libraries and historical societies.

Criteria for OFY projects emphasize participation by their youthful participants and contribution to local communities.

Education Board Considers Policy on Open Meetings

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

STIRLING — The Hastings County Board of Education has committed itself to reconsidering its own policy on closed meetings in view of the new Education Act.

Belleville trustee Eloise Burr recommended to the board that the policy committee meet to determine "if our present policy observes both the spirit and the letter of the law, and to recommend changes in our policy if deemed desirable."

In the past few months, the board has been making an effort to put more of its business into open session following the committee of the whole or closed meeting. Mrs. Burr said the board's current policy does not clearly express the board's latest interpretation of the act.

Stirling trustee Donald Williams said the board "has always been open, continues to be open and gives pertinent information when requested."

He agreed the bylaw should be reviewed, in this light, not necessarily by legal implications.

The new education act gives an indication that all board meetings and committee meetings should be held in public. The board's bylaw bluntly prohibits the public from attending committee of the whole and committee meetings.

Strikes to Be Studied

Advisory Council Is Being Formed

OTTAWA (CP) — Government, labor and business representatives have begun setting up a tripartite advisory council to suggest ways to improve industrial relations and collective bargaining as aide to Labor Minister John Munro said Monday.

Gordon McCaffery said the first meeting of the special council is expected to be held in July.

Last week, Joe Morris, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, and William Wightman, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, met labor department officials in an organizational meeting.

The council, first proposed last year by Mr. Munro, would be set up to examine industrial relations and make recommendations particularly with a view to reducing the number and intensity of strikes.

Mr. McCaffery said there may be up to 12 representatives each from business and labor with Mr. Munro as chairman of the council.

A secretariat provided by the department of labor could be established if the council proved workable.

Mr. McCaffery said the plan is voluntary, but if the council is successful a request will go to cabinet for legislation to make the group more permanent.

Among those on the council would be senior union representatives and a broad cross-section of employers.

Regional meetings by representatives might also be appointed although the council would not tread on provincial jurisdiction, Mr. McCaffery said.

Tradeau Wants Oil Floor Set

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau wants an international floor price established for oil, but said Monday he is "not very hopeful" it will be achieved at the International Energy Agency meeting beginning today in Paris.

Replying to Commons questions from James Gillies (PC-Don Valley), Mr. Trudeau said Energy Minister Donald Macdonald will report back to cabinet on the meeting and decide what action, if any, should be taken in Canada.

"I can't predict what will happen," he said.

Mr. Macdonald left during the weekend for the conference whose 16-member participants, mostly consumers, are attempting to restore some price order in the international oil market.

The prime minister, when asked by Mr. Macdonald what will propose any specific figure, said there is no binding bargaining position.

Mr. Macdonald told a Commons committee recently that he would be reluctant to agree to any floor price above current domestic crude oil price of $6.50 a barrel.

The United States has been pushing for a floor price of between $7 and $8 a barrel to encourage development of alternate, more expensive energy sources such oil sands and shales and coal gasification. . .

BRIGHTON — A high-speed chase on Highway 401 Monday has led to the arrest of a Detroit man on charges of criminal negligence, possession of a weapon and possession of liquor in a place other than a residence.

The chase, at speeds up to 90 m.p.h., was taken up by Brighton Constable Bruce McIntyre west of Trenton. It ended 30 miles later when a half-ton truck driven by Sargent slammed into an earth embankment on the Highway 45 exit ramp north of Cobourg.

Constable McArthur said today the chase began when he tried to caution the truck off the road after noticing it was weaving from lane to lane.

Two Convocations

"Growth has its drawback", says Wil Wilkinson, chairman of Loyalist College board of governors, noting it now is impossible for the college to hold just one convocation. He says Loyalist has 882 graduates this year of whom 341 were recognized at Saturday's convocation. He explains it will be impossible to hold a second one on June 21 for diploma nursing, medical assistants, retraining and DVD electrical and electronic technicians.

WASN'T POPCORN

TORONTO (CP) — On his way home from his downtown job, Irving Cooper began to eat popcorn from a bag he bought previously at a confectionery shop. First he bit into a $1 bill, then $5, then $10 and $20 bills. He realized the bag of popcorn contained another bag with the store's receipts ready to go to the bank—$1,500 in all. Cooper returned the money.

COMBINE OVENS

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (CP) — A new electric range in the kitchens has an oven that can be transformed into a microwave oven at the turn of a knob. The range has traditional cooking techniques with the addition of the microwave which cuts cooking time by 50 to 70 per cent. The conventional oven and the microwave effect can be partly combined and food cooked with microwaves can be browned with ordinary oven heat.

Fabricon Head Defends Plant Move to Belleville

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Fabricon Manufacturing Ltd. president Herman Allmendinger said Monday Trenton will not attract new industry unless it assembles serviced land in an industrial park similar to the one in the east end Belleville.

His assessment comes two weeks after news was released that his company will build a new 250-employee plant in Belleville. It also follows what he called several months of frustration in attempts to locate the plant in Trenton.

He spoke with The Intelligencer Monday about Fabricon's attempts to build the plant on 30.9 acres of Chidwick property in northwest Trenton. Failure forced him to conclude the town's answer for attracting large scale industry rests in establishment of an industrial park.

"I believe if Trenton would have had industrial siting available, and that is the responsibility of council, that we would have had no trouble getting up a plant in Trenton," said Mr. Allmendinger.

"They better look for industrial land or (I face of a giant) will happen again," he warned. "I know it costs money, but to make money, you have to spend money."

Mr. Allmendinger agreed to an interview saying that although he didn't want to create a "storm" of public reaction, he felt the need to tell Trenton that Fabricon tried to remain in Trenton.

He termed as "whitewash" the town's explanation for loss of the new Fabricon plant to Belleville. Mr. Allmendinger said it made it appear the company did not try to locate here, contrary to what actually occurred during some seven months of talks with the town.

Public criticism of the loss of Fabricon prompted town officials to release a report, sections of which Mr. Allmendinger called confidential, that outlined the talks.

Following a Monday announcement in Belleville, Mayor Bob Patrick issued a prepared statement aimed at clearing up "some misunderstandings that are obviously circulating concerning Fabricon locating in Belleville."

Mr. Allmendinger said Monday the initial report "makes us look like we didn't try to remain here".

"If they say we tried everything, I say, where was the land?"

To illustrate his point, Mr. Allmendinger pulled eight maps from a closet outlining alternate plant siting and control of the 30.9 acres. He said he was willing to buy, provided access for services was available. "Does that look like we weren't trying to do anything?" he asked rhetorically.

Control of the land rested with at least three different groups. Town clerk Ashley Sharp stated in a report to council that there was a gentlemen agreement over several land exchanges involving control of the plant in southwest Trenton.

Mr. Sharp blamed the lack of large-size parcels of serviced industrial land for the loss of Fabricon.

He directly compared the reception he received in Trenton to that he received from Belleville when a Fabricon consultant looked at the city for land.

The same night he asked a company consultant to look for an alternate site, he received a Belleville official pins and pencils/heavy cuffers of a 30-by 30-acre site in the city's northeast industrial park. An option on the land was delivered the following day.

"It took a day and a half to get what I wanted," he said. "It's the way a community should work."

On the other hand, Trenton should have known in February that it was not in the position to provide land, he said.

"If Trenton wants to exist as an industrial community they will need to buy land," he stated. Mr. Allmendinger suggested the purchase of land on Trenton's borders as an eventual site for an industrial park.

Youth Better Prepared

PICTON — Bicycles no longer are "just for kids" since hundreds of adults have discovered the exercise value of cycling.

Picton Police Chief Charles Fletcher observed, however, that most youngsters applying for bicycle licences are better briefed than the older generation. They come fully prepared with the serial number of their bikes while adults sometimes overlook this information.

Child's Body Found

WAUPOOS — Ontario Provincial Police searchers Monday recovered the body of a five-year-old Kirkland Lake boy who drowned Sunday afternoon when he fell from a boat as it overturned in Prince Edward Bay near here.

Dead is David Michael Cragg, five, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cragg of Kirkland Lake.

The child's body was found in Prince Edward Bay off the shore of North Marysburg shortly after noon Monday.

The boy was one of five youngsters riding in a 12-foot boat, Sunday, operated by Wilton Little, 22, of Waupoos.

Police say the craft was in a tight turn when it suddenly flipped, throwing its passengers overboard. All were rescued except for the deceased.

Wins Promotion

Picton police officer George Wright this month celebrated 20 years of service with the town police force with a promotion to the rank of detective. He is the first member of the department to earn this rank and scored in the top 20 per cent of his class in a six-week course in criminal investigations held recently at Aylmer.

Groundwork

Parks and recreation director Dean Gerlas gets dirt under his finger nails as he plants marigolds behind Trenton Memorial library Monday. The flower planting program is under way this week in town parks and other municipal properties.

About 21,000 square feet of bedding plants in 10 to 15 different varieties are being planted this year.

Mayor Wants Crackdown On Picton Hot Rodders

PICTON — Picton mayor Donald King this month called for a police crackdown on tire-squealing hot rodders and several Picton merchants told the town they are closing Friday nights because of obscene language on Main St.

Picton police chief Charles Fletcher said Monday that no charges have been laid by police already this month, 16 of these for unnecessary noise.

He added that 27 speeding charges were laid, 36 liquor charges, 15 charges under the Criminal Code and a total of 39 other charges. The other charges include offences related to licences and similar matters.

In April, 1975, approximately 80 charges were laid by police in comparison with the 103 charges laid during the first three weeks in May.

He observed most of the drivers charged plead guilty to the offence and it is seldom necessary for citizens to come forward as witnesses. The police make every effort to hold the names of those reporting offenders in confidence but sometimes the citizen is required to come forward.

Chief Fletcher added the use of obscene language on Main St. frequently relates to impairment, and use of profanity and obscenities by impaired persons will be noted in police reports and brought forward in Justice of the Peace court here.

Wright Named Picton's First Detective

PICTON — A veteran officer with the Picton police department, Constable George Wright, has been promoted to the rank of detective following completion of a six weeks course at the Ontario Police College.

Constable Wright, who joined the town police force in May, 1955, recently completed a six-week course in criminal investigation at the Ontario Police College in Aylmer. He scored among the top 19 per cent in his class.

He is the first member of the Picton Police Department to earn the rank of detective.

Migrant Workers Constitute Enormous Problem for the European Community

By JOHN D. HARKNON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Dr. Patrick Hillery, the former foreign minister of Ireland, was in Toronto recently talking about the social problems facing what we in Canada consider to be an economic phenomenon, namely the European Economic Community.

He was doing this in his present function as vice-president for social affairs of the European Commission.

Dr. Hillery, who managed in his speech to divest himself of the label, was speaking as an international administrator, a vor of legalization of marijuana. Doubtless running through Mr. Trudeau's mind was an encounter he has had while out for a brief walk in the Vancouver area soon years ago. "Why don't you legalize pot?" he was asked by a pair of hippie types. His answer, similar to the one he gave at Centennial, noted in part that there were better ways of getting "a high" in life. It was an appropriate answer too from the non-smoking and fitness-conscious Prime Minister.

Of course there was a lot left unsaid, on a variety of subjects, from the decline in public and private morality to Canada's often strange posturing in foreign affairs, to the apparent responsiveness of many in this country to undemocratic trends abroad.

Mr. Trudeau may have been right in suggesting that the forces of nationalism will ultimately prevail, especially in Asia, but he betrayed some naivety when he expressed doubt that people who take over power by force, whatever their political affiliations, would "hurt their own people."

The Prime Minister seems to ignore the massacre of innocents and the firing squads that have accompanied many a totalitarian takeover in years past, most recently in Asia.

On the subject of capital punishment here at home, Mr. Trudeau makes no distinction between a deliberate murder. As former RCMP Commissioner L. H. Nicholson put it recently, the robber for one who shoots down a policeman or a corner grocery store owner. Police, he says, are frustrated in face of a lenient attitude by government in such cases.

Mr. Trudeau's performance in Belleville was in his best tradition, but his words were those of a man and a government that bend with political winds (as witness his answer on the drugs issue), rather than take a strong stand. A Government careful to give little away or to commit itself firmly.

Government Or Unions?

Who is running the country — the government or the unions?

The question is one of uncommon urgency these days, with one union after another emerging like so many jacks-in-the-box to hamstring the smooth functioning of society.

The right to strike of course is enshrined in legislation, but it has meant dislocation of the economy and has earned us the ill-will of customers abroad.

In Quebec we see the effects had some devastating things to say about inflation, high unemployment and bad housing for those migrant millions given the global recession of 1973-75, the EEC has established a 500-million unit fund whose operations "in detail" he did not elaborate.

He spoke so dispassionately about such a disgraceful and floating population (as large as Cuba's), and only in answer to a query from the floor, that immediately of the problem weren't obvious.

It's not that Dr. Hillery, an Irish political doctor with three medical degrees, is a cold man, rather he displayed typical Irish warmth in what he said.

But the problem he faces, like so many social ones today, probably is too much for the EEC bureaucrats to solve.

If so, we had to say about so many floating human beings within the affluent Europe sharpened his earlier comments that the two major areas of concern for today's governments and international organizations are "social protection" and "local employment."

By these, he meant the big problem of how increased oil prices helped to increase inflation, a heavy problem, unemployment for 6 consecutive months, and the small problem of citizen's survival.

This brings us back to the modern and unprotected millions within the EEC and what it can do for them. EEC cannot be bonded off to their homelands.

In the case of Spain, where the boom of the late 60s has changed to high inflation and massive labor unrest, the plight of immigrant worker whose remittances bolster some of Spain's foreign earnings, would be a drain on the economy if he returned in large numbers.

In France, racism affects the depressed North African unemployed worker. And elsewhere in the EEC, the unemployed semi-skilled Italian laborer would be in unwelcome competition as he now is becoming in northern Europe.

Italy is of course, a full member of the EEC, but the one whose own economy is closest to collapse.

A Smooth Performance

The visit of Prime Minister Trudeau passed off without incident — that is, if we discount a youth chased by police after being observed on the roof of a nearby apartment building.

It was all very civilized, and Mr. Trudeau himself very cryptic, witty, and frank, even to the extent of acknowledging that the postal service is not what it might be.

But the great man was never really extended, say in the way he might have been by a thoroughly probing and merciless opposition. In fact he was applauded, almost in the manner of an audience having its first taste of the opera.

At least the Prime Minister might have felt encouraged to embark on such public relations ventures more often. Certainly he is not seen in public all that often these days.

About the only heat generated by the audience came from a young man unabashedly in favor of legalization of marijuana. Doubtless running through Mr. Trudeau's mind was an encounter he had while out for a brief walk in the Vancouver area soon years ago. "Why don't you legalize pot?" he was asked by a pair of hippie types. His answer, similar to the one he gave at Centennial, noted in part that there were better ways of getting "a high" in life. Water Safety

Someone has said that not enough is being done in Canada to prevent drownings.

With the summer season upon us, it is a time to reflect on such a claim. Trenton now has its own underwater search and recovery unit. So too has Belleville; indeed the latter has proved its worth many times.

But how much is enough in water rescue, remembering that in the case of the above units their use, sadly, is often "after the event."

How often this year are we going to hear of such tragedies as the loss of a Toronto father and son while fishing in the Welland Canal or Prince Edward county? Or of drownings in unsupervised river or lake waters? Not to mention the beach?

We can go only so far in the provision of water safety facilities. In the last resort, each individual must be responsible for his own safety. Attention to basic precautions could save many lives.

UN Force Buys Time for Peace

By AL COLLETTI

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Syria's surprising move allowing peacekeeping in the Golan Heights for another six months buys time for the big powers to work toward a Middle East peace settlement.

It also indicates that Syria has been receiving its messages, improving relations with the United States and backing off from its threats of a new war.

The last thing the Syrians would want right now is to face new hostilities on the Israeli border while the tinder box dispute with Iraq over water rights involving the damming of the Euphrates River rages on.

The Syrian government information minister, Mohammed al-Zoubi, is reported to have told Kurt Waldheim recently that it is willing to extend the mandate of the UN Disengagement Observer Force (UNDOF) for six months beyond May 31.

The peacekeeping force of 1,- 036 men, including 190 Canadians, is stationed between Syria and Israel on the Golan Heights—another factor in favor fighting between the two countries in the 1973 Middle East war.

Although surprised, UN diplomats welcomed the Syrian decision to accept the agreement known at the UN, the renewal.

The prospect now is a precarious one, until further progress on the Geneva peace conference on the Middle East, but that will take time. So, as the reasoning goes, there was no real hurry to cut off UNDOF.

Thus the Soviets' and the Americans have been granted precious time to persuade Syria—while they move the forces around in their global diplomatic chess match.

Suppression of the Socialist daily Republica, Lisbon's only non-Communist newspaper, presages a totalitarian regime of the Left, not democratic revolution. What hope there had been for democracy in the last 13 months is swiftly evaporating.

In this affair the ruling Armed Forces Movement has compounded illegality with illegality. When Communist-led Intersindical Republica's plant the AFM sent paratroopers to prevent Socialist crowds from regaining control of it; then ordered suspension of the newspaper. This contravened Portugal's own constitution and all the trapping of collusion plated carefully in advance.

Understandably, the Socialists are threatening to resign from the cabinet unless the ban against Republica is lifted. They cannot allow their voice to be gagged; cannot, as the party with the largest vote in last month's election, accept this affront without a struggle.

Later acts improved habeas corpus and it may not be suspended in time of hostilities or civil strife. It remains basic law under which any accused person must be either tried, discharged, or released on bail.

Mortgage Rates Rise Again

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The renewed rise in interest rates in Canada has put an end to hopes that the cost of new mortgages have back up toward last year's record levels.

Anyone who is now today in Canada's most heavily populated central area, will face these cost factors:

—The interest rate on a conventional first-mortgage loan (for up to 75 per cent of the value of the house) will probably be at least 11 per cent, and perhaps as much as 11.5 per cent, compared with 10.5 per cent in April.

—Even at that, the availability of loan funds is only fair, according to mortgage brokers.

—On the other hand, the interest rate is part of a broad interrelated pattern.

Canadian interest rates remain pegged mid-way between the lower rates prevailing in the United States, and the higher rates in other U.K. levels.

The factor is that most countries is a clear reflection of investors' unwillingness to lend their money during this period, when the outlook for inflation and recession is so uncertain.

Trust companies here in Canada are finding that the sale of guaranteed investment certificates (matching the 5 per cent interest rate being offered by banks) are slow, even though the interest rate is higher. The Royal GIC has been boosted to 8.75 per cent.

If high interest rates spell trouble for the home buyer, they are nevertheless welcomed by the Bank of Canada.

The Bank's policy has been to keep Canada's rates higher than U.S. rates.

That helps to attract an inflow of foreign investment capital, which is the traditional Canadian way of financing the deficit on international trade—a deficit that widened to $1.7 billion in the current recession cuts down the spending demand for our exports.

So, in a roundabout way, the monthly payment that a Canadian home-buyer must agree to make is significantly affected by the level of world trade and by foreign views on Canada's economic prospects.

On the positive side, Canada's outlook is enhanced by the high level of inflation recently (as long as you are careful about the choice of a period).

In the three months ended April 30, our consumer price index rose eight per cent, vs. 11.3 per cent in the preceding three months and 10.5 per cent in the three months ended January 31, when wholesale price index rises at an annual rate of 9.5 per cent in the six months to March 31.

But on the negative side, several important inflationary pressures continue unabated—notably the demands of powerful labour for wage increases in the range of 20 to 30 per cent.

The scales could well be tipped toward either wage increases, or still higher interest rates, or both, depending on how the pressures are contained in the forthcoming federal budget.

Russians Capitalize

Milwaukee Journal

Never let it be said that the Russians don't make good capitalists. The U.S.S.R. had great wheat harvests in 1972 and 1973 and brought home to it in the form of cheap grain. Now Russia's wheat crop has been damaged, satellites are discovering it simply won't do to be dependent on the Soviet Union.

The Soviet Union has profits and commodities on hand and they know that they can considerably further the price of their agricultural exports. It is not that the Soviet Union is going to exploit Union more to produce, it is not that it is going to corner the market at a current sky high retail price, but it is going to exploit temporary prices and decisions it has in hand.

No longer can the East European countries depend on fixed oil prices for the life of their five year plans, as they had in the past. In the future the Russians will be charging the prices they actually get. They must play long-term economic planning and even introduce that bugbear of capitalist planning in these Communist nations. For the Kremlin, this is not a bad thing to accept as long as Russia turns a tidy capitalistic profit.

Society's Loss of Values

Letter in The Montreal Gazette

The lead editorial in the May 7 edition of The Gazette was accompanied by Mr. Mosher's cartoon depicting a group of people in a boat, with one of the figures receiving a pie in the face was, indeed, funny.

The loss of values, the decline in "Truth, Justice and the American Way" and the reversal for generations by society of what is right and what is wrong. Nor has this fight from comedians been confined to the U.S. but from man to man's Creator, conveyed through television and radio and spiritually bankrupt his styles.

While The Gazette is to be commended for its excellent editorials and cartoons, it is also responsible for the loss of values dwelled in the editorial.

The editorials on the entertainment page of the newspaper, these days, are a reflection of the moral standards of the comments for films (special, over a certain age) and in the choice of articles and news that are published. With Hicks', which regards womanhood by depicting women as objects of sexual lewdness and not as creatures of dignity. Such is the case with the cartoon above and much the values of the United Institutions of Marriage and the family.

If The Gazette is serious about its May 7 editorial, then perhaps you might consider a change in its policy of presenting material, so it is compatible with that which contributes to the reinforcing of attitudes and events that are worthy of the name of man, material published and supported by the majority of the readership worthy of human endeavor.

The 24 piece band of RCMC, Kingston, will march in the parade recently at Canada's first army interval Brigadier Major General Jean Victor Allard H. Patenaude, Brigadier Harold Hall, took the salute. The day's program included the parade from the Peterborough Armouries to church parade at Memorial Arena and the march past of the troops.

The work is being carried out by the firm of Mr. Wright's son, Mr. Jack Wright. The interior has been completely remodelled and redecorated. The old stairway has been removed and a new one installed. The old stairway was a fire hazard and was a source of danger to the firemen.

Appointment of Arthur Maloney as Ombudsman Popular

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — It is hard to regard an appointment made here in recent years that has met with such enthusiasm as the naming of Arthur Maloney as Ontario's first ombudsman.

All sides of the house were pleased to hear the news of the appointment of the MPP.

And what the MPP is authorized to do there something to be applauded.

It is not a party hack to head the office, but a man of experience, acclaim, and particularly its appointment.

The wonderworld acceptance of Mr. Maloney is easy to understand.

He has been one of the most prominent criminal lawyers in criminal bar in Canada for years.

But beyond this he has gained an outstanding reputation as a defender of the rights.

He has figured in many prominent trials in which he has obviously been providing his talents principally because of his belief in justice, and has won some noteworthy victories.

His standing at the bar has probably given him the highest standing with the public.

Noteworthy of many qualifications of Arthur Maloney for this job are two.

One, he is a very human person.

Two, he is well experienced not only in the law but in Parliament.

Son of a federal member, grandson and brother of members of the legislature and a former cabinet minister himself, he would be hard to find a man to equal his background in Parliament and politics.

Perhaps it is best expressed with the simple thing he knows his way around.

And a good gentleman who will protect the public from the straightjacket bureaucracy certainly has to know his way around.

Then he was born in Kingston, raised in Toronto and grew up in the Ottawa valley, with generations of valleyites behind him.

Anybody who knows the valley knows they produce a different breed up there.

They are not energetic people. But also they are open and free, friendly and fiercely loyal.

The spirit of the old logging days still survives and this gives a broad and human outlook to valley or northerner set in their ways.

It means they are approachable. And any citizen who has a problem with government will find Mr. Maloney can be sure of a good reception.

Nixon Plans Brief Tour Through New Riding

BANCROFT — The prospect of the premier provided election that in the call has become increasingly evident in the North Hastings-Peterborough riding with the nomination of candidates to represent most of the parties and with visits to the area by cabinet ministers from both the provincial and federal governments.

The public is invited to attend the Apsley party.

That evening, Mr. Nixon will address the Victoria Haliburton Young Liberals Association in Lindsay.

Board to Test Early School Bus System

STIRLING — It's hard to please everyone and the Hastings County Board of Education learned the lesson once again — but this time it involved bus scheduling.

The board Monday night approved a experimental early bus system at Bayside Secondary School, but not without some serious doubts and reservations from board members.

The transportation committee recommended the board approve an early start to leave the high school at 2:25 p.m. rather than 4 p.m. Second school students will not be affected as they will still be taken home at the regular time.

Stirling trustee Donald Williams objected on the grounds that although those most needed extra help after school would be most likely to leave, Secondary schools generally have an activity hour from 3:10 to 4 p.m.

Mr. Williams pointed out that Community and made the previous request and that if the board approved the request it would be flooded with more requests next fall. One trustee suggested that many try to hitch-hike rather than wait for the bus.

Extra-curricular activities to leave for part-time jobs, baby-sitting or just because they had no further business at school.

Firemen Busy

PICTON — It was a hot time in the old town last night for Picton firefighters who answered three alarms in a six-hour period.

Shortly after 7 p.m. firemen were called to extinguish a car fire at the Town Hill. Damage to the vehicle, owned by Roger Beard of Consecon, Ont., Picton, was minor.

Shortly after midnight, the second alarm took firefighters to the Fairway Apts. on Spring St., where a garbage can in the basement was ablaze. No damage resulted.

At 1:30 a.m. a third call was answered at the R. J. McFarland home for the night. It was a false alarm.

A Long Walk

It was a weekend in Bancroft for marathon endurance. Along with a group from the local area, six members of the local TOPS Club walked the five miles from Misty Creek to Bancroft on an attempt to raise funds.

Field Worker Outlines Role Of Social Service Program

MARMORA — A 24-hour-a-day service is maintained by social services and welfare to assist people with their problems, told worker, Jason Jessop, told members of St. Paul's ACW at their May meeting.

One of the persons working in the Quinte area, Mr. Jessop outlined the many services and kinds of help that are available.

There is supplementary help for pensioners who require drugs, dental work or eyeglasses; mothers, whose husbands have left their families, can get assistance to retrain at Loyalist College for a job; young people 16-18 may be provided with financial assistance to move out of a troubled home; sleeping accommodation and meals will be provided for persons in need who are passing through a community; people on welfare in one area can move to another and apply for assistance.

In addition, transportation to hospital or clinic is provided for people on welfare if they have no means of getting there themselves; the services of the Victoria Order of Nurses can be obtained, if needed, through the Community and Social Services; children under 18 in a broken or troubled home are referred to the Children's Aid Society, Mr. Jessop explained.

The Social Services and Welfare Committee also works closely with the county homes for the aged and mental homes for the admitting of senior citizens who are no longer able to look after themselves, Mr. Jessop said.

Mrs. Lillian Johnson reported on the Diocesan ACW meeting held in Kingston recently. The theme of the conference was "Let the Spirit take over".

Residents Walk, Skate For Community Funds

BANCROFT — It was an expensive weekend for North Hastings residents.

Saturday, a group of women from the local TOPS Club walked the five miles from Hirds Crest to Bancroft in an effort to raise funds for the club use.

Although there are more than 30 people in the local TOPS Club, only the forty women endured the hot weather to raise $180.

Sunday, Bancroft's first Roll-a-thon on roller skates was held in the Don Hastings Community Centre.

The roll-a-thon was organized by the arena commission in an attempt to raise enough money to purchase another 35 pairs of roller skates.

Most of the teenagers who participated in the event had a number of sponsors who were willing to pay one cent a minute for the possible 5½ hours spent skating.

One young girl had more than 50 sponsors.

According to Jim Bruce of the Commission, one of the youngster raising the most money will be awarded a new pair of skates.

The bad news to the sponsors will be arriving soon when the bills are sent out by the committee.

Forbes Wants Schools Open

STIRLING — Conservative candidate John Forbes told his fellow provincial members Monday night that teachers and students should be kept in school during the November Remembrance Day holiday.

Mr. Forbes, from Trenton, gave notice of motion Monday, to keep teachers and students in the classroom. The board will deal with the suggestion at its next meeting.

After the meeting Mr. Forbes said he felt students could better observe Remembrance Day by doing planned activity rather than just having a day off. He said the students never attend services.

Art Lovers Gather

The Belleville Art Association will hold its monthly meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Carty Library. Guest speakers will be Warren Thomson a graphic artist and Howard Mandel, a photographer. They are instructors at Loyalist College. The public is invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Arnold Lashes Out At Abortion Policy

TORONTO — The Social Credit candidate in Hastings — Peterborough for the next provincial election claims the Conservative government encourages abortion as a means of birth control.

Nancy Arnold who has been nominated to run in the re-structured riding, released a statement at Queen's Park recently supporting a group of women who shouted "baby murderers" before being escorted from the floor of the legislature.

The unidentified young women is right," she says. "Ontario MPP's are baby murderers. In a two-year period, 1973-74, close unborn, human babies were murdered through unnecessary abortions in hospitals under the jurisdiction of the Ontario government.

In effect, she contends, "perfectly healthy babies" are murdered because the provincial health insurance coverage which pays for hospital stays and operation costs in abortion cases prompts many women to request abortions instead of birth control methods.

"All a person has to do to get most hospital abortion committees to say she does not want a baby. The doctor does that by having the baby will make her unhappy," and subsequently is led the ever-lasting health," Mrs. Arnold says.

"At least that is how the people sitting in the legislature permit the law to be interpreted."

Province Plans Drive For Seat Belt Use

The proposed mini belt safety program to be introduced into Grades 1 and 2 as a pilot project in Ontario's elementary schools this autumn is a "pretty logical outgrowth of the idea of reaching all age groups," says an official of the provincial ministry of transportation and communications.

Cathy Stephens of the ministry's driver-vehicle operations research office, speaking to The Intelligencer in a telephone interview from Toronto recently, both local, personal and mass media advertising has been attempted but the success ratio has not been as great as desired.

She said the pilot might last as long as six months after which the ministry will review it to determine if any changes are required before proceeding on in-depth program to all public school grades.

Mr. Stephens said the review will likely include a survey of various areas to see if the rate of seat belt use has increased, a telephone survey of some parents to discover their reactions and a look at any possible behavioral change in the students.

He said the Ontario Educational Communications Authority (OECA) will work with the ministry to develop both the pilot and future ongoing programs, specifically producing an animated 15-minute film and providing printed matter.

When the pilot begins, hopefully in September, community service and safety officers from municipal and regional police departments and Ontario Provincial Police detachments will visit schools once a month with the entire package and will leave pamphlets with the teachers for student projects. The teachers will also be engaged in follow-up interviews to gauge their feelings.

Mr. Stephens said the project has been in the works for almost a year and has also received input from police officials.

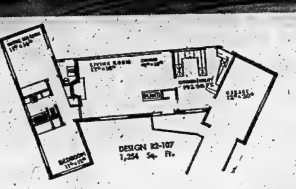
Auld Works Hard

Herb Yeung, president of Loyalist College says it is easy to realize the tremendous responsibilities thrust upon minister of colleges and universities, as he introduced Mr. Auld as guest speaker for the Loyalist convocation Saturday. Mr. Yeung noted the demands on post-secondary education are on a frightening basis and funds are limited. He said the college feels these pressures as a small scale and has to fight to cope with them.

Parade Planned

On Sunday June 1, a parade including the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will commemorate the cessation of hostilities of Second World War in Toronto. Starting at 2 p.m. from the Queen's Park, the march will go down University Ave., to City Hall where an Ecumenical Service will take place at 3 p.m.



Eggs Stress Benefits Of Using Seat Belts

Constables Don Huzyk and Brian Turner, community services officers with the Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police, may have found a use for some of those controversial surplus eggs.

The two men are responsible for a unique method to explain seat belt safety to elementary school students using fresh eggs and model cars.

For example, an unstrapped egg flys out of the car upon collision while a strapped-in egg sustains but minor cracks.

Cpl.ay Stephens of the driver-vehicle operations research department in the provincial ministry of transportation and communications says the method will be used in some form in the ministry's proposed seat belt safety program to be introduced to Grades 1 and 2 in Ontario's elementary schools this autumn.

She relates police officials from across the province were invited to suggest the best way to explain the necessity for wearing seat belts to public school pupils and the egg method was the most impressive.

Ms. Stephens did not say if the method would be used in a provincial exam as part of the proposed school package but notes it will probably be included in an estimated, 15-minute film to be produced by the Ontario Educational Communications Authority (OECA) to be shown in the schools.

Constable Turner says the film will likely portray Humpty-Dumpty who gets like a car accident, falls out of his car and is attended to by "all the king's constables."

Gardening Column

Manure Not Best For Gardens

In what is basically a farming community, I should probably have my head read for trying to convince some sacred cows and their sacred product — manure. But I've got to set the record straight, at least as far as the home gardener is concerned.

First, let's get when you examine barnyard manure for its fertilizer qualities, it's just not what it's cracked up to be. Or rather, not the home gardener spreads it about to be. In fact, manure is a very poor fertilizer that adds very little to the garden in the way of nutrients.

Perhaps the misconception comes about because of the common sight of farmers heavily manuring their fields every spring. But that's not because it's a good fertilizer, but rather because it performs very well in making heavy soils friable, in acting as a composting agent that allows the development of sturdy root structures.

The term manure is of course a general one that applies to many agent besides animal manure. But since it's animal manure we are dealing with, let's take a closer look at them and their fertilizing qualities.

Cow manure contains about 1 per cent nitrogen, 1 per cent phosphorous and 1 per cent potash. And that's when it's "fresh". The "as-it-comes-to-stall," that is so sought out by western gardeners, probably lost 50 per cent of its nitrogen and 20 per cent of its phosphorous through the decomposition process. That means a ton of well rotted barnyard manure provides you with the equivalent in terms of nitrogen, phosphorous and potash, of a 20 pound bag of commercial fertilizer.

So one measure if you like, but don't use it believing that your plants or vegetables have been well fed. Rather, say it as a composting agent to break up soils and keep them open, but at the same time, be aware of some of the problems manure can introduce. Its first and most obvious problem is its high content of weed seed. And it carries some additional potential problems that are not so obvious.

For example, manure on pastures or a tulip bed can be disastrous since manure is a prime source of fireblight. And it's bad business to put it on tomatoes or potatoes because of botrytis blight.

But I want to set one thing straight. I am not making a mass condemnation of barnyard manure. I'm just suggesting that you don't consider it has some magic qualities that automatically make your garden grow. Manure can and should be used wherever the supply is plentiful and weeding is no problem. Provided you use it with some discretion and are prepared to add fertilizers to humused soils rather than expect manure to be a complete feeding fraction.

Now I am sure there are some readers who may be thinking of using commercial fertilizers. In the same way that barnyard manure is not merely adding fluorine to drinking water. And who is to say who are wrong. But on the other hand, there has never been any evidence that commercial fertilizers cause ill side effects whatsoever. And so, in the long run the choice is yours — manure or commercial fertilizer — or both.

Incidentally, you can achieve the same basic results by composting and working your own compost heap. And without the many possible problems that manure can bring to the home gardener. And there's no better time to talk about compost — than next week.

Questions welcome. All questions are welcome and will be answered. Please designate if your question is to be used in a future column. Direct your queries to Ross Hawthorne, The Intelligencer, Belleville.

DESIGN R2-107
1,254 Sq. Ft.

The home design illustrated could be a vacation cottage or it could just as well be a year-round home. It shows a real ranch style with a genuine western tang and it would be particularly suitable if you happen to own a pie-shaped lot with restricted frontage.

Its 1,254 square feet of living space are just comfortable for municipalities that specify 1,200 square feet as a minimum area.

The plans show the home built with its main floor a concrete slab-on-grade with forced air heating ductwork cast in the floor. This is sometimes the most economical means of high ground water levels or rock close to the surface, often the situation in vacation country. If sheeplir heating is used, the furnace room could become an additional closet for the master bedroom or a generous storage for wood for the fireplace.

Plans for Design 2-107 cost $25 for the first set, $11 each additional set and are supplied by return mail.

Fatalities Decline

TORONTO — Figures released recently by the provincial ministry of transportation and communications indicate that for the first time since 1970 there has been a 5.4 per cent decrease in the number of fatal collisions and a 11.7 per cent decrease in the number of fatalities.

During 1974 the number of fatalities involving bicyclists declined 34.3 per cent from 35 to 23 while pedestrian deaths were down 11.6 per cent from 346 to 305.

Dr. Ian Scott, provincial minister for transportation and communications, says, "these figures are the most encouraging we've had to date. In addition, it's the lowest death rate per 100 million miles travelled ever in the past 10 years.

The 1974 statistics show 12st there were 304,271 reported motor vehicle collisions — an increase of 0.9 per cent as compared to 1973.

Partly reflecting the inflationary trend, motor vehicle — related property damage costs increased from $771.1 million to $985.8 million, while property damage collisions increased from 196,081 to 196,415.

Fatalities involving motorcycle drivers increased by 2.2 per cent from 94 to 96, whereas motorcycle driver injuries increased by 8 per cent from 2,823 to 3,238. Injuries involving bicyclists increased six per cent from 2,278 to 2,367.

Mr. Rhodes concludes "close to 40 per cent of these fatally injured are once again in the 15-to-36-year-age group."

Drivers Compete

Industrial safety in the Quinte district is expected to boost through competition Saturday.

The event was the third annual contest for industrial forklift operators run by the Prince Edward-Hastings branch of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association.

Some 21 operators entered the contest at Dick Ellis Rink, main objective of which was to promote industrial safety in the handling of forklift trucks in local plants, said co-ordinator Ken Fisher of Bloomfield.

The team prize was won by a group from Trenton Steel Storage, for the second successive year.

To gain points, each operator had to demonstrate defensive body around obstacles and marked paths.

Art Association On Culture Tour

What could be more enjoyable, for anyone interested in arts, crafts and the springtime scenery, than a trip through the countryside to visit potteries and art galleries?

Members of the Belleville Art Association had the opportunity to spend a day in this fashion recently, taking a bus tour arranged by Ron Williamson and Barry Whelan.

The first stop of the morning occurred at the new art shop and boutique in Stirling, owned by artist William Killan who moved to the village in December. The Mill Street Studio houses Mr. Killan's own watercolor studio upstairs, as well as the displays of his and other artists' work on the main level.

In addition to the paintings, Mr. Killan sells handcrafted items, has a framing business, and continues to do free-lance color separation for the printing of colored photographs. A full-time artist before he left Toronto,

Mr. Killan guided the visitors around his studio, and gave a brief demonstration of the four-color separation process. Planning to extend his career in the teaching of art, he holds classes in oil and watercolor, and gave the group some experienced advice about drawing.

"Look so carefully at what you're drawing that you feel as if you're touching the object with your pencil as you draw on the paper," he said. "You'll be amazed at how much more you see."

Mr. Killan joined the tour as it continued its progress to the Pearl Rose Studio on Front Street in the village, the pottery studio and shop of Pearl Fletcher.

Demonstrating the making of molds and describing the casting process, assistant Vi Peals showed the group through the work room where shelves of newly-formed vases, ashtrays, cups and figurines wait to be painted with glazes before final firing.

Sheila Lambert, one of the members on the tour, showed two of the hand-painted coffee mugs she has made for her family under the tutelage of Mrs. Fletcher, who teaches extensive courses in ceramics for Loyalist College.

In the village of Lonsdale the bus made its next stop at the home of Harlee Howe, nationally recognized expert in the field of porcelain pottery. Here the women observed a completely different approach, in which the making of pottery has been elevated to an art form.

Mr. Howe, who is Canada's only full-time porcelain potter ("as far as I know", he says), explained how slow and difficult his pottery-making process is.

"But it's because of its delicacy and his challenge that I love porcelain," he said, adding that although the type of work is "new" to this country, it was an important art form 4,000 years ago in China.

Mr. Howe, who has some of his work on exhibit in a small showroom adjoining his home, sells most of his work in cities such as Montreal, and also supports himself and his family by the sale of large ceramic wall pieces.

After lunch on the lilac-shaded banks of the Salmon River in Lonsdale, the group travelled to the home of Ken Wilson where potters Ken and Diane Cumberland have made their home, in an old schoolhouse, for the past five years. Here the approach to pottery is more functional than decorative.

Mr. Cumberland described the "work hard, play hard" life he and his wife and apprentices lead, putting 16 hours a day during their intensive periods.

He showed the visitors his massive propane-based kiln, where he can fire between 200 and 700 pots at a time, following a demonstration of his pottery-making skills. The group then spent time examining — and buying — the hanging pots, bowls and lamps in the large showroom.

The Agnes Etherington Gallery on the campus of Queen's University in Kingston was the tour's final stop. The recently-hung exhibit of drawings by 66 Ontario artists included work by Belleville's Linda Mustard. Also showing at the gallery this month and next are solo paintings by Toronto artist Ron Bolt, that captured the attention of most women.

Tired feet were forgotten during lively discussion about the day's events on the bus made its way back to Belleville at the end of the afternoon.

MARMORA WI

Members of Women's Institutes across Ontario have been asked to submit their views about television programs and their effect on society.

The request was made by Agriculture and Food Minister William Stewart during the recent W.I. Officers' Conference at Waterloo, a report of which was given by delegate Minnie Empey, Hastings North area president. In her report Mrs. Empey said that it has been estimated that by the time a child reaches adolescence he has seen 18,000 television killings.

At the May meeting of the Marmora branch was held at the home of Suzanne Barker.

Mabel Naylor, consumer affairs convener, warned her fellow members to beware of buying chesterfields from a company that promises a free rug with it — you pay for the rug in the long run, she said.

A demonstration of how to make corsages was given at the meeting by local florist Gary Barker.

A paper on "The Golden Cheese Factory" was given by Eva Peel, in charge of historical research, and a questionaire which is to be completed and brought to the next meeting was given out by Grace Warren, the curator.

MARILYN TAYLOR, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Denton Taylor, received the degree of Bachelor of Arts at the convocation of the University of Guelph, on May 22. She will continue her studies in the Faculty of Education, at Doncm McArthur Hall in Kingston. Marylu is a graduate of BCI and U.S.

MIRIAN ELIZABETH BURLEY, daughter of Gerald and Margaret Burley, Belleville, graduated from McMaster University, Hamilton, with Bachelor of Arts Degree in Social Sciences. Susan will be attending a Post-Graduate University in September. She is a graduate of Quinte Secondary School.

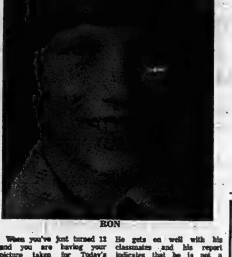
Today's Child

By Helen Allen



RON

When you've just turned 12 and you are having your picture taken for Today's Child, you want to look your best. You make sure your hair is shining clean and choose your shirt and sweater with care. This handsome lad was enthusiastic about the whole idea of appearing here — full of questions about sitting for the photographer, how the picture would get into the paper, how many people might see it, what will happen to the responses.

Ron very much wants to be adopted as he will have a family of his own. But, he knows it is not an easy, at 12 as it would be at 12 weeks or 12 months and he is trying not to build his hopes too high. Many times soon he will be realized and Ron get the mother and father he wants — and needs — so much.

Anglo-Saxon in descent, Ron is healthy and good-looking with brown hair, hazel eyes, clear fair skin and a lovely smile.

After a rather poor start in school, Ron is doing well this year. His teacher says he is an average student with the potential to be above average if he had the motivation. That might well develop if he had a mother and father to take a proud interest in him. Last year Ron's behavior in school left as much to be desired as his academic work but he has changed in this area too. He gets on well with his classmates and his report indicates that he is not a discipline problem.

Ron lives with a widowed foster mother who manages a nice balance between affection and firm control. But she feels, as does his Children's Aid worker, that he needs a father to look up to, love and be loved by and to share activities with. He is good company for he is alert, inquisitive, interested, eager with questions and comments.

Ron will be a fine son for parents who are at once flexible, warm, firm, patient and loving. It will be best if he can be the only child or the youngest by several years.

To inquire about adopting Ron, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station E, Toronto M6P 3E2.

Tea Sets for Boys? Why Not!

Dear Ann Landers: I was very surprised when you raised the question, "Why would anyone give a boy a tea-set?" A tea-set is a symbol of a boy or couple a sexual identity crisis. It's the attitude of parents that does the damage.

In our neighborhood, boys and girls play with tea-sets. They enjoy using them for "pretending" as well as for serving fruit juice and cookies to their playmates. Why not? "cheap cops, robbers, soldiers, sailors, explorers and cowboys" sets don't they?

It's foolish to think that just because a child is a male he will never have to prepare or serve a meal, that he will never use a tool or be helpless in the kitchen. If a parent can't handle the idea of a tea-set for a boy, let him call it a "chow set" or a "mess kit."—Equal Opportunity Mother

Dear Equal Opp Mom: You have a point. On with the chow sets or mess kits. But don't you agree "tea-set" sounds a bit dainty.

Dear Ann Landers: Do you have room for one more letter commenting on the daughter who found pictures of her late father in pornographic poses? I agree there is something perverse in this, but give us a break.

I am one of the fans of thousands of bluenose in this country. For the most part, we have been closely controlled as much to a society that would condemn us if they saw the flip side. Most people see me as a respected, sober and businessman. I'm damned good at all times, My business demands that I travel. At least once a week my homosexual lover comes to town.

We usually go out for drinks, dinner and dancing in one of the gay bars you'll find in big cities. Then we can see everything from screaming faggots to quiet, dignified A.C.-D.C. businessmen, like myself. We didn't ask to be this way. But we are, and we make do.

I've never embarrassed my family and I never will—because they won't know. I have no secret collection of clothes, photos or address books. All my gay connections are stored in my head.

For years your column has been a forum for shedding light on verboten subjects. You don't harm us together in the closet, Ann. Please, we just don't need.—Kansas Kid

Dear Kid: Thanks for a good letter. I understand your dilemma and I sympathize with you. But you can't expect to play the game and change the name.

A married man who meets his homosexual lover every week is not a normal man by my book. I don't like labels either, but when you're living a lie what is wrong with men who behave like that. I must say they are victims of a severe personality disorder.

Dear Ann Landers: My best friend's husband has been trying to convince me that he has exactly what I need to make my life complete.

I've encouraged him as best I can but he continues to be persistent. After all the while, this egomaniac is pretending to be a friend of my husband.

What should I do about the jerk? He's making me nervous.—Dwelling In Fort Clinton, Ohio

Dear Us: Why don't you tell him you're going to eat two people to help you convince him that you aren't interested—his wife and your husband.

Kisses from Speeders Plague Patrolwoman

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)— One of California's first lady state highway patrolwomen says she has had to deal with kisses as well as speeders in her first weeks on the job.

"He stopped forward and I stepped back and he just sort of grazed my sleeve," Officer Vivian Winsor said of a motorist who tried to kiss her when she let him go without a ticket.

Another driver was shocked to see a woman in a California Highway Patrol uniform that he called his passenger out of their car for a look at her, Mrs. Winsor said.

One man mistook her for a boy.

He came into the office, she said, and asked her captain if the highway patrol had lowered its age limit for officers.

When told the limit is don't changed, he replied: "Well, this officer looked only about 16, a young guy. Didn't even look old enough to shave."

The next day when I came into work there was a rose and kisses on my locker," said the 31-year-old Mrs. Winsor, one of six women now patrolling the highways in California.

The patrol dropped its all-male barrier last fall when it allowed 41 women to enrol in its 16-week officer training program. Twenty seven graduated form the training academy in January. One has since left the patrol.

The training program was the first step in a two-year experiment to determine whether women can function as patrolmen.

Lieut. Joe Barnett, who co-ordinated the female cadet program, said it appears to be working.

"The ratings we get in from the field are what we normally get," he said. "Most of them are performing at an average level and a few are above average and below average."

Barnett said female officers have been involved in some arrests and at least one case where a suspect was armed.

"But to my knowledge there has been no major physical confrontation."

One woman officer was seriously injured in a traffic accident as she raced to the scene of a bar fight. She has since been released from the hospital.

Pink Helmets, Protest March Tactics Win Victories for Japan's Feminists

TOKYO (AP) — Mythology says a female goddess formed Japan and started the country off with a matriarchal society, but the ladies found somewhere along the line and it has been ruled by men ever since.

Now a pink-helmeted women's group is trying to reverse that idea. The movement has recently surprised a few company presidents when they marched into their offices with bankers and protest and called management unfair to its wife.

"We should take responsibility for hiring such an irresponsible man that he caused divorce his wife and leave her with no income," said a company official.

The embarrassed employers quickly arranged to give his ex wife income and the pink-helmeted women's liberationists scored another victory.

The group is called Chupi-Ren, Wife about 1,000 members, it is the newest and most radical of women's liberation groups in Japan, where the movement is small and fragmented.

Chupi was formed three years ago to fight for legalization of the birth control pill and oppose abortion restrictions but has expanded its objectives to deal with divorce cases.

To be successful in Japan, said the group's leader and founder, 29-year-old Misako Enoki, women's liberation must understand the close ties between a wife and, not only her husband, but her husband's place of employment.

Company executives often act as go-betweens to arrange marriages and the logical place to take a complaint about a husband, Miss Enoki said, is to his company.

In three campaigns the group has marshalled the housewives with the third awaiting a court decision. In the most recent case, a man carried out divorce proceedings with the aid of his company's personnel manager and without the knowledge of his wife. The wife was to have received no money.

Miss Enoki holds a master's degree in pharmacy from Tokyo University and is married to a Tokyo civil servant.

She said divorced women are at a particular disadvantage in Japan because they are virtually unemployable and he propery shares they are granted are inadequate.

The Japanese system of employment offers few openings for any but the young, who are expected to stay with he company for their entire lives," she said. It is difficult to enter halfway, with the discrimination against middle-aged women."

Companies pay high personnel training costs in Japan with the expectation the investment will result in life long service. They are reluctant to make such investments for women, whom they believe will quit after a few years to be married, and are even less willing to invest on middle-aged women whose working years are limited.

Seventy per cent of Japanese firms have a retirement system and of these, 30 per cent set out mandatory ages at 50 and men's from 55 to 60.

Mandatory protective regulations make women employees even less desirable. Among those specified in the labor standards law are: Overtime for women may not exceed to more than two hours a day or six hours a week; women may not work between 10 p.m. and 5 a.m., and they may not perform so-called dangerous or harmful jobs.

After Chupiren's first company raid and the resulting publicity, a flood of letters and phone calls poured into the group's headquarters in Tokyo from women seeking help.

The color pink used for the militants' helmets, explained Miss Enoki, does not connote helpless femininity in Japan, but is found in expressions like "pink panic" or "pink cinema" to convey the sex object image of women. She said it signifies what women protest.

She said Chupiren is the largest women's liberation group in Japan, adding that although there have been many different groups, they dissolve once their immediate goals are satisfied, rather than unite into a larger organization.

Non-smokers' Anniversary Points to Some Progress

May 31, 1975 will be the 13th annual Non-smokers' Day to be proclaimed by the Government of British Columbia. This day has been widely copied across the country. It actually triggers some people into quitting.

This year attentions is directed to the dreary parade of deaths due to cigarette—caused fires. It's hard to see when the smoker is the only casualty, but much worse when others, including children, are caught as innocent victims.

Fire Marshal's statistics show that either older men or some 48 per cent of domestic fires are caused by careless smoking. Industrial fires due to smoking are no better; are often very expensive to the community.

More obvious is the ugly evidence of cigarette - scarred furniture; smoke-tar-darkened drapes and ceilings are so much a part of the smoker's world that they are accepted like extra jaces.

The non-smoker is paying for cigarette damage unfairly. Although there have been cases where non-smokers got hotel room discounts and lower rents, and life insurance firms that gives special recognition to non-smokers, this still leaves a huge field in which non-smokers are disgusted with damage-prone smokers are in having to pay the same rates.

Have her bring him home to dinner. Help her to see him against her background; then have her free to draw her own conclusions. Some Companies Worse

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has appointed Shuna Appel, a Montreal woman with top corporate and political connections, to spearhead International Women's Year urging male executives of large companies to appoint qualified women to their boards. "Banks and insurance companies are the worst offenders when it comes to equal opportunity for women," Mrs. Appel said.

Education Board Endorses Provincial Study of Violence on TV

By BOB CARSON
Intelligencer Reporter

STERLING — The Hastings County Board of Education here, Monday night, gave its stamp of approval to the provincially-conducted study of violence on television during the inspection of television and movie violence as today's society.

The board endorsed a resolution from the Haliburton Board of Education which calls for Ontario boards of education to petition the provincial government to "exert" territorial action resulting from the commission's work.

Belleville trustee Richard Williams said the board should table the resolution until the commission board representative could present his case. He then said the board should either endorse or "reject" the governments recommendations.

Stirling trustee Donald Williams said he supported the resolution fully but added he too enjoyed some of the Privilege" shows on television. "However, on minds less progressionable than mine it's a different story," he added.

Richard Williams said there is no doubt there is a relationship between television violence and the increased violence in society. He said it's the remedial steps that are important.

Board vice-chairman Miriam Graham objected to the resolution on the grounds that "the government had already done a study on this subject and if they looked hard enough they could find the results." The royal commission is being headed by former cabinet minister Judy LaMarsh.

Donald Williams told his fellow trustees he is concerned as both trustees and a parent about the amount of violence on television. "This would be an excellent opportunity in express concern," said Mr. Williams, referring to the resolution.

Richard Williams said the board "should put its full-weight behind any remedial solutions to this problem." The Haliburton County Board of Education has been making a report from boards of education across Ontario.

Council Approves Longer Hours For Station Street LCBO Outlet

Belleville is to get a self-serve liquor store that will stay open four hours longer each week night.

It won't mean another liquor sales outlet in the city.

Plans of the Liquor Control Board call for converting its Station St. store — one of two in the city — to a self-serve operation. It will be open until 10 p.m. five days a week. Saturdays it will close at the present 5 p.m. closing time.

Council approved the change in hours, although the proposals drew a caution from Ald. Ben Corke.

The councillor said the change would mean two or three additional workers would be hired.

And Mayor Robin Jeffrey said Police Chief Douglas Crosbie had indicated the change would create no problems.

"In fact, it would help in that there are a number of bootleggers in town," said the mayor.

In other communities where similar projects had been ligner short.

The proposal was carried on a recorded vote.

Councillors Corke and Joe Cox voted against; Mayor Jeffrey and councillors Daver, Kinchen and Meeks approved the request.

The provincial government has announced a $70,000 grant to the Moira River Conservation Authority for the establishment of a conservation area in Sheffield Township.

The authority borders Hungerford Township in Hastings County.

Total cost — including acquisition, legal, survey of appraisal fees — is estimated at $105,000.

Yardmen Centre Topic Of Special Meeting

A city hall meeting Friday will discuss the proposed Belleville Yardmen's long-awaited sports centre.

The meeting will involve discussions between city council, the Yardmen and an official of the provincial government's lottery branch.

The session, a closed meeting, was announced by city council Monday by Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

The mayor later said the talks will deal with details of the scheme including what provincial grants are available. Such funding must be channelled through local government.

The session is a sequel of two recent meetings in Toronto between the mayor and provincial authorities.

The mayor said no problems were involved with the project — the major goal of a lottery run by the Yardmen.

Pedestrians A Hazard

Bellevillians are running traffic hazards by indiscriminately crossing North Front St., the busy traffic flow, city council was told Monday.

Ald. Joe Cox said pedestrians are "just wandering back and forth across the street" expecting vehicles to stop for them.

He queried if there was any means of educating the public to the fact there are legal pedestrian crosswalks on the thoroughfare.

There are more than 70 members of the troupe working as performers and stagecrew. The two were charged after two men were arrested near Kingston about four hours after the bank was robbed Friday by two armed men who fled with about $18,000.

Solandt Report Ready

Any persons interested in reading details of the report — tabled in the legislature May 5 and the result of lengthy hearings on environmental proposals — can read a summary report in the city clerk's office, city council was told Monday.

Subdivision Trips Over Curb Issue

Reg. Breault, (right) representing Breault Construction, met with Sidney Township council Monday searching for amendments to a water agreement that includes specifications for curb and sidewalk construction. The township is negotiating with Belleville for provision of services to the development property on the city's western fringe near Harder Drive. Mr. Breault contends the city has no business "dictating" the specifics of the project in areas other than sewage and water lines. Reeve Gordon Wilman (left) said he is optimistic about the project and that paperwork should be concluded soon to permit building start up.

Family Debt Often Problem: Mayor

More Belleville families may be in need of counselling on their financial affairs than is popularly realized, it was indicated to city council Monday.

In fact, "there's a great need for financial counselling," said Mayor Robin Jeffrey. "It's amazing what's going on in the lives of some of our people."

But help for them in debt is already available, a city councillor added.

The Citizen's Bureau now is offering a counselling service on family credit problems, said Ald. Joe Cox.

The remarks were prompted by a letter from the volunteer Credit Counselling Service of Kingston which suggested city hall might be prepared to donate to its operation.

The letter drew some light on the extent of problems posed by families in debt situations.

The Kingston organization said it provides a service for families within a 70-mile radius, and Bellevillians are among those who have sought its advice.

Since 1969 it has been involved with 889 families whose total indebtedness over $2 million. In that time it has arranged with creditors repayments of more than $342,000.

The service charges for families to repay debts while striving to bring order to their finances.

Council took no action on the letter after being told a counselling service was available.

Pay Raised

Payment for service on the Belleville Parking Authority was raised by city council Monday.

Council approved a bylaw increasing the honorarium of the Authority's chairman from $624 a year to $800. The five Authority members was raised from $240 to $300.

Four Seasons Protests Nearby Train Noise

The complaint comes from the Four Seasons Hotel and was aired at city council Monday.

The problem is noise — caused by hooking of freights at unscheduled level crossings in the city on the Canadian Pacific Rail Lines which run close to the hotel along the Bay of Quinte shoreline.

Christopher Davies, hotel manager, recently wrote Four Seasons vice-president Fred Eisen that he was "appalled" by the "prolonged hooting."

The hotel has a major accommodation contract with Bell Canada which operates a training centre on the premises.

Mr. Davies wrote Bell executives say they get an average of six complaints a week about the noise.

He's also sure other hotel guests will "never return."

In fact, one guest refused to pay his bill because of the noise.

In forwarding his manager's complaint, Mr. Eisen reminded council Four Seasons Ltd. is presently considering an addition to its Belleville establishment. He said he did not suggest the noise would be a deciding factor not to proceed. But it would obviously mean more people would be disturbed and increase the number of people hearing the city dissatisfied.

Mr. Eisen offered to appear before council personally.

In the first game of the twin bill, Devolin Motors picked up its first win after a pair of reversals, extending Ellis Jewelers' loss streak to three straight with a 9-6 victory.

Don Holoway's strong one-hit shutout was just what Devolin needed to get the team on track. Holoway struck out 11 and walked two while fashioning his 1-0 effort.

Constellation in Groove And So Are The Lenders

Constellation Carpets and the Leaders proved something in the Belleville Industrial Softball League, Monday, but Post Office and CNR couldn't care a thing.

Chalk up win No. 3 for the Constellation squad. Ken Kermen did it again as the Carpetmen showed they're not about to sample the dregs of defeat by keeping their perfect record intact with a 5-3 defeat of Mead Johnson. Kerik kept the winning habit by posting the victory.

The Post Office-CNR matchup finished in a 1-1 tie with the Posties recording a triple play in the process.

Kerik got the Constellation win on a seven-hitter. He struck out nine and walked two. Fred Davis was the loser, allowing nine hits while fanning two and walking five.

Top for Mead Johnson were Jim Woods, Mark Reid and Charlie Rowbotham with a double apiece.

Bob Wherlyn's double plated CNR's only run as the Trainmen jumped in front in the first inning. Clive Williams plated the Postiers' run with a timely single in the fourth. And that was it.

Brian Plumbe worked the first six innings for CNR with Perry Soule coming on to strike out the side in the seventh. Plumbe issued one walked six and was nicked for seven hits. Both were strong in the clutch. Postiers left 13 men stranded on the bases.

Norm Lockhart went the distance for Post Office. He limited the CNR swingers to just three hits while putting third strikes past seven and walking three.

Brooks Road took command early in the game with Leaders. It was 11-3 after two innings.

John Maloney took over Leaders' pitching for the final two innings and was impressive, fanning three ball. Wayne Marr and Ed Dawson shared the duties in the first five innings.

Tom St. Jules went the route to get the win, throwing a seven-hitter. He fanned seven and walked three. At the plate, he had a trey with a double and a single. Ron Stratton and Lou Rivers each whacked a pair of singles.

Bob Wilkes and Dave Wellman collected two singles each for the Leaders.

Who's in Goal for the Sabres?

BUFFALO (CP) — For the first time in the 1975 Stanley Cup playoffs, Buffalo Sabres face elimination and right now the biggest guessing game in the city is which goaltender will coach Floyd Smith will start in tonight's game.

"I think any one of our three goaltenders can win for me," Smith said Monday after the Sabres worked the decision comes down to Dauphinais, Roger Crozier or Gary Bromley.

Bromley, who played for Smith in Cincinnati in the American Hockey League, has not been action since March 30.

Aside from the goaltending puzzle, Smith said the Sabres are healthy, which is more than can be said for the Toronto Maple Leafs who took a slap shot in the groin in Sunday's game at Buffalo, will be back in the lineup.

Schoenfeld practiced with the Leafs Monday and forwards Rick Dudley and Fred Stanfield were put on the list. Dudley was receiving treatment for a groin injury while Stanfield, 37, is still being bothered by an ankle injury picked up in the fifth game of the Sabres' semi-final against Montreal Canadiens.

The Flyers are seeking to become the first team to win the Stanley Cup championship in consecutive years since Montreal did it in 1968 and 1969.

"The toughest game to win is the last game," said Flyers former Terry Crisp. "We're looking for a tough hockey game.

"We know in order to beat them that we have to come out with a few quick goals and then hold them off. We have to keep taking it to them. We can't lay back.

The Sabres come from behind in both their victories here, spoiling Philadelphia's 2-0 lead in the first period of the third game and a 3-2 lead in the fourth game before rallying for a 4-3 victory.

"We went in alone," said Crisp. "We went in as a different story knowing we blew two games. We knew we could really blow them.

"I'm not taking anything away from Buffalo. They came back hard and tought. But we have to play a real good regular rein when we get a good lead or two."

But if Smith has his way, the Sabres will be stretched their with a three-game deficit in Philadelphia on Thursday.

"I'm not a guy who brags, nothing left if we don't win this next game. We've been in holes before where we were down 3-0 and we have to win now, because if they get that lead it's hard as they can because they're a good team."

Tonight's game will be televised on the CBC national pool, weather permitting, at 8:30 EDT.

Nothing in the book will embarrass the New York Jets quarterback, who turned down a $4-million deal from the Chicago Wind, because "there is nothing to be embarrassed about," she said.

French Line Disconnected

By AL COLLETTI
The Canadian Press

The humiliation of one-sided defeat was too much for Steve Shero to take. The French Connection line had been disconnected.

Philadelphia Flyers bounced Buffalo Sabres 5-1 Monday night if they repeat tonight in Buffalo, the Flyers will remain Stanley Cup champions.

"I hate losing a game like that," said Shero. "It's not the money, it's the pride. You know you can win and you don't win."

All of Robert's frustrations were wrapped into a few moments of bitter comments before the journey back to Buffalo for the sixth game in the best-of-seven National Hockey League final. The Flyers lead 3-2.

"I don't know what we can do," said Robert, "maybe the line will click tonight despite the close checking by the Flyers."

The French Connection is Buffalo's prime scoring line. In final second 121 regular-season goals, and added 100 assists for 221 points.

The Sabres have yet to win a game there since they joined the league in the 1970-71 season.

Coach Fred Shero couldn't have done a better job disconnecting the wings of the French Connection than if he had been a master plumber. The Flyers held them to Martin's one power-play goal in winning their three home games.

The Flyers were geared to handle the French Connection in particular. Shero had all the films he needed of Sabre action from the previous season and assistants to his players, detailing what to do and not to do.

"He's got to be extra conscious because they're playing two lines against us," said Robert. "We had three bad games against the Flyers, Robert one goal and five points, Martin two and Perreault one.

"I don't know what we can do," said Robert, "maybe the line will click tonight despite the close checking by the Flyers."

"I'm not the coach, I'm just a player," said Robert bluntly.

If Robert was completely disheartened, his linemate Martin hadn't given up yet. Martin said that while the line hasn't scored the goals it should have, it has been playing a strong defensive game against the Flyers, allowing only one goal.

That has helped prevent the Flyers from making a runaway of the series.

Martin said he felt "pretty confident" coach Floyd Smith will leave the French Connection intact tonight.

Jocelyn Guevremont, the big Buffalo defenceman, said he felt his shift game as well as the Sabres, it was time for both to make some changes.

"I think he should try something different," Guevremont said of Smith. "Changing up the French Connection, I don't know, say that, Martin changing the membership of the line."

People seem to forget the French Connection has improved defensively and contributed to this series, Guevremont said. "They have only one good scored against them which is very unfair for them three guys."

But, as Martin said, "our job is to score goals."

Injuries Hit Phillies

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Philadelphia Phillies, who were expected to have become instant National League headliners all preseason contenders two weeks ago when they signed sharpest pitch Allen, instantly dropped out of contention Monday night after the loss of two key players.

The Phillies said shortstop Larry Bowa and centre fielder Garry Maddox were being inspected to stay on the disabled list ahead four weeks.

Bowa, who was hitting .337, broke his left thumb on a first-inning dive in the fifth inning of a game Monday night against the Los Angeles Dodgers. He stayed in the game and scored the only run in a 2-0 win over the Giants.

Monday's other National League action saw Cincinnati Reds record a doubleheader sweep and 8-4 over Montreal Expos while Chicago Cubs beat Atlanta Braves 8-4, New York Mets defeated San Diego Padres 4-3, Pittsburgh Pirates whipped Houston Astros 10-1 and San Diego Padres beat Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4.

LARRY BOWA

Louis Cardinals 9-8.

Bowa was hit on the thumb by pitcher Ed Halicki's attempted pickoff throw in first. But Bowa took second on the errant throw and raced home when third baseman Ed Goodson missed a ground ball.

Bowa went to hospital after the game for examination and it was discovered the thumb was broken.

Bowa's absence from the lineup "is what done it," Allen said of the game which snapped the Phillies losing streak and broke the Giants' seven-game winning string. "Never mind how we won it, I'll take it."

The unearned winning run resulted in brilliant performances by Halicki, 1-1, who went the route by striking out 10, giving up only five hits and one run and point relieving Al...consecutive batters.

Manny Trillo's stand-break-the-house run touched off a five-run fifth inning for Chicago and Ray Burris pitched a four-hitter as the Cubs Chicago whipped Atlanta and snapped the Braves losing streak.

Pinch-hitter Steve Garvey blasted a three-run homer in the ninth inning, giving New York his victory over Los Angeles and previously unbeaten Andy Messersmith. Messersmith, 7-1, had allowed only one hit since the third inning.

Pittsburgh's Bruce Kison pitched a five-hitter and Willie Stargell hit a two-run triple and a home-run to help Kison, and end the Pirates over Houston.

Willie McCovey's pinch-hitting single started a three-run rally in the ninth inning as San Diego beat St. Louis.

Frank Robinson Gets His Message Across

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cleveland Indians wanted to boycott their American League baseball game Monday night, instead, they got a pep talk from manager Frank Robinson and then went out and whipped California Angels 9-3.

The proposed boycott was to protest Robinson's three-day suspension. And before leaving the ruins over to coach Dave Garcia, he asked his players to "play as hard for Dave as you have been playing for me."

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland A's beat Baltimore Orioles 8-4 in 11 innings, Boston Red Sox outslugged Texas Rangers 7-3, Kansas City Royals defeated New York Yankees 6-5 in 11 innings, Chicago White Sox beat Milwaukee Brewers 4-3 and Detroit Tigers defeated Minnesota Twins 6-2.

Coach Tom McCraw said Robinson's pep talk "was nothing dramatic." But the Indians, who had dropped 10 of 20 starts and battered four California pitchers for 13 hits, including Charlie Spikes' first home run of the season.

"We played the game exactly as if he was here," said Garcia, "and we hit the ball and we got the runs. It was just easy." Robinson, we don't always play that way."

On the flight to California, the Indians, in a show of unity led by pitchers Tom Buskey and Dick Bosman, chipped a pool into the locker room after the game was over. Robinson is donating out the suspension he drew for a bumping incident with umpire Jerry Neudecker in a game on May 17.

"It made me feel good and I also was deeply touched," Robinson said. "but there was an way I could let them send the pool back."

Oakland's Gene Tenace drove in his fifth run of the game with a two-out single in the 11th inning. It was Baltimore's fifth consecutive setback and ninth in 10 games and dropped the Orioles into last place in the AL East.

Tenace, who knocked in Oakland's first four runs with a single and a three-run homer, delivered his game-winning hit off Doyle Alexander following two-out singles by Joe Rudi and Angel Mangual. Phil Garner also homered for the A's.

Dwight Evans' tie-breaking two-run homer in the eighth inning capped a late-inning exchange of home runs and enabled Boston to open a 1½-game lead over Milwaukee in the AL East.

Evans' fifth home run of the season came off Texas reliever Steve Foucault, who also yielded a three-run homer to Bernie Carbo in the seventh when the Red Sox scored four times and erased a 3-1 deficit.

Frank White's double sparked a second run Wednesday with an unearned run in the 11th inning, scoring a late Kansas City rally that beat the Yankees.

Chicago's Bucky Dent and Brian Downing hit consecutive two-out homers off Jim Colborn in the ninth inning. Dent's first home run of the season broke a 3-3 tie and Downing followed with his third.

Home runs by Don Mayer and Aurelio Rodriguez backed the six-hit pitching of Vern Ruhle as Detroit ended the Twins' four-game winning streak. Rookie Mayer came in the first two innings off Bill Campbell, a relief specialist, who was making his third major league start and first since 1971.

Sun Hides on Renko And the Sky Falls In

Johnny Bench unloaded on a slider hung by Montreal's Steve Renko for a grand-slam homer, giving the Reds a 5-4 win and a sweep of their National League baseball doubleheader.

"I had been impatient all day," said Bench, who stepped in with the bases loaded. "I thought if I could wait and get something I wanted, I try to hit it out of the park."

"The sun went behind a little cloud just before that," explained Bench who said Renko, aided by brilliant sunlight and wacky stadium shadows, "had me mixed up to sleep."

Bench connected for his sixth career grand slam, tying him for the Reds' all-time club record.

The Reds won the opener 4-3 when veteran Wayne Granger's bases-loaded belt pushed in the go-ahead run.

The victory moved the red-hot Reds to within two games of first-place Los Angeles Dodgers and threat Bench into a share of the league leadership in home runs and runs batted in.

A Memorial Day crowd of 52,384 rewarded the 27-year-old Bench with two rousing ovations as Cincinnati ran its home record to 20-5.

It was Bench's 18th homer of the year and boosted his RBI total to 51.

He tied Vada Pinson, who had

six in 11 years with the Reds. Bench is in his eighth season.

Expos manager Gene Mauch responded by locking the news media out of the locker-room between games.

The twin killing gave the Reds a six-game victory streak and their seventh triumph in the last eight games.

For Montreal, it was the continuation of a tailspin. The Expos have lost eight of their last nine games.

The Expos blew a 3-2 lead in the first game and Renko was working on a two-hit 4-0 shutout in the second game when the Reds scored five runs in the fifth inning.

Tyrman, who hasn't beaten Cincinnati since 1968 and is 7-11 over-all against the Reds in-and three successive walks in the seventh inning to allow the Reds to tie it.

Then facing rookie Ed Armbrister, he was charged with a balk by plate umpire Andy Olsen for interrupting his delivery.

"The ump said 'that's a . . .' then he hesitated," said Armbrister. "Just when I thought he had changed his mind, he added 'that's a balk.'" he said, adding that it appeared Tyrman was confused over a sign.

ENGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Ruffian, a filly trained by Frank "Lefty" Pieacy riding, withstood the stretch challenge of Big Band to capture the $118,100 Californian on Monday at Hollywood Park. Canary's Ecstasy took third. Ancient Title, ridden by Jerry Lambert, finished in 1:46 1-5, one second off the race record, paid $4.60, $3.20 and $2.80. How to save money at our expense.
Put it into one of the many Commerce savings accounts, and you'll always collect the benefit of interest.
The question is, are you collecting the maximum interest?
The person who can answer that, is one of our over 1600 Commerce managers. Because it depends on your particular requirements.
Take a for instance. A Chequing Savings Account only earns you 3½%, calculated on the minimum half-yearly balance. So the idea is to keep your balance low there, and take some of your surplus funds and put them somewhere else.
Maybe into a Savings Account where they'll collect 6½%, calculated on the minimum monthly balance. Or perhaps a Term Deposit. Or Growth Savings Certificates. Maybe even a Commerce SMART registered savings plan so you can also benefit from the income tax deduction.
We think now is the time to make the most of the money you have. At our expense.
So talk to your local Commerce manager. We don't think there's anybody in the world with so much money he doesn't know what to do with it.
But if there is, send him to the Commerce.
IT'S YOUR MONEY. MAKE THE MOST OF IT.

Bitter Memories? Not for Chuvalo

TORONTO (CP) — George Iow sacred Chuck Wepner Chuvalo grimaced when was told $500,000 for fighting someone mentioned that a for- called being Ioh Mohammad All.

"I fought Ali twice for less than half that. The first time I got $25,000. The second fight gave me my top payday—$80,000."

The remark suggests the 27-year-old Chuvalo has some regrets about a career in which he fought 91 times. And who can blame him?

He never came close to winning the world heavyweight championship. He never got a piece of the Commonwealth crown. And his main claim to fame was his durability. He was never off his feet.

But Chuvalo is not a man to spend much time fretting about regrets.

"Along the way there were a few good cues for $40,000 and $50,000. I was grateful."

What's more, his considerable intelligence is intact, unaffected by the relentless punishment he endured in his long career.

While punch-drunk former pugs are living on handouts Queen Street, Chuvalo resides in a fashionable part of Toronto where the homes sell for six figures.

He is a partner in a company called the Georgian Group which invests in real estate and mortgages.

ABC's Wide World of Sports has recognized his ability as a boxing color commentator on television and he has been offered a chance to work in that capacity in the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

All of which has earned him enough so that last year he could pay cash for a backyard swimming pool, "escaping the rat race to a cottage every weekend."

Chuvalo and his wife Lynne have five children—Mitchell, 15, Steven, 14, George, 12, Jesse, 10, and Vanessa, 7.

George Jr., is the only one of the four boys with more than a passing interest in boxing. "He boy trains at Dolly Sullivan's gym and gets tips from his dad. But George Sr. knows the kids aren't going to follow his example.

"In boxing you are just a piece of meat. No middle-class kid is going to have that. You have to be poor, like I was. It's still very much a science for the underprivileged."

Hockey is the boys' No. 1 love.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Wednesday, May 28

Be careful that you could miscalculate things today. This would deprive you of what you're very entitled to realize.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Double-check your accounts to make sure information from others is right. Today may be a bit on the gullible side today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your best course again today is to stay at arm's length from associates that are not your direct responsibility. You'll be in better workings are needed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Avoid nobby ideas if it crops where your reputation or image are on the line. A thoughtless remark could have lasting impressions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A task you've been postponing because you thought it would be a snap will be tougher than you thought it off. Do it now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're prone to take risks today with things that aren't yours. A friend will be angered if you meddle in his valued relationships.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you want your household to run smoothly today, you and your mate will have to decide who the chief bosses is. It's no day for committee rule!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is not the day for you to make excuses to shirk responsibility, but that's just what you're apt to do today. Watch it!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're still unrealistic regarding how you manage finances. Unless some form of loss is likely unless you change your ways.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 20) A person who's seeking your favors will not be inclined if you make-out your words. Tell it to him hard and straight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you're short with your family, if you make a mistake or an oversight, you'll gain respect by admitting it. It's tough, it's difficult.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Though you have a strong craving for joy spending now, resisting the urge will make it better later when payments come due.

PROOF OF FACT

Direct evidence is proof of facts by witnesses who testify to acts done or words spoken as distinguished from circumstantial evidence which is called indirect.

Until you see your doctor again and decide avoid heavy lifting and straining at once.

Delaying necessary surgery could be courting trouble, and only your doctor is determined whether surgery is necessary and how much of a factor time is.

The hernia can become larger, and it could strangulate, which would require immediate time in the area. In short, improperly attended to, the hernia could create a rather normal situation for you.

A support can give temporary relief for a small hernia, but at best it is only a partial answer and can be a troublesome nuisance, especially in the hot climate where you live.

Your general health would be a factor, too, in deciding upon surgery, particularly at your age. But other side of that same coin may dictate immediate surgery. Right off hand, from your side in my galaxy.

I am apprised the possibility or urgency of surgery has not been discussed with you. It undoubtedly will be during your next visit to the doctor. Then sooner you settle the matter the better.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a relatively bad case of acne which is concentrated mainly on my face and neck. Most of my face at least three times a day and I do not have access to clinic capsules. How effective is the Clinic?

I watch my diet carefully but I'm afraid of getting heavy. My condition actually has worsened in the 1970s. Do you have any suggestion.—C.E.

Tetracycline is often used effectively in some cases of acne. Small amounts of the drug suppress inflammation of the infected areas.

The coming sunny summer months should bring you some relief if you continue with your diet. Keep up with the good work and visit your doctor recommended.

Dear Doctor: I am a fairly overtreat acne without giving up this a problem. Is there any natural hormonal changes the body goes through during puberty?

A final shot about your diet. You may find that a few small adjustments will help. The A and C vitamins can be helpful in some cases. Vitamin B injections can have an effect too, although there may be a temporary worsening of the condition at first. Vitamin A acid applied locally is sometimes effective in selected cases.

If I haven't made it abundantly clear, I suggest you do so before attempting any medication therapy on your own. You can prescribe the supplements that the doctor prescribes if you furnish knowledge of your condition.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When the price of sugar went out of sight, I decided to try sugar substitutes.

Two or any diabetic friends that use substitute should be used only if a doctor prescribes

Body Heat Used To Warm House

COPENHAGEN (Reuter) — An experimental new house, partly deriving its energy requirements from the body heat of its occupants, is Denmark's latest technological contribution to energy-saving efforts.

Among the first fruits on offer is heat was that of Queen Margrethe of Denmark, she visited the visiting monarch from neighboring Sweden, King Carl Gustaf, inspected the house during a visit to the Danish Technical High School.

The single-storey, six-room house draws 30 per cent of its energy from the sun and by means of a heat-absorber plate on the roof. But its real innovation is its method of heat insulation and a two-way recovery system."

Inside the house is the sun such energy sources as heat from electric lights, television sets, kitchen appliances and human bodies. All these provide 50 per cent of the heat energy.

The full all-tree system provides an average of 77 gallons of hot water a day even in the winter months when the sun barely rises over the Danish horizon.

KEEPS WATER HOT

A heavily insulated, 1,850-litre concrete tank under the house maintains a minimum water temperature of 45 degrees Celsius in winter and up to 85 degrees in summer.

The sun's energy is captured by a 48-square-metre plate attached to the slanted glass roof of the house. The glass-encased area separating the two rectangular storey areas of the futuristically designed house.

An electric pump circulates water from the heat trapped on the plate. Warmed is required temperatures, the water is pumped through radiators in air ducts running along the ceiling. By the mostly, cold air sucked in through the air ducts from outdoors is warmed up.

The ducts maintain a constant flow of freshly heated air, bringing indoor temperatures to a steady level 21 degrees, despite near-freezing conditions outside.

A sliding door in the glass roof and a few of the action can be left slightly open to keep the temperature from rising higher.

The solar energy collector, which automatically shuts off when the sun is not shining, is based on technology developed in the United States for extensively used in Denmark's climate.

Under the heat recovery system, designed by Danish engineer Carl Ekvardt, a professor at the Danish technical high school, heat is extracted from the warm air that has already passed through the house is sucked back into the air ducts and used to heat up fresh outdoor air.

The house is equipped with insulated shutters that can be closed at night to prevent heat escaping. The entire heating system is balanced to ensure that each room receives the right amount of heat and energy sources. It includes a small computerized machine that keeps constant track of the temperature and knows how often doors and windows are opened.

A young couple with two children have been invited to move into the house this autumn for a test in a day-to-day basis under customary living conditions.

Ekvardt's system may go a long way towards freeing Denmark from its dependence on oil, virtually the country's only energy source.

The average family house in Denmark now uses 2,000 gallons of oil annually. Price increases last year caused the country a record balance-of-payments deficit of $1 billion.

It is unclear, however, that the houses will appear on the market. Estimates place current costs, with solar collectors, with heating system, at about $13,000.

Hernia Operation May Bring Woes

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Doctor: I am 65 years old and have just had a diagnosis of hernia. Should I have it operated on, or can I delay the operation a year or so without much risk? What precautions should I take in the meantime? Should I wear a support, curtail my activities?

How should I handle the situation?—Mr. M.V.A.

Until you see your doctor again and decide avoid heavy lifting and straining at once.

Delaying necessary surgery could be courting trouble, and only your doctor is determined whether surgery is necessary and how much of a factor time is.

Tetracycline is often used effectively in some cases of acne. Small amounts of the drug suppress inflammation of the infected areas.

The coming sunny summer months should bring you some relief if you continue with your diet. Keep up with the good work and visit your doctor recommended.

Dear Doctor: I am a fairly overtreat acne without giving up this a problem. Is there any natural hormonal changes the body goes through during puberty?

A final shot about your diet. You may find that a few small adjustments will help. The A and C vitamins can be helpful in some cases. Vitamin B injections can have an effect too, although there may be a temporary worsening of the condition at first. Vitamin A acid applied locally is sometimes effective in selected cases.

If I haven't made it abundantly clear, I suggest you do so before attempting any medication therapy on your own. You can prescribe the supplements that the doctor prescribes if you furnish knowledge of your condition.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When the price of sugar went out of sight, I decided to try sugar substitutes.

Two or any diabetic friends that use substitute should be used only if a doctor prescribes

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

See if you can figure how expert South managed to go down at three notrump. We'll give you one clue. East and West were also experts.

Now for the play. South held off twice with his ace of hearts. He discarded a diamond from dummy and East dropped his ace of diamonds.

Then came four rounds of clubs. East got rid of another diamond on the fourth club. He could do this with no worries because West had thrown the 10 of diamonds on the third one.

East's two diamond discards were important since he could not have afforded to throw a spade. For the key and winning discard was the card West pitched on the last club. He hung on to the number of his friends and threw one of his spades.

Now South led a spade. Dummy's ace of spades, noted the fall of the queen from West, fluently — with control in hand carefully and came up with an original holding of three spades in the West hand. Clearly the third spade was the 10 card so South led a spade to ♡— wing for his eighth and last trick.

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♢	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	2 ♢	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 N.T.	Pass	4 ♠

You, South, hold:

♠ A K 9 5 4 ♡ A 9 4 3 ♢ A 9 8 7 6 ♣ 5

What do you do now?

Genesis Quotation Overruled

TORONTO (CP) — A former California narcotics officer Monday lost an appeal against a five-month jail term for a new growing marijuana.

The Ontario Court of Appeal rejected an appeal by Jack Brandeis, 35, of the Kirkland Lake, Ont., area. He already has spent six months of the nine-month sentence in jail.

Brandeis's appeal was based on the Genesis quotation, which is upon the face of all the earth, and every tree, in which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed; to you it shall be for meat."

Brandeis contended that the passage is God's word and the Original Code should not intersect.

During his trial last year, the court overruled Leho, Chapter 25, Verse 25, which stated: "Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's, and unto God the things which be God's".

Brandeis, a member of rural commune, appeared in court Monday in a white T-shirt with the lettering "Legalize Marijuana—Cheaper One."

In 1969, he was convicted in California of possession of marijuana.

Given 2 Years

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Mr. Justice Ethan Bithet of the Ontario Supreme Court sentenced Edward McGaughey, 25, of Oshawa, Ont., to two years less a day in penitentiary Monday in connection with a shooting incident in Oshawa.

McGaughey pleaded guilty April 21 to a charge of possession of a dangerous weapon in connection with the incident last Jan. 31.

Several shots were fired at an automotive centre from a house directly across the street.

Insurance Head

TORONTO (CP) — Sidney Handleman, Ontario minister of consumer and commercial relations, said Monday Murray A. Thompson has been appointed superintendent of insurance and registrar of loan and trust companies for the province.

Mr. Thompson joined the ministry in 1968. He is a graduate of the University of Toronto and Osgoode Hall law school and has experience in legal and financial matters.

Award Made

TORONTO (CP) - A Welland, Ont., woman who organized a spring clean-up campaign in her community received the Environment Ontario Award of Merit on Monday.

More than 4,000 Welland residents participated earlier this month in the campaign to gather litter.

Robaris Gets Less

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is paying former premier John Robaris less to head a royal commission on the future of Metropolitan Toronto than it is paying Judy LaMarsh to study violence in the media.

A senior government official said Mr. Robaris, who started receiving submissions last week on the way he wants to govern Toronto, is being paid $45,000 a year as a one-man royal commission — $180 a day for about 250 working days in 1975.

Miss LaMarsh, paid $250 a day to head the royal commission on violence, would make $62,500 if she worked a full year on the study.

Retain Forms

TORONTO (CP) — Coroners' forms for donation of human organs after death should remain attached to new Ontario drivers', licences, the ministry of transportation and communications said Monday.

The ministry said in a new release a number of drivers have mistakenly detached the forms and mailed them to Queen's Park.

"It is next to impossible to trace drivers who have mailed in their consent forms because they contain no return address, ministry officials said.

Anyone who has mailed in the form can obtain a replacement from any driver examination centre or ministry office in Ontario.

Use Flashers

TORONTO (CH) — Heavy trucks will be directed to use four-way flashers as they climb grades on highways 400, 401 and 402, the Ontario ministry of transportation and communications said Monday.

No Decision

TORONTO (CP) — Treasurer Darcy McKeough said Monday that Ontario government has reached no final agreement about borrowing from the world funds to finance expansion of Ontario Hydro.

He told the legislature the province still is negotiating and is looking at other money markets.

Mr. McKeough said he visited Europe last week and found the province has "several options open."

The treasurer said any borrowing outside Canada would likely be on behalf of Ontario Hydro rather than for general funds for the government.

Hydro has estimated it will need $22.8 billion in finance on a plan to 1982.

Welcome Waiting

MOSCOW (AP) — Two cosmonauts docked their Soyuz spacecraft with a research station which has been circling the earth for five months, climbed inside the ghostly ship and found a welcome sign left by the previous residents. Tass news agency said Monday when Soyuz 18 commander Pyotr Klimuk and engineer Vitaly Sevastyanov climbed aboard the Salyut 4 orbiting laboratory shortly before midnight, they encountered a sign inside the door: "Welcome to our common home." The inscription was left by the Soyuz 17 cosmonauts, Alexei Gubarev and Georgi Grechko, who returned to earth Feb. 9.

Today's Consumer Is Distrustful

TORONTO (CP) — Today's consumer is sceptical and in many instances distrustful of the food business, Dr. Mel Mayer, a professor at Toronto's York University, said Monday.

As a result, the consumer tomorrow will be pragmatic, organized and unpredictable, he told a seminar sponsored by the Grocery Manufacturers of Canada.

He said that "the picture of the friendly man behind the meat counter is dimmed each time he turns out to be neither friendly nor there."

"The promise that a supermarket 'really cares' is undermined each time the shopper is hassled by phony production-out-of-stocks or interminable check-outs."

He cited rich groups as the consumers Association of Canada and government-sponsored complaint-handling agencies such as Box 99 and media programs in active consumer crusaders as examples of the consumer concern.

"These types of organizations could have implications for the food industry," he said. "And this could lead to a role of consumer advocate, public ombudsman and market reformer as consumer views are mobilized."

Government Fails Business Must Lead

TORONTO (CP) — The president of Bristol-Myers, Canada, said Monday the federal government has failed as leader in the fight against inflation and business now must accept the role.

Robert McNair told a seminar sponsored by the Grocery Products Manufacturers of Canada that because of an energy crisis, inflation and labor strife, the country is in its most serious situation since the depression of the 1930s.

"At this juncture comment, no one has any real understanding of how we are going to get out of this mess," he said. "But until fundamental issues are solved, the stop-and-go, short-term approach is ludicrous and doomed to failure."

He said that people are afraid now, as they were during the depression.

"People fear for their jobs when thousands of industry employees have already been laid off and they fear their financial resources won't keep up with prices," Mr. McNair said.

"Senseless bickering" between federal and provincial governments over resources should be ended and a national energy policy should be established, he said. "Until we can come to grips with the cost of energy we will not totally come to grips with the cause of inflation."

Mr. McNair said the federal government tells the public management and labor to show restraint without demonstrating any itself.

News Missed

TORONTO (CP) — Harry Boyle, vice-chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, says the Canadian mass media are so concerned with political and national issues that they often miss what is going on in the country.

Mr. Boyle, who is also chairman of the Canadian Broadcasting League, said Monday in an interview that the media are doing for leisure and in outlying areas of the country.

Canadian-made Cars Have Defect Also

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for General Motors of Canada Ltd. said Monday if a safety defect exists in the power brake system of certain GM cars manufactured in the United States, Canadian-built trucks would also be affected.

The U.S. transportation department said Sunday it has tentatively determined that a safety defect exists in some 1973 through 1975 GM cars.

The alleged defects are found in the power brake vacuum check valves, supplied by the Delco Moraine division of GM, the department's National Traffic Safety Administration said. It said failure of the check valves might lead to loss of the power brake assist feature.

J. R. Hamilton of GM Canada said he believed the same components were used in manufacturing both Canadian and U.S. GM models in question but did not know how many Canadian cars might be affected.

The U.S. safety agency estimated that more than 10 million vehicles originally equipped with these vacuum valves are still in use.

Faulkner Denies Grits Split On Time-Reader's Digest Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — There is no serious split in the government caucus over the Time-Reader's Digest bill, State Secretary Hugh Faulkner said Monday.

Three members of the governing Liberals have publicly opposed the government bill to remove the current tax privileges advertisers in the Canadian editions of Time and Reader's Digest. Two also criticized advertising on United States border TV stations broadcasting into Canada, four small foreign-owned weekly newspapers and a few small periodicals.

Mr. Faulkner said in an interview that he does not think any more of the 146 Liberal MPs will break with it.

"Even the Liberals who spoke against the bill and expressed concern primarily about its possible implications and I think we can deal with that in committee."

He blamed the Progressive Conservatives for the party's legislative progress. "It (the bill) was introduced in the summer and April 15 and probably will not travel far on the path to legislative approval until late in the fall.

Neither Mr. Faulkner nor Mitchell Sharp, government House leader, would predict when the bill will be back in the House for debate. It was debated Monday, then dropped for an unspecified time.

"We have a lot of legislation to get through and the Conservatives are stonewalling us," Mr. Faulkner said.

Mr. Sharp accused the Conservatives of delaying the bill "because they do not want to declare themselves."

"They are trying to put off the inevitable," Mr. Sharp said in an interview.

But Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin said the party will be solidly against the bill when it comes up for second reading — after routine approval in principle.

"My information is that there is a cabinet and caucus split — both for the bill and for killing all the drag he can," said Mr. Baldwin.

A number of Liberal backbenchers were opposed to the bill "but they don't have been kept quiet."

The bill is held in public whether the Liberals will keep on fighting or drop it." Mr. Baldwin said.

Liberal Ralph Stewart (Cochrane) recently joined the criticism that the bill will be without merit, He said a number of Liberals oppose the bill.

Conservative Hal (L—Vancouver Kingsway) recently issued a statement attacking the bill and accusing the government is being "bribed" by a small but powerful American-based anti-American clique" It also would "abrogate the right of advertisers to enjoy free enterprise system to select the media through which to advertise."

Harold Herbert (L—Montreal-Viaverdi) has said the bill will most certainly would end the French-language edition of Reader's Digest.

"If we believe in the objectives of the bill, we may get a situation whereby Time will continue when we should be closing it and Reader's Digest will be unable to continue although it is the better of the two corporate citizens," he recently was quoted as saying.

About 3% employee-owners of Harpell's Press, operated as a co-operative in Mr. Herbert's riding,a re engaged in printing operations for Reader's Digest.

The Conservatives continued to hammer away at the bill in the House Monday.

"Culture has to evolve with time."

Sinclair Stevens (PC—York Simcoe) said press freedom will be jeopardized if Parliament approves the bill. He criticized the government's power to decide "who should be treated as a Canadian magazine."

"We are getting into difficulty when the government states that magazines should have a content that in some arbitrary way meets the requirements of the department of national revenue."

A Canadian magazine is defined for tax purposes as one having control by Canadian interest from a foreign magazine. Those with less than 75 per cent Canadian content are regarded as foreign and the government will make individual decisions on publications falling between those figures. It also must be 75-per-cent Canadian owned.

Heath Macquarrie (PC—Hillsborough) questioned whether the bill is the best way of advancing "a healthier Canada" than in the realm of publications.

"I have always been wary of anything that looks like the erection of moats and curtains along the 49th parallel."

Publisher Will Sue

TORONTO (CP) - A Toronto publishing and educational testing company said Monday it will sue the Ontario board of education for copyright infringement. In a case involving computer retrieval of test material.

Thomas Nelson and Sons (Canada) Ltd. said company lawyers have been instructed to launch the suit this week in Ontario Supreme Court.

Davis Ducks Havrot Queries

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis ducked questions from Opposition members and reporters Monday about whether the Progressive Conservative party he heads will continue to support Pat Havrot (PC—Timiskaming) in the next provincial election.

Mr. Havrot, reconvicted Saturday by his local riding association, was fired last week from his post as chairman of the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission for derogatory remarks about Indians.

Replying to questions in the legislature, the premier told Opposition leaders to "worry about" their own candidates.

He later told reporters he had no comment to make about the Timiskaming candidature.

Opposition leaders were quick to respond with sharp criticism.

Evel Knievel Is Hurt

LONDON (AP) — Evel Knie-devil hit the dust at 100 miles per hour Monday night accepted the claim of his aides that he had set a flying motorcycle mark of 160 feet.

"In two or three days, Evel will recondider the decision not to ride again," said his publicity man.

Air Fare Increase Okayed

OTTAWA (CP) — The third-day increase in domestic air fare increases by Air Canada and CP Air in two years was cleared by the Canadian transport commission Monday.

The commission left untouched the higher fares filed by the two national airlines last month. The increases take effect today.

Air fare increases submitted by Pacific Western Airlines and Eastern Provincial Airways (EPA) also were sidetracked and will be effective today. But the commission rejected an EPA proposal to reduce fares on its St. Anthony-Gander and Charlottetown-Fredericton routes.

The commission said that those routes are already subsidized by the government and passengers should not have to pay even more to operate them.

Higher rates proposed by Nordair, Quebecair and Transair were left unchanged by the commission. The Nordair and Quebecair increases will be implemented June 1 and the Transair fares June 8.

Overpayments To Farmers Recovered

OTTAWA (CP) — "A very high amount" of overpayments made to wheat farmers last year has been recovered, Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, told the Commons Monday.

He rejected suggestions from Paul Yewchuk (PC—Athabasca) that letters advising farmers of the overpayment had been held up until after the July 8 general election.

"Many farmers received the letters before the election," said Mr. Lang.

Mr. Yewchuk had asked whether it is still government policy to collect the overpayment from farmers.

The minister said the money is being collected by usual collection procedures.

Democrats Unhappy

Tax on Oil Imports Is Doubled by Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats who control Congress are criticizing President Ford's latest actions to force up petroleum prices, but they cannot guarantee the votes to substitute their own energy program.

As a result of the president's action, announced in a national television broadcast Tuesday night, the price of gasoline is expected to increase by at least 13 cents a gallon (nearly) sometime. And, if Ford has his way, the price will go up another six cents or more in the next 12 to 36 months.

The president chided Congress for failing to approve a broad energy program, as he recommended in his State of the Union message last January. Therefore, Ford said he will:

—Impose a second $1-a-barrel tariff on imported oil, effective June 1. Although the tariff is designed to reduce consumption of foreign oil, the extra $1, like the previous $1 tariff, also is likely to be added by oil companies to the 40 per cent of domestic production that is exempt from price controls. This would mean an extra $25 million a month in oil company profits reflecting both dollar increases. Ford also has proposed a windfall-profits tax on oil producers.

—Levy a 10-cent-a-barrel tariff on imported petroleum products, such as gasoline and heating oil, also effective June 1. The effects of this increase will be felt most in Hawaii and on the East Coast which are heavily dependent on oil refined abroad.

—Send to Congress next month a plan for rationing fuel and controls from domestic oil prices, probably over the next 18 to 24 months. Such a move, which could be blocked by Congress, would raise consumer prices for petroleum products by at least six cents a gallon.

In addition, Ford administration officials say they expect exporting countries to raise the cost of their petroleum products by 10 to 15 per cent this autumn. Such increase would add up to 1½ cents to a gallon of gasoline made from crude imported by the U.S.

Ford said he had delayed the tariff increases in March and April after congressional leaders had "promised to come up with a program better than mine." But Congress had failed, in four months of trying, to pass an alternative plan.

Democratic legislators said the higher petroleum prices would set off a new round of inflation and further dampen the economy, while Republicans said the failure of Congress to act left Ford no choice.

Henry Jackson (D-Wash.), chairman of the Senate interior committee and a key influence in energy matters, said the president's scheme to force energy conservation by driving up fuel prices would cost the average U.S. family $800 a year. The burden would fall most heavily on the poor and middle-income groups.

The Democrats "haven't done anything to discourage the importation of foreign oil," said Russell Curtis, reading Republican on the Senate finance committee. "They do not seem to recognize the danger to our economy in permitting domestic production to go down and increasing our dependence on foreign sources."

Meanwhile, Al Ullman (Dem.-Ore.), chairman of the House of Representatives ways and means committee, predicted ultimate approval by Congress and the president of his group's conservation package.

That plan would raise the tax on gasoline used for pleasure driving by as much as 12 cents a gallon and impose a stiff tax on gas-guzzling cars.

But freshman Democrats in the House and key Democrats in the Senate are opposed to that concept, while House leaders are just as skeptical of a Senate-passed bill imposing mandatory fuel-conservation standards on the states.

Despite lopsided majorities in both the House and Senate, it appears doubtful that Congress can impose any energy program that does not have Ford's approval. Democratic leaders would be hard pressed to put together a two-thirds majorities needed to override a veto.

Third World Aid Vital: Kissinger

PARIS (AP) — U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger said today industrial countries must accelerate their economic growth and help the Third World—or face dangerous and destabilizing political pressures.

Kissinger addressed the Paris Conference on International Economic Co-operation and Development (CIEC).

Kissinger said the 1973 oil embargo is an example of "misused economic power" that threatens the political stability of the West.

He said the United States will seek "like pressure tactics," but also will try to accommodate the legitimate developing countries.

After talks with a moral claim to world leadership—as well as the newly rich countries must contribute to easing the plight of the poorest countries.

For who can deny that every economic problem—stagflation, inflation, high energy prices, food shortages—his them hardest?"

Meanwhile, Algeria gave a cold reception to a French proposal Tuesday for the creation of international consultations on raw materials and personal problems of developing countries.

Under his proposal, such consultations would operate regularly from any future international conference. But Algeria indicated it would not support the prices of oil from other raw materials with less bargaining power.

The official Algerian news agency said the proposal "means that the U.S. still is trying to manoeuvre to dominate not only the countries of the Third World but the West-ern industrialized as well."

Kissinger was offering "an American initiative" during accession of only American guests," the agency said.

Valery Giscard d'Estaing, French president, also urged Kissinger and the 19-country International Energy Agency (IEA) still want discussions on oil only.

Who Is Ready to Work?

Ford Off To Europe For Talks

WASHINGTON AP — President Ford, embarking on his first Europe mission since taking office, said today he goes as a representative of "a confident and united American-ed America determined, with its allies, to safeguard our vital interests."

"The United States seeks international co-operation not confrontation," the president said in a statement prepared for delivery before leaving on a six day journey to Brussels, Madrid, Salzburg, Austria and Rome.

"I pledge to work unstintingly to advance our common interest with Europe as part of our broader efforts to achieve better co-operation with all countries," Ford said.

The U.S. "is equally determined to reduce the chances of conflict, to increase co-operation and to enhance the well-being of Americans and all peoples.

"I am confident that together and each meeting will contribute to these objectives."

In Brussels, the first stop, he will join Stan Kissinger and Kissinger for a two day NATO summit. There he plans individual meeting with leaders of all 14 NATO countries. French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing does not plan to attend the summit, but will meet with Ford in the Belgian capital.

Mackasey, Union Leader Have Different Views

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said Tuesday regular workers, who returned to work Monday morning in Montreal after a one-day kick-in, showed indications they were ready to work at a "reasonable pace" with casual, non-union workers to clear up mail backlogs.

But a spokesman for the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, national president Jean-Claude Parrot, said in Ottawa that Montreal mail sorters were escorting casual workers off their job by threats of what past, even though they were being watched by riot-equipped police.

In another development Tuesday, the union applied to the federal public service staff relations board for appointment of a conciliator.

The appointment of a conciliator is one of the necessary steps required under the law applying to bargaining for federal employees, before workers can legally strike. However, Mr. Parrot says the union wants to put pressure on the government to get contract talks moving especially on the technological change issue.

Mr. Mackasey told reporters the recent one-day protest by workers in Montreal and other centres in which some members booked off sick were illegal when a legitimate illness could be put.

He said it would be their responsibility to prove they were ill before they would receive money. Union officials argue the onus of proof is on the employer to prove workers are not sick.

Building Maintenance Bylaw Likely to Get Fall Study

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

City residents will likely have to wait until next fall to see council's revised edition of a municipal minimum maintenance bylaw, Mayor Robin Jeffrey said Tuesday.

The subdivision liaison committee composed of members of council and representatives of the Quinte Home Builders Association — met Tuesday to thrash out 38 items of home builder complaint.

The central criticism of the document drafted by city manager Wilbur Purcell is that it attempts to cover maintenance standards for both residential and commercial structures.

Because different standards are required for residential and commercial structures and because regulations pertaining to each are dispersed throughout the document, home builder Reg Brandt said, "it's difficult for the average person to determine what his responsibilities are in respect to this bylaw."

City alderman Ken Corke, chairman of the committee, said a preamble to the document explains what areas apply to each building division but that council would consider segregating housing from other building areas in the proposed bylaw.

Mayor Jeffrey said comments from the meeting will be studied by city staff and, if necessary, the bylaw will be revised.

The basic document, first proposed some months ago, is an amalgamation of similar documents from Kitchener, North York and Scarborough.

The mayor said a special meeting of council will be called in June to give the proposed bylaw a final screening before public meetings will be called, giving individuals an opportunity to speak on the bylaw.

She said "likely, the public meetings will have to be held in September once the holiday period is over," giving all residents a fair chance to comment on the document.

Several community agencies and civic departments have been asked for input and these responses will also be used in the final editing of the bylaw, the mayor said.

Once passed, the bylaw will serve to ensure buildings are maintained in a safe, clean condition. The bylaw will be enforced by the city's building inspection department.

Laotian Students Release Americans

VIENTIANE (AP) — Student demonstrators ended their occupation of the United States compound in Vientiane today, freeing two marines and an American civilian who had been confined for a week during anti-U.S. demonstrations.

The three appeared to be in good condition as they emerged under an agreement in which U.S. authorities bowed to demands for an end to U.S. Agency for International Development (AID) mission by June 30.

Sgt. Donald Wilburn, 23, of Osgood, Ind., at first refused to roll up the metal protective gates of the building where he had stuck by his guard post.

"Everybody's got to get in here in coun up except my boss," he said later, referring to the non-commissioned officer in charge of his unit. Wilburn finally relented for U.S. Charge d'Affaires Christian Chapman.

The other American released were Sgt. Roger Murphy of Evanston, Ore., and William Darden.

Darden was identified as a civilian electrician.

Along a corridor inside, Wilburn had spread an incendiary powder which he said would have gone up in thick smoke when lit.

Asked how he spent his hours of confinement, Wilburn took out a paperback Bible and thumped it on a desk.

Wilburn and Murphy, 22, jumped into a station wagon and drove off to get their first regular meal in a week.

Davis Calls on Turner for Expansionary Budget

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis, calling on federal Finance Minister John Turner to put forth an expansionary budget next month, Tuesday announced formation of a special committee to "study the ways and means the province of Ontario can employ its level of expenditures."

He told the annual meeting of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce that sound government "requires a continuous review, not only of the efficiency of all programs, but of the continuing effectiveness of established programs."

Representing the private sector on the committee, which will report to cabinet in the fall, will be Maxwell Henderson, former federal auditor-general, Robert Bartlett, president of General Foods Ltd., and Toronto broadcaster Betty Kennedy.

Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough will act as chairman. Other members include Eric Winkler, chairman of the cabinet management board, and Randall Ivey, James Fleck and W. A. B. Anderson, all senior deputy ministers.

Mr. Davis said the provincial government has held spending to a minimum, given escalating demands upon it to expand services, "but the pattern is literally clear to be sure that the demands will not lessen; on the contrary, they are bound to increase."

"Looking to the future, I believe action is necessary now to find ways of ensuring that these demands will not become an unnecessary burden on ..."

The premier said Ontario is doing better than its trading partners and better than most of its provincial partners in terms of unemployment, "but we should not find too much solace in that fact."

OTTAWA — Three Belleville area firms have been given federal contracts worth more than $50,000 the department of supply and services has announced.

The largest award, valued at $97,800 was given to Ray McIntosh Seats of RR 2 Millbrook, to provide the Indian and northern affairs department with fishing boats.

Wrather Patelia Contractors Ltd. of Trenton won a $96,000 contract for window cleaning services at CFB Kingston and Greenwood Reserve. Ltd. of Belleville was given $15,000 to deliver steel beams, channels and rods to the Indian and northern affairs department.

They were among 315 unclassified contracts worth $10,000 or more that were awarded by the supply and services department to Canadian companies during the week ended May 14.

Former Principal Joins School Board

A 30-year-old former Belleville public school principal has been appointed acting superintendent of education services with the Hastings County Board of Education.

Don Lockyer, currently completing his doctoral studies at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education (OISE), will temporarily replace superintendent of special education Ted Morris, who leaves next fall for England for a year's sabbatical.

In making the appointment director of education Eric Runacres said the board in 1975 established a need for a co-ordinator of professional development with a major thrust toward curriculum development and instruction.

Mr. Lockyer has been taking his doctoral studies in the area of curriculum-instruction and the role of professional development. Mr. Runacres said the board believes Mr. Lockyer can fill these needs of the board.

Authority to Examine Purchase of 411 Acres

FRANKFORD — Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority officials will soon look into a possible purchase of 411 acres of land on an island in the Trent River west of Glen Ross.

The property is adjacent to an existing conservation area — the 325-acre Keating Island.

Directors over cost and purchase of the land asked here Tuesday with an agreement to turn over initial negotiations for the property to an authority advisory board.

Authority secretary-treasurer Bill Lawson told the executive the authority may not be able to buy the land this year because of budget limitations.

He suggested the authority negotiate with owners Ray and Ralph Keating for a long-term option to buy and long-range financing of a purchase.

The Keating brothers own two separate parcels that jointly consist of 125 acres of agricultural land, 200 acres of woodland, and the remainder swamp and marsh.

The land has approximately five miles of shoreline and was termed an "ideal conservation property" by authority vice-chairman Russell Mills Tuesday.

He said purchase arrangements initially broached by the Keating brothers were reasonable, as was the asking price.

It was agreed the authority would make an attempt to knock some dollars off that price.

In opting for a long-term option of purchase, the authority executive recognized potential difficulties financing a possible portion of the $97,000 set aside for property acquisitions in the 1976 budget was fixed. Mr. Lawson said part of the funds may still be put to use on the Proctor House property in Brighton, an executive decision still pending.

Litter on Main Street Angers Picton Mayor

PICTON — Picton mayor Donald King this month stressed the importance of a clean town and urged active support weekend filtering but Main Street on Monday morning still reflects litter bugs at work.

At the regular session of town council held May 19, Mayor King observed, "The Streets of the town are in very poor shape on Sunday morning."

"I want Picton to be a clean town," he added.

Mayor King has spoken to the chief of police asking that anti-littering bylaws be enforced.

He has also addressed the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce urging co-operation from merchants in an effort to help town streets. Businessmen endorsed his suggestion.

Monday morning a new business directory erected on the lawn of the Armory Hall showed evidence of pranksters at work as letterboard had been transposed. Newspapers and other litter littered the lawn where grass and weeds are thriving uncut.

Across the street in front of the post office two new signs designating five minute parking have been wrapped around the heads of the parking meters.

A beer bottle was found against the curb as a footnote to the weekend.

Mr. Main Street store front sidewalks were swept clean, however, Saturday with Mayor King's appeal for a cleaner town.

Picton police chief Charles Fletcher says no charges of littering have been laid so far this month and describes this silence as "a very difficult case to nail".

He observes paper is particularly can be dropped without ready detection of the littering.

He has also addressed the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce urging co-operation from merchants in an effort to help town streets. Businessmen endorsed his suggestion.

Dry Spell May Kill Newly-planted Trees

FRANKFORD — General technologist Jim Kelleher told conservation officials Tuesday he expects the mortality rate among young trees planted in Cramahe Township this year to be higher than the normal 20 to 25 per cent.

He attributed the higher death rate to an "abnormally" dry spring season.

The tree-planting program was undertaken as a pilot project by the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority this year. At a total cost of $2,000, some 40,000 red and 600 red pine and white spruce were planted on 30 acres of land in north-central Cramahe.

All trees were planted by last week on five separate 10-acre plots at the headwaters of Cold and Salt Creeks.

Mr. Kelleher told the authority executive the program has been embraced enthusiastically by the landowners. He said he has been asked for additional signs with which to post the planted areas "to warn snowmobilers that they're not to be planted in the area".

The program is aimed at cutting down soil erosion during run-off periods and siltation of stream beds, as well as establishment of creek water flow.

Results of the pilot project are not expected for some 10 years when the trees will have grown enough to provide some drainage and water control.

Park Conduct Improving

OUTLET PARK — Robert Davison, superintendent of Outlet Provincial Park, says there is an "overall" improvement in conduct at the park this year and attributes the change to closer surveillance by the park's law enforcement officers.

During the recent Victoria Day weekend, everything "went very well" he reported, despite the fact that the park was filled and 600 campsite families and individuals were turned away.

White Chapel Opens For Special Services

PICTON — Worshippers will meet Sunday, June 1 at 3 p.m. at the White Chapel for an anniversary service maintaining this historic Prince Edward landmark as the oldest building of Methodist origin in Ontario used exclusively for church meetings.

The congregation of The Old White Chapel was established in 1792, the year following the death of John Wesley, founder of Methodism. The chapel itself was erected in 1796 and has been maintained essentially in its original state since that date.

A provincial government plaque erected on the chapel grounds in 1929 confirms the little church as an historic site.

It was constructed on land donated by Stephen Cooper, a Loyalist from New Jersey who settled with his family in Hallowell Township in 1787.

The White Chapel was the first Methodist Church in Prince Edward County and one of the earliest in Upper Canada. Built by William Moore and financed through local subscription, it has been maintained as a place of worship longer than any other church of Methodist origin in Ontario.

Although regular services have not been held there for many years, once annually on the first Sunday in June an anniversary service is conducted.

This yearly service is popular not only among local residents but with many out-of-county persons who return to Picton especially to attend. A small burial ground at the rear of the church contains the graves of many of Prince Edward's pioneer settlers.

This year's service will be conducted by Reverend Robert Shewin of Picton United Church.

His Birds Control Pests

WEST LAKE — In an era of insecticides, at least one man still relies on Mother Nature for insect control.

Since erecting apartment houses for purple martins in his back yard at Douglas Oaky, West Lake, says he has never has a need for sprays or other insecticides. Mr. Caley has four acres of asparagus and he says the annual attack by the asparagus beetle has ceased to be a problem. The populations of mosquitoes on his premises, he adds, is almost nil.

"It's far better than wasting money on sprays", commented Mr. Caley.

The purple martin, famous for its colonial habits and predation on flying insects is a common swallow in Prince Edward County.

Future of Greenbelt Worries Authority

FRANKFORD — Conservation officials here fear Trenton council's recent move to stop land purchases in the town's greenbelt is motivated by a desire to use project funds to buy another property in Trenton.

Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority chairman William Carter said here Tuesday he fears the greenbelt project will "go down a sideroad". If a expressed concern that it would never be completed if funds were diverted.

Conservation Area Board chairman Art Wartman told the authority executive that Trenton has verbally requested the authority to use part of funds allotted for a greenbelt purchase on another property.

He recommended no action be taken on the request until the authority knew where it stood legally.

The undisclosed parcel of land is reportedly valued at $250,000 and is available only this year. The dollar figure represents a major chunk of the $117,500 set aside in the authority's 1975 budget for greenbelt acquisitions. Trenton provides $30,000 as its share of greenbelt costs.

Mr. Wartman said he fears the town could in future return to the authority again and again and ask for diversion of funds and "nothing is left for the remainder of the authority".

Discussion over Trenton's latest request (an advisory committee) has indicated it will become more deeply involved with development in the Trent River Valley.

future course of land acquisitions.

Property purchases from roughly south of the I.G.A. Supermarket on Front St. were frozen May 1 when council requested an indefinite curtailment.

At the time, Mayor Bob Patrick said the move was taken to permit council to reassess its possession in face of possible involvement by CORTS in land purchases.

CORTS (Canada - Ontario Regional Transportation advisory committee) has indicated it will become more deeply involved with development in the Trent River Valley.

Canada's Labor-Management Split Shows Parallel with the United Kingdom

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Perhaps the best way now to assess yet again the slow British descent into the abyss of economic disarray is to compare the British plight with our own.

On the surface, there doesn't appear to be much reason for making the parallel, except that many important activities within the general Canadian economic scene look somewhat like those of Britain in the mid-1960s.

With our 11-per-cent inflation in comparing to the British rate of more than 20 per cent, we appear to be on the same road, if further down it, from the British.

The kind of events which parallel Britain include the growing inability of management and labor to agree on almost anything except they both want what they perceive to be their slice of the economic pie.

The bumper-to-bumper settlements made by post office unions, backed by strikes in so many walkouts, that their members will "break off sick" is identical to the style used in the British unions beginning in the 60s and continuing until now.

One wonders if the only reason industrial workers in this country have not used the tactics on an excuse for the work-out is because we don't have it in Canadian practice.

As for Canadian management, they, like Britain's what their opposite numbers were saying in print in the business and management press of British of a decade ago.

It sounds like the private grousing that goes on today in the select clubs where Canadian industrialists gather.

Economists speaking we are indeed on the same dismal road as British, delayed only because we have applied Keynesian policies of cyclical and anti-cyclical budgeting less vigorously than the British.

But "boom-or-bust" is implicit in Canadian industrial policy thinking. If there is an alternative, two generations of political economists in government and industry haven't found it.

However it is socially speaking where the crisis becomes perceptibly and tragically in Canada. It may not take Britain of the 30s.

When various elements in society can't agree on how to divide its cash other, especially when a concerned politician attempts to make them do so, the side has begun.

Finance Minister John Turner's highly-commended efforts to get something new and innovative from industry and labor largely failed. That failure wasn't of his making.

It is a sense of national responsibility about something we see at times which we lack and which the British also have let slip from them.

Even the politicization of the professions, the campuses and the unions show parallels with Britain. In Britain the Labor-Trade Union movement has a social result of the different in context, but identical in purpose to the politically, hard-line unions of British days as the engineers.

What is lacking as the political level is the style down the middle between British Tories who believe growing state controls are dangerous and trade union intransigence are evil and British Labourites who say the first is essential and the second is a lie.

The NDP (our socialist party), may never get political power, but on many Canadian issues for a long time the very fact are going to be Trade-Union issues which can split a nation are here just the same.

Sporting Facilities

The Belleville Yardmen have a circular in the mail promising householders that plans for the Quinte Sports Centre are "progressing favorably."

The Yardmen envisage the project being ready for use early in 1978. Facilities will include an ice surface suitable for both hockey and figure skating. Also in the plans are facilities for outdoor tennis, bowling, skating, a playground, as well as an indoor pool and gymnasium.

With the circular there is a form listing these and various other potential facilities and citizens are asked to list their preferences. These include such provisions as a gift shop, restaurant, community hall, and squash courts. Alternative membership proposals are also listed.

Meanwhile, the on-again-off-again subject of another municipal arena for Belleville has come to the fore again.

Council is talking once again about such a possibility, regardless of what the Yardmen do. It should be remembered though that much of what the latter's concept incorporates is of the kind a municipal arena might envisage also. Duplication should be avoided, unless it should be determined there would be a demand for similar facilities in both.

The cost factor will be a vital one in whatever is planned at the municipal level. But there is the future to consider; any such complex would be for this as well as ongoing generations. In these circumstances, half-measures would not be enough.

In any event, the psychological moment in this matter has come. Council must take it from here.

Bank Robbery Reflects Rise In Crime Rate

The bank robbery in Stirling was the second involving a small community in these parts in recent years.

There was the one in Consecon a few years ago and the suspects in that one were picked up in Vancouver. They had reached the end of the line, but it showed just how potentially successful such a robbery could be.

It is a lesson for banks, wherever they are located, to be watchful. Good work by local citizens was responsible for setting police on the trail of the Stirling robbers.

The public at large must be on the alert also, not to mention the police. Prime Minister Trudeau, who maintains that "short" line on capital punishment when he was in Belleville last week, might do some more thinking on the subject — especially with the release of preliminary statistics for 1974 which show that the rate of violent crimes increased by 5.7 per cent in Canada over 1973.

Putting a Spoke in It

Members of Hastings-Prince Edward separate school board have been asking themselves a question that has a parallel at the national level:

Can a handful of employees disrupt government and board policy, to the detriment of the majority?

It appears janitors in the board's employ object to working on nights, as New Year's Eve, thus making it difficult for the board to permit community use of schools, say for a dance.

And the question in the minds of some board members' is, is effect: "Who is in charge here — the board of the janitors?"

One member suggested hiring a cleaning service if the janitors did not want to work, but then, who is going to pay for this? Certainly it should not be laid at the door of separate school supporters.

More and more today, it is every man for himself.

The Ups And Downs Of Doctor K

A Career in the Civil Service

Ottawa Journal

The last people to believe that the British public service was not the best in the world would be the British themselves, thought, they, British. Well, the Economist, at least, apparently thinks that the French may just be better organized. "What is wrong with the British civil service is not in its elitist recruiting system," the Economist says in an article defending that system, "but the late retiring age and the lack of swapping between the civil service and private business."

The article continues:

"Ask the French. They recruit and train the very brightest, then everybody moves in and out of public service into the business world at a relatively young age. Three quarters of those run a brilliant government machine also run the country. There is a place for powerful, clever civil servants, particularly in a time of political turmoil. There is no place for dumb ones, who simply entrench the power of the civil service without actually using it to good effect under either good ministers or bad."

The trouble in Canada is that some of the best public servants do move out into the business world at a relatively young age — and never come back.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

May 23, 1925

40 YEARS AGO

May 23, 1925

Local collectors swalling the new regular series of postage stamps expected to be issued by the postal department at Ottawa on June 1, will not be able to procure them until about Thursday. The new stamps from 1 to 5 cents, with the exception of the 4 cent one, will contain the picture of King George in uniform. The ten cent one, the picture of a Royal Canadian Mounted policeman; the 13 cent one, that of the Charlottetown Confederation Assembly in 1864; the 20 cent a picture of Niagara Falls; the 50 cent a picture of the Parliament Buildings, Victoria; the 4 cent a picture of Atmall Flight; the 30 cent a Special Delivery Express and the $1.00 a picture of the Champlain Monument. The new issue is expected to be in as great demand as the Jubilee stamps for the first few days.

50 YEARS AGO

May 23, 1925

Manufacturing operations began this morning at the new plant of the Canadian Concrete Products Co. Rapid progress has been made in the erection of the buildings, the laying of the extensive mains and installing of platforms and the installation of boilers, machinery, engines, motors as well as a derrick of ten-ton capacity. R.R. Harrison, general manager, expressed himself as pleased with progress.

Later he was questioned by two Irish reporters about his membership in the civil rights movement, which he acknowledged, and about his participation in the IRA, which he denied.

"After, they threw me in the truck and for the first time I was beaten by three or four men. Handcuffed, I was hard on the side of the head and I faked it.

"Next thing I knew, I was in the helicopter again. Then back to Long Kesh. Then the interrogation. I kept thinking, I'm broken, I'll never be able to sit round the fire with my children again.

"The police-room was unbelievable. The interrogation-room was always freezing. They then made me sit on the floor, crouched straight, with a sharp rod in my back and a cavalry's twill trouser that was worse than the wall. I could hear other people screaming and someone kept saying he was dying.

Suddenly after eight days, it ended. Shivers was told the authorities could "get nothing on me and I was being transferred to Crumlin Road Jail to be tried.

Before leaving Magilligan, he was weighed. "I'd lost 12 stone."

"On the way out they made me strip again so they could take pictures of me. I was the worst of all because my whole body had shrivelled to nothing. It looked like they had taken my manhood.

"We flew to the Crumlin Road in a police helicopter but this time the Special Criminal Branch man[illegible] cared a lot and we were given his hand gently on my arm from time to time to see how I was. Even though I hated his guts I was grateful.

In prison, Shivers kept trying to climb up the wall of his cell when he fell asleep and psychiatrists and doctors were called in.

"Someone told me my wife was worried about me because nobody had told her I was in prison. I was at first time I remembered my wife. Then about 10 days later, and when she's now out, she insisted."

Shivers has received almost continuous psychiatric care since he was released from Crumlin Road in October, 1971.

"If they come for me again," he said, "I'll try to run so they'll shoot me and that'll be the end of it."

Paper Recycling Curbed

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Mr. People's distress at the cancellation of the recycling operation in our city is hardly understandable. It is shared undoubtedly by many other communities who have been placed in the same position, and is felt perhaps even more keenly by many paper mills whose lack of orders has forced them to curtail drastically their purchases of paper for recycling, adopt a shorter production week and consequently lay off a number of their employees.

There is absolutely no point in blaming the Ontario Government and the Ministry of the Environment. Factionally, both bodies realize that it is impossible to legislate the greater usage of paper for recycling or the consuming mills have no orders for which the recycled fibre can be used.

The greatest users of paper for recycling are the paper mills, i.e. those who are primarily engaged in the production of paperboard for the packaging industry. These mills are virtually one hundred per cent recycling mills now. In other words, they use little or no pulp. Mr. Peoples will agree that it is difficult to improve upon 100 per cent usage.

Mills engaged in the production of other types of paper, e.g. the Master corrugating medium, etc. are receiving a very much greater paper in the production of their product. It is technically feasible. There is much improvements in this direction.

It is simply unjust and untrue to infer, as Mr. Peoples does, that mills have suddenly decided that they prefer to "destroy trees in the forests" rather than recycle. In fact, the statement borders upon the ludicrous. Given the ability to choose, it would be economic madness for paper mills to use virgin pulp, in preference to "secondary fibre", as paper for recycling is more properly known.

The blanket statement that "the pulp and paper industry have been allowed to poison our water and air and destroy our Natural Environment" is so exaggerated as to be quite unworthy of comment.

While not being blameless, in common with other types of industry, the pulp and paper mills are spending a great deal of money to correct those bad situations which have been permitted to develop.

Two points must be made clear:

First, any reduction in the usage of recycled paper by mills does not, mean a corresponding increase in the usage of virgin pulp.

Second, the current situation in the pulp and paper industry is a very real reflection of the current economic recession which is plaguing Canada, the United States and many other countries.

To ignore these controlling factors and to blame the situation on the Ontario Govt is less than honest.

The current lack of demand for waste paper for recycling will be corrected when, and only when, the present economic recession is over and the public will achieve this reversal — not by legislation, government or conservation programs. The law of supply and demand will be still the supreme controlling factor.

Lenin's Long-term Strategy

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

In 1921 Lenin wrote these prophetic words: "As a result, of my own personal observation in Europe and in America during my recent stay there, I am convinced that the so-called democratic countries of Western Europe and America are not capable of understanding the contemporary state of affairs and the real relationship of forces; we must regard these states as dead when it comes accordingly . . . the capitalists of the entire world, and their governments in the rush of conquering Soviet markets, will close their eyes to realities, and will thus become blind deaf mutes. They will open credit which will serve as a support for the Communist party in their countries and will provide us with the materials and technology essential for our future victorious alliance with our suppliers. In other words, they will be working to prepare their own suicide."

In 1967 Brezhnev said that Victorious Socialism is the construed as signifying a change in the fundamental objectives. Detente is simply a tactic, as it always was invented the old end — the worldwide advance and ultimate victory of Communism." What he meant was that the end should be ended, not in the interest of peace, but because it hampers the "objective laws governing democratic forces" which in the words of Brezhnev "themselves even though they are not directed democratic but static and totalitarian.

No Break For Seniors

Belleville City council, has decided of present cut to take any action on a request to grant pensioners an education tax exemption.

It was the second time the appeal — for a $180 rebate on education taxes — has been made to council by the Belleville Branch of Pensioners Concerned Canada Inc.

Council's decision this week came after a review by city manager Wilbur Purcell of present tax credit systems and other assistance available to the elderly that reduced the cost of municipal property levies.

Frank Morrell, city treasurer, reported that if elderly owners of average residences took full advantage of available Ontario tax credits they would pay a "very insignificant amount" of local property taxes.

Health Councils Endorsed

The Ontario health ministry has strengthened its push for development of district health councils.

The ministry's area planning co-ordinators are being asked to concentrate on organization of such groups, Belleville city council learned this week.

The explanation came in a letter from W. Alan Rackley, assistant deputy minister, outlining the regions for which the co-ordinators are responsible.

The number of such officials was increased from three to five earlier this year.

Learning The Natural Way

Baker Elected to Top Association Position

STIRLING — Board of education officials learned here this week its manager of purchasing Eva Baker has been elected president of the Eastern Ontario District of the Purchasing Management Association of Canada.

Miss Baker, who works at the Ann St. Education Centre becomes the first woman president in the eastern Ontario district and only the second time a woman has been president of any district in Canada.

The eastern district covers an area from Brockville to Trenton and includes people purchasing responsibilities in industry, commerce, government, education and other institutions. Miss Baker was also the first woman in Canada to earn the designation of professional purchaser.

Two U.S. Teachers Learning At Education Outdoor Centre

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Student teachers Pamela Sager and Mary May came all the way from Michigan to be bitten to death by mosquitos — but that's part of the education in the outdoors.

The two student teachers, Pamela 22, and Mary, 21, both attend Alma College at Alma, Michigan, north of the state capital of Lansing. At their own expense they have spent the last four weeks in Belleville at the R.H. Frink Outdoor Education Centre, sponsored by the Hastings County Board of Education.

Under the direction of Wayne Brooks, co-ordinator of out of school learning for the board, the two teachers work directly with elementary school students at the outdoor centre. The centre was opened in 1973 and is used as a 365-acre outdoor resource facility for schools in Hastings County.

The outdoor facility is located about 3½ miles north of exit on Highway 37. It is a food cross-section of landscape and geography in south Hastings.

Mr. Brooks, who was in charge of any out-of-the-class learning, said the program for the American student teachers now is in its second year and he hopes it will continue to expand. The teachers live in the Belleville community.

Mary, who will be a senior student at Alma College next year, said she is interested in the program because she wants to be able to lead her own classroom on field trips and handle nature studies.

Pamela, who has graduated this year, said she wants to learn as much about outdoor education as possible in order to work with youth groups. She does not want to enter teaching the classroom directly.

Both teachers were generally impressed with the outdoor educational facilities in Hastings County and both enjoyed working with the students. They will graduates with Bachelor of Arts in Education. Pamela already has a degree in political science.

Barbershop and Brass Concert Planned for Tweed

TWEED — Residents of Tweed and district will have an opportunity Sunday to hear an unique combination, barbershop singing and brass in concert, at the auditorium of the Tweed-Hungerford Senior Public School.

The Bay 'of Quints Chapter of Sweet Adelines Inc., is made up of 44 members from Belleville, Trenton, Brighton and Picton, who meet every Monday evening at 8 p.m. at the Bridge Street United Church, Belleville. They have been singing together since September, and hope to be chartered soon.

Sweet Adelines Inc. is an international organization for women who enjoy singing barbershop harmony. The local director is Aileen Speed and the president is Mary Lou Leterky.

The Concert Brass was started in 1973 by several Belleville and Trenton musicians, who wanted an opportunity of playing music, tastefully and with color and precision. These musicians also wanted an outlet whereby they could bring aspiring brass students along, and the success of this group gave them the perfect vehicle.

Trustee Questions Rising School Cost

STIRLING — Trustee Donald Williams thinks one ministry of the provincial government should be financially responsible for the demands of another ministry.

The statement was made here this week when the Hastings County Board of Education learned the estimated cost of the new Foxboro Senior Elementary School has jumped from about $660,831 to just over a $1 million due to additional work required by the ministry of the environment.

Business superintendent Ken Wormald pointed out that the ministry of the environment required additional the bed area at the school silo because of soil condition. This jumped the cost of the project by about $36,000.

Additional fire safety alterations also accounted for the cost of the school by about $6,000. Mr. Williams said the board should not be financially responsible for this additional requirements set down by another ministry of the provincial government.

The ministry of education would have approved the working plans when the original project was started, Mr. Wormald said he would convey Mr. William's feelings to the government and press for additional grants to cover the cost.

TODAY IS KIWANIS PEANUT DAY!

"WATCH FOR THE PEANUT MAN"

Ann Landers

'Doggy Bag' Embarrasses Date

Dear Ann Landers: Last night I had a dreary date with an attractive young man who is a successful attorney. He took me to a fashionable (and expensive) restaurant. As the waiter was about to clear the table, my friend asked him to please put the remainder of his meal in a bag so he could take it home to his dog. I began to know the gentleman doesn't have a dog.

I confess I was embarrassed when the waiter reported the secret a little cheap. Upon leaving the restaurant we ran into friends. I felt very self-conscious wondering whether or not they noticed my escort was carrying a paper sack.

Please give me your views on this matter.

Dear Member: I applaud your friend for having the courage to do what he thought right. The amount of perfectly good food that restaurant garbage pails is sickening—especially now, when one out of many patriotic pictures of starving children in other parts of the world.

Your only criticism of your friend is that he revealed the dog. I'm sure the waiter couldn't have cared less. In fact, some of the most elegant restaurants in the country encourage "toting." They even supply the paper bags.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm the mother of three teen-agers who read your column faithfully. You have printed several letters from parents of overweight daughters. You always advise the mother to "quit nagging" . . . say nothing about what the girl eats or how she looks." You insist it's an emotional problem that should be worked out with a physician and a counselor.

My problem is the opposite. It's a 16-year-old starver. The girl is skinny as a rail—always watching calories and she looks like a scarecrow.

I've tried everything to get her to eat but she insists she's never hungry and says nobody should force-feed a dog. What should I do? I don't want to be like that!—Sadie Myself is M.D.

Dear M.D.: My advice to you is the same as to mothers who have overweight daughters. It's in your letter to me. I hope you find it and take it.

Dear Ann Landers: Contention dictates that the man is supposed to make the first move, but what if the woman has that certain feeling before he realizes he's interested in her?

I met Kurt at a party and fell for him immediately. I decided to be open and honest instead of coy and subtle. I invited him to come over for an evening of conversation. He accepted and we had a pleasant time.

Kurt never called me back, but we've bumped into each other several times. He always says, "Well have to get together soon." But he's never done anything about it. I've seen him a couple of classical concerts in the mail. No response. Please, Ann, tell me how can I win him over? He's not just another guy to me.—Serious

Dear S.: You've tried the aggressive approach and it didn't work. Now take the blue and cool it, honey. There's no way you can "win over" a man if he's not interested.

CONFIDENTIAL to Lonesome: But I Love Him: Tell me! Get conclusions are an important part of every speech. Especially when they come close to the beginning.

Doris Clark

Be Swift to Love, Hasten to Be Kind

"Life is short and we have not too much time to gladden the hearts of those who are travelling the dark way with us."

"Oh, be swift to love! Make haste to be kind."

—Henri Amiel.

The above words were artistically inscribed on a colorful poster, tacked up on the wall of The Pastoral Institute of Calgary, and I read them there a few weeks ago.

Mr. Mullen, the Director, was kind enough to have them copied for me. They contain, in a large part, the philosophy which makes the Institute tick.

Where is a lot going on there! Personal counseling, family and life education, community development, professional research, to name just a few.

Here, also, is to be found the Personal Acquaintance Service, which has developed many ways of bringing lonely men and women together, often bridging great distances in finding new friends to match one another in the important aspects of living — interests, age, religion and other things.

They can help one elderly woman to find another elderly woman with whom to travel, congenially. Ad infinitum.

If you want to use their correspondence service for finding new friends, write to The Pastoral Institute, 1134 - 8th Avenue S. W., Calgary, Alta. T2P 1J8.

Dear Doris: After 27 years of marriage, I don't love my husband like I did before. I learned that he is always interested in those trashy magazines, and used to go to see those stripper girls.

How can I trust a husband like that? I wish I could have my loving husband.

Help Me.

Dear Reader: Perhaps you do have a really loving husband. Don't you suppose that your sexual relationship with him is a light-hearted, giving spirit? If he is in a sense, deprived, he may feel compelled to turn to this sort of entertainment for release.

I do not condone strip shows or pornographic magazines; but don't take it so seriously. Instead, work at being more attractive and loving yourself. He is not unfaithful; but you might just drive him into the arms of someone more sympathetic.

Dear Doris: I am 15. My parents are always nagging me to get a job. I had an opportunity to work at a drive-in restaurant, but my parents wouldn't let me because it would be night work. I hate home and want to move out because they're old-fashioned. What can I do?

Fed Up With Old-Fashioned PARENTS.

Dear Fed Up: Not old-fashioned; concerned. Night travel at your age has terrifying hazards.

Would they agree to letting you baby-sit near home, or working Saturdays in a local store? Why not work on those possibilities? It's no picnic being on your own; forget it for now and be glad you have parents who care about your safety.

(Doris cannot begin to answer all your questions in the column. To make sure of your reply, remember to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, sending your letter in care of this newspaper.)

Quick Retorts for Put-Downs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gentlemen. How can you, a mother, go out to a daily job? Answer: By dialing a phone and dialing.

Question: How do you a nice girl like you get married? Answer: Dress back. Or, alternatively, I haven't asked anyone yet.

Vancouver Status of Women is holding a series of bisexual meetings to help women cope with these and similar stagger-ing verbal combinations with quick put-down. Jo Lazenby, a member of the group, is helping to compile a booklet of them.

Sample: To a man who says when you know there's nothing wrong with what you're doing, he said: "The children are the put-downs, is usually made to you when you're a little off-guard.

"You're on the defensive; you sputter something out; a few days later, when you think about it, you can come up with a really good retort.

"We're trying to get as many women as possible to relate the sort of experiences they've been faced with."

She said the group is looking for a cure of 39 to 72 pertinent as well as telephoned contributions, to find answers to put-down comments.

"You don't want the response to crush the person, but sometimes you just need one sharp line to show that you don't like it.

"We try not to counter a put-down with another put-down. You don't want, after all, to go after a misogynist with an ego-maniac. But then neither do you want a By-sweetie in your head when somebody rubs on the common."

Ms. Lazenby said women face embarrassing and sometimes degrading comments and questions in normal, educational and employment areas in particular.

"A lot of times humor helps defuse a situation. But people who challenge you usually don't really want a proper explanation—a quick answer can be the best defense.

"If you answer belligerently, both of you sometimes raise your voices without solving anything."

Discrimination Strong

SASKATOON (CP) — Fewer women than men reach the upper echelons of the education administration, says Dr. Sybil Shack, former president of the Canadian Teachers' Federation. She told a lecture there is a "strong societal bias against women in administrative positions, especially when that means they will be directing men."

Will Skip Lunch

TORONTO (CP) — More than one million secondary school students across Canada have been asked to give up their lunch for one day, May 7, for Project Canada Fast. Organizers, the Canadian Save the Children Fund, say proceeds collected by the students will be donated to the fund.

Finding Mates Becomes Difficult, Russian Men Seek Matchmakers

By LYNNE OLSON

MOSCOW (AP)—An old Russian woman was on trial for accepting money as a matchmaker. One of the witnesses, a young woman, was asked by the judge why she had engaged the old woman's services.

"Where else should I look for a bridegroom?" the girl replied. "At work? One only works at our factory for every four girls. In the park? Guys don't come there to look for brides."

Like their American counterparts, young people in Soviet urban centers often have a hard time meeting prospective mates.

What can be done to solve their predicament? A number of Soviet social scientists are growing intrigued by a West-ern invention — match-making by computer.

Although computer dating has never been tried in the Soviet Union, it has been established in several Eastern European countries, such as East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Bulgaria.

The idea was briefly brought up here in 1970, when several newspapers advocated the establishment of a computerized matchmaking bureau.

But the Communist Party newspaper Pravda ended the discussion in 1971 by saying the proposal "does not fit the real society" and "did not include one word about love."

In refuting the idea, its adversaries have been careful to explain that the computer would only be an aid and that love would still be all-important.

One criticized the need for a wider choice of prospective mates. "What kind of life does a person have today? He and his apartment, streetcar and work. His circle of acquaintances is limited. And the bigger the city, the more complicated."

In the 1959 census, there were 12 Soviet women for every 11 men. In some towns, particularly textile centers where women have more of the jobs, the ratio jumps as high as 17 women to 10 men.

The pros and cons of marriage are not as heavily debated in the Soviet Union as they are in North America. There's still a belief that every person ought to get married if he truly wants to be happy.

But a number of bachelors and spinsters in this country lie, disagreeably increasing. A recent New York Times dispatch quoted a 28 year-old man as saying: "I'm 28 years old and unmarried. There are tens of thousands of grownups who haven't found mates.

"The is not only a sea of personal disaster but also a social disaster. It means there are tens of millions of unborn children, tens of millions of future ex—to be more accurate—not future workers."

Russians take the idea of computer matchmaking much more seriously than did their North Americans, who considered computer dating services a fad.

Here, computer technology is considered king. Many believe a computer can solve just about any problem, including those in personal and social areas.

Mushrooms Boast Lots of Flavor, Few Calories

Lots of flavour, low calories — what more could you ask from a food favorite? You get them from mushrooms — and a plus. Though relatively expensive, they go a very long way.

Fresh mushrooms can be stored for several days in the refrigerator. Remove from cellophane, brown bag and spread on a tray or plate. Cover with a plastic dome cloth. If mushrooms are packaged in a perforated box, remove plastic wrap and store in refrigerator covered with a damp towel. Do not wash or wipe mushrooms before storing.

To prepare mushrooms for cooking or cooking, just wipe with a damp cloth and trim the stem ends. If you feel you must wash mushrooms, select firm, unbruised, they're so absorbent, rinse quickly in cold water and dry individually and at once. Do not soak or soak.

For a real local bargain, try buying mushrooms at the low price of two pounds for $1 at Thanksgiving Campbell Soup factory.

IODE Emphasizes Concern for Children

FREDERICTON, N.B. (CP) — The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire (IODE) will emphasize concerns for children this—its 75th anniversary—year, Mrs. R. W. Adams of Toronto, IODE national president, said during opening ceremonies of the order's annual meeting Saturday.

Mrs. Adams also outlined the various programs of concern for children being carried out by IODE members in the country's provinces and territories.

The properties, she said, include work with children with physical disability, research for parents with inherited diseases, and a travelling library with books for native children.

The IODE contributes $1 million each year in its various projects which include education, service, and citizenship in this country and in underdeveloped countries.

Lieutenant-Governor Pauline McGibbon of Ontario presented a $5,000 graduate-level mature-student scholarship Saturday night to Mrs. C. E. Mackay of Willowdale, Ont.

The one-year scholarship will be used by Mrs. Mackay in her work towards a doctoral degree in clinical biochemistry at the University of Toronto School of Medicine.

Later in the evening Prince Charles, who is participating in military training exercises at nearby Gagetown, met briefly with the national executive of the IODE.

Fresh mushrooms seem to float in shimmering lemon gelatin, tucked in an chopped parsley, cucumber and olives.

African Poverty Produces Genius In Utilizing Trash

CAPE TOWN (AP) — With a smile, five children and an income of 30 cents a day, what would you do about a leaky roof?

Poverty stricken Africans have found the same answer in the shanty towns of Cape Town as they have in the slums of Kinshasa and Lagos and other capitals across the continent.

All they needed is a quick trip to the rubbish dump and the instincts of an ageless inventor spurred the one that sure held tomorrow.

Then it is fastened out and stitched to the roof of corrugated iron, which is standard in slums throughout Africa, the girl finds no longer has a need to fear the sleep.

The poverty of Africa has produced a genius for "recycling"—the trade of a metal can into a toy or silo salesman.

The knack is evident even in Secondary Township, the symbol of the world's most the combined filament of the Sahara to northern Mali.

There, only Tuesday, the famous bleakness of the desert, later on to unearthed fortune who trickle through the ancient caravan crossroads.

This award belonged to my grandfather who fought in the holy wars of the last century and is the pride of my family. I have a framed writ, after an hour of haggling, pleading extreme poverty, agreed to give up the treasured heirloom at 5 p.m.

It's a tarnish eventually hang his antique sword and hundreds of others like it are the magnificently haggard results of the deal.

Stripping broken-down cars is a booming business in African cities, producing bonnets, engines, mirrors, aerial wires for pensioners, soft trays, nuts and bolts for repairers, spare wire for electricians, tires for children to play with and metal for Tuesday records.

In Kimberley, a small village in Upper Volta that reports the arrival of Africa's rural grass, an open-air market brings all other innovations.

One stall sells locally made cooking pots. Next door it sells carved bowls and spoons. Today, the few villagers who own bicycles can purchase about 10 gross of oil, collected in Brewsters' pedalling acquisitions from the nearby medical centers, for a few cents.

A variety of empty bottles in Upper Volta and elsewhere in west and central Africa are filled with pebbles or beads and used as musical instruments.

At Jankara market, in the heart of Lagos, the bustling Nigerian capital, large oil drums are sliced in half and sold for use as stoves.

The rims of old bicycle wheels are used widely by children in Africa who expertly guide their "hoops" through the streets with a stick.

Children also make automobiles with a few pebbles and a sardine can.

Johannesburg, Meanwhile, huge packing crates that once contained machinery for the mine-mining industry have been turned into homes by the landless.

The trash cans of the rich in Africa produce treasures for the poor. Servants carefully sift through everything their employers throw away.

Even no longer fit for a European business executive may have at least another year of good wear for a less-fussy cook.

Translator radios that are not worth repairing and are thrown out are quickly sold to local "radio doctors" who pay a fee for the spare parts.

Old newspapers are great for the small fires used to cook food in the servants' quarters and American girly magazines provide favorite wall decorations.

Baby food jars are ideal for the wives of many household servants in west Africa who run small businesses on the side to boost family income and use them as containers for pepper and other seasonings.

Empty flour sacks, appropriately stitched, turn up on the streets as durable if not stylish T-shirts.

England Now Exports Some Wines to France

LONDON (CP) — England is producing some high-quality white and rose wines and exporting them to France. And some experts say the much-criticized English climate is no hindrance to the growing of good wines.

Actually, southern England is no farther north than some of the best vineyards of northern Germany. English soil is no different than that found in the Champagne region of France. And a wine needs only 18 days of 18 degrees Celsius weather to produce excellent quality white and rose wines, and most England has that.

Hyatford-Shire once boasted the Earl of Salisbury's 20,000 vines. And every monastery in Britain produced its own wine.

But in the 16th century Henry VIII closed the monasteries and that was the end of commercially produced wine in England, except for the Second World War.

Then came the 200-thousand-gallon reservoir.

As England has only recently begun growing grapes on a large scale, growers have not yet had time to find varieties resistant to parasitic fungus diseases which can reduce a harvest by up to 40 per cent.

This problem is being dealt with by an experimental vineyard and research program being carried on at Wye College in Kent. There now are 360 vines comprising 17 varieties being studied for their suitability in English climate and hardiness and resistance to disease.

The other single most important problem in England is birds. As flocks of birds can literally strip a vineyard in a matter of days, vineyards must be netted over when the fruit ripens.

Though still in its infancy, English wine growing is expected to continue expanding.

Ship for Home

Tom Salonen, a Moose Jaw area homesteader worked for 30 years building a ship that would take him home to his native Finland. When he died in 1963 his health was broken and his ship lay on the banks of the South Saskatchewan River until restoration work was begun in 1972. A group of senior citizens, in Co-operation with the Antigonish Co-Op of Saskatchewan, is restoring the keel (left) and upper deck. The ship will go on display at the car club's junior museum near Moose Jaw. (CP Photo)

ENCYCLOPEDIA OF AUTOMATIC MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS — Q. David'Bowers.

You may be familiar with a player piano or a calliope, but have you heard of an orchestrion, an autoharp, or a musical stereopticon? These are only a few of the self-playing instruments which entertained people between 1789 and 1940, and which are included in this large encyclopedia. The history of each instrument, as well as descriptions of the numerous models, and a wealth of illustrations, make this an interesting book to browse through.

SILENT WITNESSES — Herbert Fairlie Wood and John Swettenham.

A complete guide to the memorials to Canada's war dead, with maps, guides to the locations of the cemeteries, and a wealth of photographs, this book is the only full account of Canada's commemoration of the men and women who died in the service of their country.

KWIC INDEX TO THE GOVERNMENT OF ONTARIO '75 — Ministry of Culture and Recreation.

Are you looking for government information but not sure where to find it? In this new KWIC (Key Word in Context) index, you can look up the key words describing your area of interest — Housing, or Senior Citizens, for example — and find a description of each Ontario government agency which is active in that area.

NUTRITION CANADA REPORTS

Nutrition Canada has recently released the detailed reports of its findings in the national nutrition survey which was completed two years ago. These twelve volumes (one for each province, and one each for Indians and Eskimos) show nutritional characteristics and point out deficiencies of each area in comparison with the nation as a whole. Of interest to anyone concerned with nutrition, these reports provide a sound basis for assessing the significance of nutrition in our life style.

TORONTO: REFLECTIONS OF THE PAST — Mike Filey.

This nostalgic collection of photographs covers a century of Toronto life, and provides a glimpse at people and places as they were before the days of skyscrapers and expressways. Architecture, VIP's, sports events, and ordinary people at work and play, were some of the camera's subjects in a vanished era.

Needed Books Could All Be Produced Here

CALGAY (CP) — Canadian publishers are capable of producing all the books necessary for Canadian schools, says the managing director of a new book marketing organization called Canadabooks.

"There's absolutely no need for schools to encourage the importation of the books and, therefore, the values of other countries," said Michael Preston.

But that is exactly what is happening, he said. Eighty-eight per cent of the books purchased by Canadian school libraries in 1973 were foreign-produced.

"In dollar terms, Canadian publishers accounted for only $5.8 million of the $67.3 million that was spent on books by Canadian schools in 1973."

Canadabooks was set up last year with the help of the federal and Ontario governments to provide schools with a central information and ordering point for the books of 57 member publishers.

"Our members are small, independent, Canadian owned publishers who have never before had access to the education market," Mr. Preston said.

Foreigners in Paris Get Own SOS Service

PARIS (Reuter) — Foreigners are overwhelmed by the pressures in Paris now have their own S O S telephone crisis line, a service in English set up by a determined young social worker.

The crusade to throw a lifeline to the lonely was started by Patricia Granatoor, wife of an English lawyer in Paris, who felt as much at sea on arriving here as do many of her nightly callers.

As a result, she decided to put 10 years' experience as a social worker to good use and opened S O S Help-Crisis Line with a staff of 34 volunteers ranging from a Dutch banker to a Swedish student.

Because of a lack of funds, in its one five-operator-only hours every evening. But she is determined to expand the service, saying: "Beyond the mirages of city life in New York and London before.

"Paris has 200,000 English-speaking people," she said. "That's a vast community, the size of a small town."

Like the programme of S O S Amitie in France, the Samaritans in Britain and the various hot lines and drug lines in the United States, the service attempts to provide the community with a source of help in time of distress.

"Certainly the problems faced by people living in a foreign country increase the need for such a service."

Her initiative has been widely applauded by many large United States companies whose staff sometimes are often bombarded with the problems of the disoriented in a strange land.

Mrs. Granatoor said the service "other acts as a safety valve for people who are totally lost in a strange city."

Summing up the crisis line's role in an impersonal urban society, she said:

"We are a kind of listeners' wailing wall. Our clients range from 16 to 90. There are also a number of French people with depressive problems who find it easier to express their deepest fears in a foreign language.

"One French girl rings up in English so that her parents won't be able to understand if they eavesdrop on the line."

Pregnant girls also have used the line. "They need an understanding ear to listen to them," she said.

"We have many habitues who call and like to chat for an hour just for company."

CP News Roundup

Many Draft Dodgers Not Sought

TORONTO (CP) — At least 10,000 draft evaders living in Canada are unaware they are no longer wanted by United States law enforcement agencies, Tim Maloney, a spokesman for the War Resister Information Program said Tuesday.

Mr. Maloney said many draft evaders have just assumed going back means five years in prison.

"At the same time, the selective service system has kept referring their cases to the department of justice for review," he said.

Mr. Maloney said many of the cases were full of errors caused by draftboards, some who couldn't follow the complex draft law and drafted people illegally.

Since January, the Winnipeg-based organization has been checking names of draftees living in Canada against a list of men wanted for draft evasion in the U.S. The list, provided by Senator Edward Kennedy, contains only 4,400 names although 28,000 men were said to have dodged the draft during the Vietnam war.

Mr. Maloney urged anyone wishing to clarify their legal status to contact the centre.

Taxes Evaded

TORONTO (CP) — National Painting and Decorating (Toronto) Ltd. was fined $17,773 in provincial court Tuesday after pleading guilty to a charge of conspiracy to evade taxes.

Court was told the firm agreed to bill corporate clients agreed to bill corporate clients for work it did privately for corporation executives.

As a result, executives got free home decorating and their companies saved a corresponding amount in taxes by writing off the results as business expenses, court was told.

The total unreported income was $68,118 and the total federal tax sought to be evaded was $17,773.

Tighten Controls

TORONTO (CP) — The age limit for operators of motorized bicycles in Ontario will be raised in revised legislation, John Rhodes, minister of transportation and communications, said Tuesday. At present operators of motorized bicycles need no licences and may be 14 years old. Operators of motorcycles and minibikes may apply for a licence at 16 years with parents' consent.

Fees Inadequate

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General John Clement agreed with opposition critics Tuesday who complained fees paid to jury members in Ontario are totally inadequate.

More Benefits

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment insurance payments for the first four months of 1975 totalled $1.353 billion, up almost 39 per cent over the $930 million total for the same period in 1974, government officials told the Commons manpower committee Tuesday.

If projected for the remainder of the year, the total cost of the program would be about $3.3 billion—far more than the 1974 total of $2.138 billion.

Complicated

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal inspector suspected that tainted meat was being sold in Quebec four months before going to the RCMP, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Tuesday.

Mr. Lalonde told the commons that when the Montreal inspector first stumbled across the tainted meat scandal in October, 1972: "He was dealing in rumors. His investigation took time and it was very complicated."

Expand Station

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Davis said Tuesday that Union Station will be expanded to serve a new transportation terminal for the Metropolitan Toronto area.

Oppose Tolls

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Chamber of Commerce decided Monday to continue to seek removal of tolls on the Welland Canal section of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Smoking, Not Radiation, Worst Hazard for Miners

TORONTO (CP) — A Rio Algom Ltd. official told the royal commission on health and safety of mine workers Tuesday that smoking should be emphasized as the main cause of lung cancer in mine workers, not radiation.

Ted Cheeseman said in a brief to the commission there has been "an exaggerated and misleading emphasis attributed to radiation as a cause of lung cancer."

The brief said smoking as a cause of cancer had been "belittled and neglected" during the hearings and cited a United States study in July, 1974, which showed that of 300 uranium miners who died of lung cancer, only three were non-smokers.

It said an Ontario study last September, which examined the cases of 41 uranium miners who died of lung cancer, is not significant if did not contain information on actual radiation exposure in each case, smoking histories, the exact time between exposure and the development of a tumor and the incidence of lung cancer in non-uranium miners.

The company brief said there is need for a "thorough epidemiological study of Canadian uranium miners and other workers exposed to carcinogenic air contaminants."

Mr. Cheeseman said the firm wants standards established in which all parties have consent.

He told James Ham, commission chairman, the firm does not have enough workers to recall men who smoke from working underground.

The brief also dealt with questions raised during commission hearings in Elliot Lake, Ont., in January, saying the firm took steps in 1966 to reduce radiation levels below the level then allowed in the U.S.

Richardson Pledges Support for NATO

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister James Richardson reiterated Tuesday a pledge to maintain the level of Canadian military contributions to NATO but refused to be pinned down on how many Canadian troops it will take.

Testifying before the Commons defence committee, the minister said the Canadian troops are among the finest in Europe—by the testimony of allies—and their quality must be judged as much as the quantity.

Canada has 9,000 servicemen in Europe and the government is considering under its current defence review whether to change the structure of the force from its present composition of land and air elements.

Mr. Richardson was questioned by a fellow Liberal on reports that Canada is considering changing to an all-air commitment.

The matter was brought up by Paul Langlois (Chicoutimi) who went to Brussels with the minister along with Allan McKinnon (PC—Victoria), Progressive Conservative military critic.

Mr. Langlois said Europeans he talked with wanted Canadians on the ground, and more of them. Mr. McKinnon protested about the "dilapidated" state of equipment used by Canadian forces in Europe.

Mr. Richardson reiterated that an all-air element is one option being considered. The other options was to retain the same or go to an all-land element.

Reject Bar On Quebec Meat

TORONTO (CP) — Two Ontario cabinet ministers rejected a Liberal suggestion Tuesday that the province suspend the sale of meat bearing a Quebec stamp of approval.

The suggestion followed a report that Leo Arcand, a Quebec meat merchant, said he had thousands of pounds of tainted meat for shipment to Ontario.

Donald Deacon (L—York Centre) requested the temporary ban and a full inquiry into procedures by which the meat entered the province.

Agriculture Minister William Stewart told the legislature the province had no control over the inter-provincial movement of meat—a federal matter.

He said his ministry's authority stopped at the slaughter houses in the province. He was not aware of any cases of tainted meat in Ontario, he said.

Health Minister Frank Miller, whose ministry is responsible for meat inspections through local medical officers of health also rejected the Liberal suggestion.

He said the medical health officer in Ottawa, where some meat allegedly was shipped, was investigating but had found no evidence of tainted meat to date.

Command Shuffle May Mean Staff Cut

From The Ottawa Bureau of The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — Creation of the new Air Command in Western Canada will require 119 fewer personnel in the administration of the armed forces air section, Defence Chief of Staff Gen. J. A. Dextraze said Tuesday.

A spokesman at CFB Trenton today said transfers from the base will be kept to a minimum.

Gen. Dextraze told Dan McKenzie (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) during proceedings of the standing Commons defence committee that the new Air Command which is expected to move much of the responsibilities away from CFB Trenton to a western base, probably Winnipeg, will increase efficiency and require fewer people.

The Trenton spokesman noted that Training Command is being moved to Trenton from Winnipeg.

Because of the changes there may be adjustments for some administrative staff, but the number of personnel is not substantially change.

"The number of transfers will be kept to a minimum," he said.

Gen Dextraze said that the new Air Command will result in a saving in the areas of communication, command and control of the Forces.

The general made the remarks during criticism by Opposition members of the command that the creation of the Air Command constitutes unification of the armed forces.

On the contrary, he said, the new command will push unification even further in what he termed an "evolution", producing even more savings.

City's Official Plan Still Awaiting Approval

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville's official plan is still six months away as it continues getting its way through governmental "public debate".

Bill Dolman of the official plans branch of the ministry of housing, said during an interview Tuesday, "it could be out as quick as five months but it would be a lot a effort to say six months," before the plan is finally approved by the local, approval.

He said administrative dealings had slowed the plans journey through provincial channels for about a month and actual circulation of the draft March.

The plan must be circulated to the "agencies" including all the municipalities surrounding the city.

We are, waiting for three, major responses . . . from the ministries of transportation and communication, environment and natural resources," said Mr. Dolman.

"They're always a little slower, but though I don't think it will be too much longer now," he said.

Once each of the agencies has replied to the plan, a total package of objections and proposed modifications will be forwarded to Belleville, said Dolman.

"The responses have been generally okay," said the planner. "There are a couple of minor objections."

Once the province has completed its examination and reported its findings to the municipality . . . plan approval will be in local hands, he said.

Concerning a date for the plan, Mr. Dolman described it as "clear, concise and detailed."

It's not a no-development plan but a good urban plan," he said. "It's long overdue . . . the last official plan for the city before amalgamation in early 1968 — and will guide Belleville for the next five to 15 years."

He said it is impossible to guess when the plan will be provincial recommendations said that "there are a lot of 'ifs' in plan approval," he said.

"Belleville's plan is going through normal channels and I don't think it will be too long now."

Quinte Planning card deputy director Frank Stokman said committee have completed a preliminary set of zoning by-laws to accompany the official plan but "nothing can be done by circulation by agencies and the province's recommendations in front of us."

Ellis Seeks Opinions On Gun Legislation

Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, expects gun control legislation will be before Parliament "reasonably soon" and is seeking opinions from constituents on such a measure.

Mr. Ellis says he feels the comments because the bill is pressing for registration of all firearms — a somewhat "quite controversial".

Opposition comes primarily from sportsmen who object to having their guns registered, says Mr. Ellis in his latest, regular newsletter to constituents.

Sportsmen argue criminals, in any event, would not have their weapons registered.

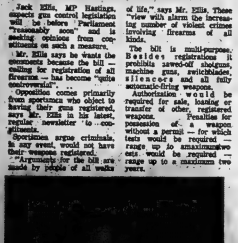
"Arguments for the bill are made by people of all walks of life," says Mr. Ellis. These "view with alarm the increasing number of violent crimes involving firearms of all kinds.

The bill is multi-purpose. It requires registration of all prohibits sawed-off shotguns, machine guns, switchblades, silencers and other assassin-like weapons.

Authorization would be required for sale, loaning or transfer of rifles, regulated weapons.

Penalties for possession of weapons without a permit — for which tests would be required — range up to amaximumofive years in prison.

Penalties for use of weapons without permit — for which tests would be required — range up to a maximum two years.



Big Change

Jill Smeeks, special education teacher with the Hastings County Board of Education has accepted a new position at an inner city school in Toronto. In an interview with the Intell Jill outlines some of her reasons for the move.

Annual Peanut Drive To Cover Entire City

City residents will go "nutty" this evening — and it's all for a good cause.

The Rivards Club of Belleville will hold its annual peanut drive this evening and proceeds will go toward child welfare project and the Elwyn Sinclair workshop located in the Riverside Drive on East Dundas St.

Armin Quickert, event chairman, says the drive will begin about 6 p.m., with club members going door-to-door on 36 routes. "We intend to cover the entire city if possible."

For sale will be one-pound jars of peanut butter at a cost of 75 cents and about one-pound tins of cocktail peanuts for $1.50 a piece.

Members will be identified by their Rivards stickers, orange aprons, caps and carrying trays. Mr. Quickert says the drive has taken place for so many years the club has lost count.

He explains the sheltered workshop employes 12 physically-handicapped persons who would find it difficult in today's industrial environment to find work."

New Job Offers Chance To Learn About Inner City

Special education teacher Jill Smeeks is leaving the security of Hastings County to join the Cabbagetown revival — a move that will take her into Toronto's inner city.

The 30-year-old Campbellford native has accepted a special education post with the Toronto Board of Education at Winchester Public School, located in the heart of the city's Cabbagetown district.

While most people are trying to escape Toronto's core, Jill ascribes her motivation as "a chance to learn about the inner city and how children survive." This area of Toronto is predominantly lower-income families with a large elderly population. In recent years a revival has occurred in restore and renovate buildings in the area.

Jill, who has a son, four, and a daughter, six, says she believes that moving Belleville will have "inner city schools" and they will be confronted with the same problems. Although her duties have not yet been defined Jill will be heading into new ground at the school.

"I'm going into a class room for the special education students but no instructions on what to do," she said. "It's an open hand . . . and it should be a challenge." Last year Jill took a year off from teaching in order to travel England and observe the infant primary system in that country.

A graduate of the Peterborough Teachers' College in 1969, Jill began her career in North York and picked up special education courses during the summer. She also worked for the Peel County Board of Education before joining the Hastings board in 1970.

Not yet a firm believer in teaching Jill again said in 1969 to work as a clerk and lecture at weight watchers' groups. She started back full-time with the board in 1972 as a special education instructor, working with junior teachers in the Bayside Family of Schools.

Jill said she will be interpreting and commenting on the schools in Toronto and particularly in her own school. "As far as what I'm going to find I want to discover Toronto and experience many students living there all their lives and not just for a year," she added.

She said she may even entry her own children in a nearby French school. "I can't see me taking advantage of these facilities," she explained.

Assessment Calls Fake Says Trenton Officials

TRENTON — Fears by one Trenton woman that her home might be broken into after a telephone call from a man claiming to be with the regional assessment office has prompted a warning to homeowners not to divulge information about their homes over the telephone.

An assessment office spokesman said today, "there is no way that we will assess a home over the phone."

He issued a warning to home owners not to answer questions about the value of a home's contents, number of rooms and room dimensions.

The woman said a Trenton police officer both received telephone calls Tuesday from a male with a rural accent who identified himself as an assessment office. His questions dealt with the value of the two homes.

The Trenton constable spoke with assessment officers who denied any knowledge of the telephone questioning. The warning was then issued amid fears other people in Hastings, Prince Edward and Northumberland Counties could receive similar calls.

Spokesman said the value of the property is established through a personal visit by regional office staff.

Each visiting officer carries identification and an identification card that contains his picture and signature.

"We just don't go out and ask a home owner what he thinks his home is worth," said the spokesman. "That's our job."

Tapes Taken

City police are investigating the theft of 70 worth of eight-track tapes and a tape player valued at $85 from a car parked behind Alton Hadley Farm Implements Ltd. at 371 North Front St. — time between 10:45 p.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. Sunday.

Police said the car, owned by Brian Hadley, was entered by prying open a no-draft window on the driver's side. The dash and glove compartment, which were rifled, were damaged to the extent of $40.

Rollins to Challenge Land-use Ruling

A spokesman for Maurice H. Rollins Construction has charged Peterborough council with making an arbitrary decision that resembles "expropriation without compensation" in connection with a 77-unit townhouse development in that community.

A committee of the whole — responding to neighborhood residents' complaints — passed a recommendation to be dealt with by council June 3, down zoning the density on 5.3 acres of land owned by the Belleville construction firm.

The parcel of land was earmarked for a 77-unit development and had already been serviced with over-sized lines in preparation for the project. Bob Marcotte, vice-president of the firm, said today "we paid top dollar for the land which had the zoning we needed already in effect".

"All we thought we needed was site plan approval — normal approval which technical staff had recommended in Peterborough," said Mr. Marcotte. Peterborough politicians overruled the planners and suggested the land be used for single-family units.

If council upholds the committee recommendation we will ask for an Ontario Municipal Board hearing," said Mr. Marcotte.

They didn't even invite us to the meeting to hear what was going on," said Mr. Marcotte.

"It was an arbitrary decision . . . expropriation without compensation" by reducing the use of the land, he said. Mr. Marcotte is responsible for out-of-town Rollins developments.

The largest loss through the decision if it is upheld by council is that federal government AHOP (Assisted Home Ownership Plan) grant will be lost, said Mr. Marcotte.

The grant applied to the development would give buyers low down payments, long-term mortgages and low interest rates.

"If we lose the deal through council, AHOP monies won't be held for us," said Mr. Marcotte.

Helping Hands

A flurry of sales see hands shoot out in a cause as King George Sq. Tuesday. The event was a penny carnival run by neighborhood youngsters to raise funds for restoring historic old St. Thomas church recently gutted by fire.

Carnival Raises $42.52 for St. Thomas

Belleville's historic St. Thomas Anglican church cropped up. The girls, one Catholic the other United Church, discashed it awhile, then hit on an idea: How about a penny carnival in the neighborhood to raise a donation for the church's restoration?

Tuesday, with their playmates they did just that.

With stalls laden with used toys, books, countless childhood knick-knacks and items from their attics, the youngsters went into business.

There were some novel touches. Greg Falsley, 10, played accordion music; his nine-year-old brother Warren created-on-the-spot art sketches for sale.

Business boomed — even though penny carnivals are not exactly penny carnivals anymore.

You could see the results of inflation around the stalls. Fishpond ride these days cost two cents; drinks two to five cents; a teddy bear brought 15 cents, plastic jewelry five cents to a dime.

When it was all over, Mrs. Gloria Falsley, on whose lawn the carnival was staged, reported $42.52 had been collected for St. Thomas.

The spontaneous event warmed the reaction of one St. Thomas parish official involved in the church's rebuilding decision — now awaiting the advice of an architect.

"They say kids aren't interested in religion or the church," added Harold Carruthers, chairman of St. Thomas building committee. "But maybe here's an example that belies that fact."

Search Continues For Missing Boaters

NAPANEE — Ontario Provincial Police divers are still frustrated in their efforts to recover the bodies of four men missing and presumed drowned in the waters between Amherst Island and the mainland just south of here.

The men are identified as Bradley Gibson, 21, of Amherst Island, his brother, Robert Gibson, 23, of Napanee, their brother-in-law Donald Lougheed, 27, of Napanee and Robert McGinnis, 29, of Kingston.

They were part of a party of six people which included two women, who left the northwestern tip of the island at about 1:30 a.m. Sunday morning. They were reported missing about nine hours later when they had not arrived where their cars were parked on Highway 33 near the Lennox Generating Station.

Police recovered the body of Patricia Lougheed, 23, of RR3, Napanee, at 11:56 a.m. on the shore of the mainland Sunday at Conway, about three miles west of the generating station. She was the sister of Robert and Bradley Gibson and the wife of Donald Lougheed.

About 15 minutes later, Bradley Gibson, 23, wife of Robert Gibson, was found on the shore at Bayshore Rd., about two miles west of where the first woman was found. She is conscious and in fair condition at Kingston General Hospital.

Fire Chief Warns Cooks Of Kitchen Hazards

City firefighters are burning over the forgetfulness of some Belleville residents.

Chief Leo Culhane said today the department has received four calls in less than a week to residences where pots of food have been left on hot stove burners, boiled over and caused a considerable amount of smoke.

In one of these calls made within a five-minute span Tuesday shortly after 6 p.m. and in both cases pots of chicken were left cooking unattended with the burners on high. In one case, people were out on their apartment.

Chief Culhane noted a boiled-over pot was the cause of a $80,000 fire several years ago in Belleville. He urged residents to keep an eye on their stoves when cooking and to make sure their stoves are turned off before leaving their homes.

Province Grants Extra $363,700 for Roads

The provincial government this year has granted an extra $363,700 to subsidies for construction work to Hastings County municipalities.

The supplementary subsidy allocations are divided among 19 of the county's 27 townships and villages.

Biggest grant goes to Madoc Township which gets $40,125. The smallest allocation goes to Marmora Village which receives $2,000.

The remainder of the supplementary subsidy is broken down in this way:

Villages — Bancroft, $13,400; Madoc, $2,000; Townships — Carlow, $28,000; Dungannon, $17,000; Elzevir, Grimsthorpe, $7,300; Faraday, $19,000; Herschel, $28,000; Hungerford, $36,450; Huntingdon, $13,000; Marmora Lake $27,000; Mayo, $13,200; Monteagle $22,000; Rawdon, $24,800; Sherbrooke, $13,200; Tudor — Cashel, $22,000; Tweed, $19,500; Wollaston, $20,000.

Land Use Debated

FRANKFORD — Detailed plans and then a firm, long-term lease must be in the hands of the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority before it okays construction of three tennis courts and a heritage room on Frankford Conservation Area land.

That decision came Tuesday after a request for permission to build the courts was received by the authority from the Community Service Club in Warkworth.

Chairman William Carter said the club project was feasible and in keeping with the general conservation aims of the Warkworth area.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls for assistance during a 36-hour period which ended at 9 a.m. today:

Tuesday, May 27, 5:07 p.m. — false alarm at Stephenson-Adamson Division of Allis-Chalmers Canada Ltd. at 36 Franklin St.

Tuesday, May 27, 6:58 p.m. — pot of chicken boiled over on hot stove burner in apartment above Up-Town Sohmeke and Surplus Shop at 294 Front St., smoke ejector used.

Wednesday, May 29, 8:32 a.m. — pot of chicken boiled, oven onto hot stove burner in Apt. 4 at Bellhaven Apartments, just north of Victoria Ave., smoke ejector also used.

Smoke Brigade

Gord Miller (left) and Stan Vens of Belleville fire department rush the smoke ejector to an apartment at Mid-Town Apartments Tuesday after a pot of chicken boiled over on a stove. Firefighters were summoned to a Front St. apartment just five minutes before to deal with a similar occurrence. Fire Chief Leo Culhane advises residents to ensure their stoves are turned off before leaving their homes.

Flyers Repeat as Stanley Cup Champions

Parent—Conn Smythe Trophy

BUFFALO (CP) — Bobby Clarke's name did not appear on the scoring summary. Tuesday night but once again the Philadelphia Flyers team captain was a key figure in a Stanley Cup victory.

The Flyers defeated Buffalo Sabres 2-1 to take the best-of-seven National Hockey League final 4-2 for the second consecutive year. Last year, the Flyers also won it on games against Boston Bruins.

Clarke helped set up the winning goal by left winger Bob Kelly with only 11 seconds left in the third period.

The play started when Reggie Leach fired the puck into the Sabres zone and Kelly and Rick Martin defenceman Jerry Korab raced in after it.

"I got inside Korab to get it," Kelly said. "He drove me into the boards and Bobby came in and dug the puck out and then he held Korab.

"I just happened to walk out. I tried to shift it and keep my body between (goalie Roger) Crozier and the puck. I shot it and it went in."

The goal stood up and Bill Clement scored into an empty goal as the playoffs to make it 3-0 at 17:13.

While Flyers goalie Bernie Parent was receiving accolades for winning his second consecutive Conn Smythe Trophy as the most valuable player in the playoffs, Flyers coach Fred Shero took time out to laud Clarke who he calls "the greatest player in the game for helping his team."

"He's the greatest leader I've ever seen in sports," said Shero. "He'd do anything to help us win. He'll work harder than anyone. I know for a fact he's given away at points. He'd get 50 goals in this league if he wanted to, but like some players but you've got to look at both ends and do your job. Right?"

Clarke was especially conspicuous in the first two games of the final at Philadelphia when the Flyers won 4-1 and 3-1 and it appeared he would be favored to take the Stanley Cup this year.

However, he had trouble in the next two games when the Sabres won 5-4 and 4-3. The Flyers won the fifth game at home 1-0 with Parent taking most of the spotlight as he did Tuesday in recording his fourth shutout of the playoff season tying a record held by four others.

Shero and his assistant, Mike Nykoluk, decided to put Kelly on a line with Clarke in the third period.

"Mike wanted me to do it (Clarke) and he was mad at me because I didn't," Shero said. "They were keying in on Clarke and we needed a tough guy out there like Kelly.

"They always had some tough guy trying to give Clarke a rest while the referee wasn't looking. Bobby can take care of himself, but they were unloading on him when the ref's back was turned. Someone gave him a real shot or a dirty stick from behind. You put a Kelly or a (Dave) Schultz out there and they're going to (Clarke. They aren't that brave."

BOBBY CLARKE

However, Kelly did not work with Clarke's line late in the game as Shero said he decided that no longer he would go with his best because "one goal was enough if you play it right."

Shero also announced that Clarke has had a bad leg in recent games. "He gets pains in there and it goes numb. I don't know what it is exactly."

Clarke refused to discuss the injury, saying that his leg was all right.

"Everybody gets bruises at this time of year but you've got to play.

"We just feel on top of the world. You have to be a part of this to know the feeling you get.

"I think we would have taken that on our faces, they would have said (at times) we were lucky. You win it two years in a row and you've got to say it's a pretty good team."

But all the Flyers realized that they had beaten a good Sabres team.

The Sabres, playing in front of a partisan crowd of 15,302, had some excellent scoring opportunities but both times Parent was perfect as they held a 36-14 shooting edge. The Sabres ended with a 33-31 edge in shots in the game.

Sabres captain Jim Schoenfeld said he felt the Sabres had handled the Flyers well in the series and "just didn't get any breaks."

The Sabres weren't even in the playoffs last year and many had predicted they would have a tough time making it this season.

"We've come a long way in one year," said Sabres coach Floyd Smith. "And we don't have to go much farther.

"We had a lot of things go against us in this series. They just kept plugging away and it just wasn't good enough. But we'll win this thing on heart before too long.

"I think we're very happy with what's happened. Of course we are very disappointed with the fact that we got here and we didn't win it. We'd be lying if we said we felt any other way.

The Flyers' win marked the fifth time in the last seven years that a championship team has won the Stanley Cup on the playoff scoring in successive road. The Flyers are the first season. He finished this year American-based team to win with 11 goals and nine assists the playoff title in successive for 20 point in 17 games.

seasons since Detroit Red It was the latest Stanley Cup Wings won in 1954 and 1955. The victory ever. Last year, the Flyers are also the first club to Flyers scored it up on May 10. take consecutive championships since Montreal did it in 1960 and 1969.

Rick MacLeish of the Flyers became the third player to lead season Tuesday night.

Two Straight Proves It

We're No Fluke—Kelly

BUFFALO (CP) — Philadelphia Flyers said they proved a point Tuesday night but they needed help from goalie Bernie Parent to get their message across to Buffalo Sabres.

"Everybody knocked us last year," winger Bob Kelly. "They said it was a fluke when we won the Stanley Cup last year, that we couldn't do it again.

"We won it to prove to ourselves and everybody else that it was no fluke. We're not a fluke hockey club."

Kelly, who missed 13 of 17 playoff games with an injury writers.

"Well, I like to think it was more than hot goaltending," said Buffalo coach Floyd Smith. "I thought their whole club played well, their defence, their forwards and they had excellent goaltending.

"Maybe a little bit of our experience showed up at times. That's the way it goes. We got here on inexperience. Maybe inexperience is the end, cost."

Parent stopped 32 shots in recording his fourth shutout of the playoff season, tying a record shared previously by four others.

The shutout also enabled Philadelphia to set a team record of five shutouts. Wayne Stephenson got the other Philadelphia shutout in the semi-final series against New York Island-ers.

"Bernie made the saves we needed until we got that lead," said Flyers winger Gary Dornhoefer who teamed with Rick Martin of the Sabres throughout the series, leading the high-scoring Buffalo forward to two goals.

"He (Parent) came up time and time again," Dornhoefer said. "If you'll recall, he did the same thing to Boston last year when we won 1-0 in the final game."

Parent preferred to talk about next season. "We did it twice, why not a third time?" asked Parent who added the Smythe Trophy to the Vezina Trophy he won as the top goalie in the regular season.

Coach Fred Shero of the Flyers said:

"They (Buffalo) might be more powerful than us next year. We never underestimate them because we know damn well how strong they are, even though we were beating them all year or the last two years."

Smith said the Flyers "skated hard" and "outmuscled us on one goal."

"I'm very happy with our performance," (the Sabres) played this way all season. They didn't quit until the end.

Bruins Sign Phil

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Phil Esposito, the National Hockey League's leading goal scorer last season, signed a two multi-year contract with Boston Bruins on Tuesday.

At a news conference, Harry Sinden, managing director of the National Hockey League team, said right winger Terry O'Reilly also had signed a multi-year agreement.

Sinden did not disclose details of the two contracts, but both were reported to be for four years.

"There is no need for me to go into any great details concerning the value of these players to my team," Sinden said.

"Phil has established himself as the finest goal-scorer in the game today, while Terry has become the epitome of aggressiveness and desire as one of the most improved players in the league," he said.

Esposito, 31, is fifth in the all-time NHL goal scoring list with 327 goals in 11 seasons. He led the league in total points in five of the last seven seasons.

He had 61 goals and 66 assists for a total of 127 points last season, second only to team-mate Bobby Orr.

O'Reilly had 15 goals and 36 assists last season, his third with the Bruins.

"Plumbing is our only business . . . come to us for everything including the kitchen sink"

Moira Forward Ross MacLeod

Ontario Title Is on the Line

By DOUG JEFFRIES

When the competition gets tough, the Moira Secondary School Senior Trojans get together.

With the Ontario High School Soccer championships coming up, the calibre of play is slated to be very good.

Moira will be the first team from the Bay of Quinte league to venture into the Ontario finals and the team's record proves why Trojans should go.

The Trojans last year's league final to Brighton in the opening rain but still qualified for the Central Ontario championships and won it all; beating out Lakefield of Peterborough and Curtis High School from Oshawa. Curtis is a perennial top-seeded team at the OFSSA and has won before. This could be some indication for the Trojans.

"The teams and their talent are really unknown to us," said Bill Jacobs coach of the squad.

"I think our boys will show exceptionally well, but we'll just keep our fingers crossed."

The Trojans will not be upset by opposition with more size, because they are used to playing against men.

To keep in shape over the winter the team participated in the Indoor Soccer League at Belleville.

"We owe a lot to the Belleville leagues because we started along the way with a couple of pointers," stated coach Jacobs.

"The Trojan style of play is a 2-3-5, but when the team is attacking, two of the full backs move up, and when on defence, two stay back. "The system works very well" says Jacobs.

The attack is led by Tom Britton, Dave Powell and Ross MacLeod.

Further experience comes to the team in the Bay of Quinte Soccer League, where many of the players from Moira compete with the Parnaka club of Belleville.

In league play last year the team scored 28 goals and yielded only two to their opponents. Jim Asselstine is the goalkeeper.

This year's tourney will be a one-day event with an opening game loss moving a team to the consolation round. Two 40-minute halves are played with the top 12 teams in Ontario competing. Newmarket is the site for the games, to be held Saturday.

CANADA TO FACE BRAZIL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian water polo team will meet Brazil June 3-4 in a three-game world championship qualifying competition at Laval University in Quebec City. It was announced Tuesday. If Brazil loses to the Canadian team, it would be ineligible to compete in the Olympic games.

Howard and Robert Gains Share of First Place

Howard and Robert Printing gained a share of first place in the Quinte Fastball league Monday night when they kept their unbeaten streak alive and extended their winning run to three games with a 3-0 shutout over Ritz and Anger Men's Wear.

Chicago Cougars

WHA Franchise Is Suspended

LOS ANGELES (CP) — The franchise of Chicago Cougs has been suspended, the two officials of the World Hockey Association announced Tuesd

WHA president Dennis Murphy and chief executive officer Ben Hatskin of Winnipeg Jets said the Cougs' roster have been absorbed by the league "for future disposition".

Murphy and Hatskin said the franchise was suspended because of the lack of a rink quate arena for the club and that the league will consider granting the area a new fran chise if that situation is corrected.

When contacted recently that a group of heads had been created a WHA franchise for Denver there were reports that his group would get the Chicago franchise.

There has been no subsequent indication how players will be provided for the Denver team.

The demise of the Chicago franchise leaves the WHA with nine in Calgary, Edmonton, Quebec, Winnipeg, Ottawa, Quebec, Hartford, Conn., Cleveland, Ohio, Indianapolis, St. Paul, Minn., Houston, San Diego, Calif., and Denver.

Still in doubt is the future of the Baltimore franchise, which was operated by the league after being moved from Detroit in mid-season.

Chicago had one of the original WHA franchises in 1972-73. Only seven surviving in the same location from that first season are Edmonton, Winnipeg, Quebec, Cleveland, Houston, Minnesota Flyers and Indiana, who play out of St. Paul.

Montefusco, Miscues Sink Phils

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Philadelphia Phillies' pitchers have known to brag about hitting the best infield in baseball but it wasn't in existence Tuesday night when they lost 3-0 to San Francisco Giants in 10 innings.

To quote the Phils' press guide: "In 1976, the Phillies' infield of Mike Schmidt, Larry Bowa, Dave Cash and Willie Montanez all finished second in balloting for the National League Gold Glove awards. The Phillies' foursome hit for the highest average, .280."

But third baseman Schmidt took the year's .150 average to the bench Tuesday night, ending the league's longest consecutive game string of 331. Montanez' error was on the disabled list with a broken thumb suffered a night earlier.

Cash was in his accustomed spot at second base, but he went hitless in four trips and committed two of Philadelphia's five errors. And Montanez was at first base, but he was wearing a San Francisco uniform, having been traded to the Giants three weeks ago for reliever Gaylord Perry. Madden and Madden was alongside Bowa on the disabled list with a cracked kneecap.

Elsewhere in the NL, Los Angeles Dodgers beat New York Mets 10-4, Atlanta Braves defeated Chicago Cubs 7-4, Pittsburgh Pirates edged Houston Astros 9-8 and St. Louis Cardinals whipped San Diego Padres 9-1. Cincinnati and Montreal were not scheduled.

In addition to Cash, the Phils' rookie-infield-of-the-future, Dick Allen at first, Terry Harmon at second and Tony Taylor — two errors at third.

The Phillies' fifth error was in the one that cost them the ball game. San Francisco's Von Joshua singled with one out in the 10th off reliever Gene Garber and continued to third when Phils' ball got away from center fielder Jerry Martin, just up from the minors to take Maddox' spot on the roster. Joshua scored on a double by pinch hitter Glenn Adams and that was all. John Montefusco needed as he pitched a five-hit shutout.

RJR Robinson's ninth-inning single capped a three-run rally that lifted Pittsburgh over the Astros.

The Astros walked Manny Sanguillen intentionally to get to Robinson with two out and the score tied. Robinson, hitless in four previous at-bats with three strikeouts, laced a 1-2 pitch from Elsi Perez into left field to win the game and lift the Pirates into second place in the NL East, one-half game behind the Cubs and one game ahead of the Mets.

Jimmy Wynn knocked in three runs with his ninth and 10th homers for Los Angeles and Dave Lopes hit a three-run shot to back Burt Hooton's sixhit pitching. Steve Garvey started the Dodger scoring with a two-run double off Harry Parker in the first inning and Wynn homered in the third with a man on and again in the sixth. Ed Kranepool homered for the Mets.

Marty Perez' two-run, two-and single off Chicago's Rick Reuschel, following an intentional walk to Ralph Garr snapped a 1-1 tie in the seventh inning. The Braves added four runs in the eighth on a single by Garr, Phil Niekro checked the Cubs on seven hits, including a home run by Reuschel.

Lee Brock hit a homer for St. Louis and Bob Forsch pitched a five-hitter. The 35-year-old Brock, who was struggling with a .233 average May 9, improved his mark to .262. He led off the first inning with a single, stugged a bases-empty home run in the third, a run-scoring triple in the fifth and a double in the eighth.

Coach Gets Heave-ho But Tomahawks Win

Coach Marley Kells of the Tomahawks got the chop from game officials, but the Long Island club held on for a 19-17 win over Quebec Caribous in one of two National Lacrosse League contests Tuesday night.

Kells was banished at 8:08 of the second period for arguing a slashing call and the Tomahawks entered the intermission with an 18-11 lead. Quebec only scored the host club 6-1 in the final 30 minutes but could not overcome the deficit.

Draw from Hat Does the Trick

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Del Crandall has come up with a most unusual way to win a baseball game.

The Milwaukee Brewers manager, in a desperate move to change his luck, had the lineup picked out of a hat at random by the players Tuesday night and it resulted in a 9-8 victory over Chicago White Sox.

"I was just looking for something to kind of take the pressure off things and I thought it was worth a try," said Crandall, whose team had lost six consecutive games and eight of nine before Tuesday night. "Billy Martin did the same thing a couple of years ago."

The Milwaukee starters determined their positions in the batting order by drawing scraps of paper with numbers written on them. This luck of the draw found Hank Aaron, the all-time home-run king, batting seventh and Kurt Bevacqua, a .158 hitter, in the cleanup spot.

That wasn't all. Aaron suggested to Crandall that he play left field instead of starting in his familiar designated hitter position and Crandall agreed.

In the other American League games, Kansas City Royals beat New York Yankees 3-0, Minnesota Twins defeated Detroit Tigers 6-5, Cleveland Indians defeated Boston Red Sox 4-3 and Oakland A's defeated Baltimore Orioles 4-2. The Boston-Texas game was postponed by rain.

Bobby Mitchell capped a five-run fourth inning with a three-run homer, rallying Milwaukee over Chicago. The Brewers rallied from a 4-0 deficit to win it for rookie Tom Hausman, who relieved Ed Sprague in the second inning.

BEEF BARBECUES WITHOUT COSTLY STEAKS

It pesterhouse and sirloin for barbecues are beyond your summer budget, try some of the cheaper and less tender cuts like lower round, blade, chuck, shoulder, brisket ribs.

But remember that cuts other than those from the loin or prime ribs are less tender and adapt your cooking method accordingly. For example, pot broiling ribs, can be simmered first in their grill them, brushing with barbecue sauce while browning them over the coals. Or first treat with a meat tenderizer, then barbecue.

Some of the less-tender beef cuts are more flavorful than those from the loin. And if the demand for the more expensive cuts for barbecue steaks increase, supply could catch up so that their price would be more in line with our means.

Flaming Wreck As Sneva Slams Into Wall

More Precautions Needed Warns USAC Supervisor

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — As a result of a crash during Sunday's Indianapolis 500 which left driver Tom Sneva with burns over 15 per cent of his body, one official is promoting the installation of fire extinguishers in race cars.

Frank Del Roy, technical supervisor for the United States Auto Club (USAC), said the fuel which ignited, and burned Sneva's cause from a five-gallon "sump" mounted behind the driver's head.

The tank didn't have a quick-close valve on it, and when the hose from it pulled off, the fuel sprayed."

Del Roy said he would recommend this summer that the fire-spitting tank be outlawed. In its place, he will recommend installing the main gas tank in the racers, providing proper energy-absorbing material is installed around the tank.

As a stop-gap measure, he said he would recommend that cars running USAC races in the future have lighter-weight, self-sealing valves installed on the small tank near the driver.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)

Driver Tom Sneva, injured in a crash in Sunday's Indianapolis 500-mile auto race, was moved Tuesday to a private room at Methodist Hospital.

Although he suffered first, second and third-degree burns over 15 per cent of his body, doctors said Sneva might be well enough to go home in seven to 10 days.

"I could be racing again by the Milwaukee 150 on June 9," Sneva said Tuesday. "But I'm definitely be back by the time progine starts June 19 for the Pocono 500."

Car owner Roger Penske said he will have a new car ready when Sneva is ready to drive again. Sneva's Penske McLaren, wrecked Sunday, was curled off in two dump trucks.

Tournament of Champs Will Return in '1976

ATLANTA (AP) — The consolidation of professional golf's Tournament of Champions was rescinded Tuesday and the event re-scheduled for 1976.

The decision was announced by pro golf commissioner Deane Beman at a meeting of the leading players at the Atlanta Country Club on Tuesday night following a daytime meeting of the Tournament Players Division Policy Board.

"The board reconsidered the matter today and voted for to reinstate you (and the board has rescinded) its previous decision and will re-schedule the Tournament of Champions in 1976," Beman told the players.

The Tournament of Champions, for 32 men on the game's top events, was cancelled in a group call from Beman shortly after the event's contract expired after the 1975 tournament in Carlsbad, Calif., in April.

The players expressed indignation at the time, and the action has been the subject of intense speculating for three weeks.

Tournament was cancelled the action was taken because of a conflict in the Tournament of Champions and the annual contest with a new and expanded World Series of Golf which will go into effect in 1976.

The Tournament of Champions was reinstated, Beman said, (or a commission by the board.

"The board's action was based on the expressed willingness of the sponsor to adjust the format of the Tournament of Champions to accomodate the development of the World Series of Golf," Beman said Tuesday in a prepared statement, to the players.

Bugner A Must

NEW YORK (AP) — Mohammad Ali said Tuesday he will beat Jeb Bugner in his next title defence because "if a white man whipped me, I couldn't walk the streets of America."

"I couldn't go to Harlem or to Watts," said the heavyweight champion at a news conference to formally announce a closed-circuit championship telecast-er, topped by his fight against European champion Bugner at Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, July 1.

The fight will probably start about 10 a.m. Malaysian time and be seen on television in the U.S. at 10 p.m. EDT. The other two fights, to take place June 30 in Madison Square Garden, will be a middleweight title fight between champion Carlos Monzon of Argentina and Tony Licata of New Orleans, and a light heavyweight title bout between champion Victor Galindez and Jorge Ahumada, both of Argentina.

Promoter Don King said that Ali was getting $3 million, Bugner $500,000, Monzon $2,000 and the other three $20,000 each. He said the $60,000 for Monzon strictly was five-door price and that the middleweight champion's total purse would be in six figures with his closed-circuit cut. King also said that Galindez would get something from closed circuit.

SAY MEDIA SEXIST

NEW YORK (Reuter) — The National Conference on Women and the Media has demanded that publications and broadcast stations no longer be "mere pieces for the immortality of Playboy." No Stodgy Menus By Camp Caterers

EDMONTON (CP) — "It's Tuesday, it must be pork chops" is definitely not the philosophy behind Canada's largest bush-camp catering company.

"We try to model our meals after the traditional Sunday dinner," says Doug Cox, president of Edmonton-based Fortier and Associates Ltd.

The company, which caters to about 2,000 workers daily in isolated bush camps across Alaska to the Gulf of Mexico, emphasizes "good home-style family-style foods," he said.

Fresh vegetables, choice steak, Yorkshire pudding and banana-cream pie are provided to workers as far north as the Arctic Circle, and almost all items are "cooked from scratch."

The Canadian-owned company serves about 3.5 million meals a year to oil, construction, and mine workers at about 150 locations in Canada and the United States.

"We have to be able to provide supplies on the spot at the moment to a client who may be 1,500 miles north of here," Cox said.

Although most of the camps are in Alberta, British Columbia, and the Northwest Territories, Fortier operations opened offices in Anchorage, Alaska, and Denver, Colo., and has had inquiries from as far away as the Middle East.

Founded in 1948 by Fortier to provide camp trailers, the company expanded into catering in 1955 and has continued to provide both services since then.

Fortier's camp equipment includes house trailers with concrete beds with spring-filled mattresses, individual closets, modern bathroom, shower and dining area, office space and a recreational area if desired.

Clients are charged a daily base rate of $21 a man, which includes three meals, laundry and room services.

"It's like a hotel, really," Mr. Cox said.

Steaks, roasts and chicken are selected and prepared by the company's own butcher shop in Edmonton, which employs up to seven persons to ensure a continuous supply of fresh meat.

Good cooks are important too. Cooks, who may be of either sex, are allowed some leeway to do what they do best" and are rated for ability to create "good, hearty meals."

Menus are built around the nutritive requirements of physical laborers and prepared in advance; then orders are filled at the Edmonton warehouse and shipped to the camp site, Mr. Cox said.

The company uses various methods of transportation to get supplies and personnel to the camps, including trucks, river barges, tractor-trailer convoys, helicopters and Hercules aircraft.

Catering style is dependent on the camp. Camps usually range from 96 to 180 men, with six per average. Four employees man the small camps, including a cook, cook's helper and two cabin attendants.

"In small camps, we try to make mealtime as personal and as comfortable," Mr. Cox said.

The workers are served at 15-man tables, meat is cooked to order, personal items are placed on the table, and there is no limit on quantity."

Large camps necessitate assembly-line serving, but menus are varied and no quantity limitations are imposed there either, Mr. Cox said.

Of course we all use some trade gimmicks though, such as always serving soup before a meal to decrease the workers' appetites a bit.

Providing meals in the wilderness is not without problems. Water supply is often limited. And, although camps are stocked with two-week reserves, supplies occasionally fail to arrive on time.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

The late Willard S. Karn was probably the greatest exponent of lead-directing bidding of all time.

Take today's hand as an example. After North jumped to three spades, Willard decided he was going to make it. He could have bid six directly. This was back in the early 30s before bidding was at all scientific, but Willard decided that he would open a club. Of course, if West held the ace-king of clubs there would be no way to stop a club lead, but Willard couldn't help that.

Willard could have bid four clubs and then jumped to six.

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	2 ♣	Pass	2 ♦
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	3 N.T.	Pass	7

Opening lead — ♠ K Q J 5 3 ♥ 9 4 ♦ A 5 ♣ A 9 8 7 6

What do you do next?

A — Bid four clubs. This hand is just going to produce one trick in notrump.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding two clubs your partner has jumped to three clubs over your six spades. What do you do now?

Tubal Pregnancy May Be Repeated

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 35 years old and divorced. During my marriage I had one miscarriage followed a year later by a ruptured ectopic pregnancy in the tube.

My periods have been erratic, averaging one every four months. I am considering marriage again, and would like to have a child.

What are my chances, at my age, of having a normal child? What does my ability to become pregnant? Would I have another ectopic pregnancy?— M.W.

As ectopic pregnancy is one in which the ovum attaches itself to one of the Fallopian tubes, beginning its fetal development there. The result can be very serious, sometimes, but more often the growing fetus will fail in your case) rupture the tube. Surgical repair is necessary, including the tube involved.

If the other tube remains intact, then another pregnancy is possible. Your age would be no bar. However, with your erratic menstrual cycles, your fertility may be impaired. The possibility of a second ectopic pregnancy cannot be predicted, except to say that the conditions which caused the first miscarriage could cause another.

The surgeon who performed the operation would be able to tell you the condition of the second tube. It would also be important to know the cause of your ectopic (tubal) pregnancy. Inflammation of the tube prior to pregnancy is the cause in about 25 per cent of the cases. Other causes can be a defective tube, or the implantation within the tube), or adhesions from previous surgery.

About all you can do is try to become pregnant as soon as possible, if your physician feels you are capable. You should probably discuss your limited fertility with your future wife before your marriage, especially if it is a matter of great importance to him. There always remains the possibility of adoption, and this, too, should be discussed.

A Further Note to Mrs. G.F.:

Regarding bowlegs, many infants appear to have bowlegs, but they eventually straighten out. However, true bowlegs can be caused by what is called internal tibial torsion, a matter of tension in one of the larger bones in the lower legs. If not corrected, this condition can persist. The ideal time for such correction would be at the age of three or four months. The premature condition could be evaluated by a bone specialist, if the pediatrician so suspected.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been experiencing dizziness and dizziness for about two years. Could this be eye fatigue? Can eye fatigue cause this? What can I do about it?—K.K.

It is most likely something more serious than simple eye strain, causing headaches that have persisted as long as have yours. If you are glasses, you may need to have your prescription adjusted. Or your headaches could signal something more serious, such as beginning glaucoma or cataracts.

I suggest you see an eye specialist. Do not let the situation deteriorate. Eye strain, in and of itself, is not usually the cause of such things as persistent headache and dizziness.

Your eyes are too valuable to allow such symptoms to go unchecked.

Dief Rolls Out His Big Guns To Fire Rousing Salvo at PM

OTTAWA (CP) — John Diefenbaker delved into his oratorical stockpile Wednesday and produced an indignant denunciation of Prime Minister Trudeau for attempting "to decapitate my reputation" in the public mind.

The former Progressive Conservative prime minister, clearly dissecting a Trudeau speech, unveiled his latest crusade as a reformer by name in the Commons as he introduced a motion in favor of making statements "that bear on the reputation of the honourable member to the facts."

Mr. Diefenbaker's target was Mr. Trudeau from the wrath of the world, and Prime Minister Albert Peter Hees when Mr. Trudeau denied these specific statements in a speech in Montreal last Monday.

Liberals jeered and booed but Mr. Diefenbaker brushed them aside with comments such as: "I have touched a sore over there, Mr. Speaker," and "Mr. Speaker, is there anything that can pacify these guilty souls?"

He said he was unjustly accused by Mr. Trudeau of building a bomb shelter at substantial public cost, of extending his official Harrington Lake minister, Mr. Trudeau's reply next week.

The statements in question were made during Mr. Trudeau's one-hour, 25-minute speech in which, with comments on his residence, his office and the cost of living, Mr. Trudeau:

Not only was he falsely accused, said Mr. Diefenbaker, but some of the speaking attributed to him by Mr. Trudeau was in fact done under Liberal governments

While Belleville Kiwanis peanut drive chairman Armin Quickert (left) loads Charlie Bristol's tray with cans of peanuts and jars of peanut butter, Bert Bauman (centre) offers to buy a can to relieve the pressure. The three Kiwanians indulged in the smitty hijinks prior to the club's annual blitz of Belleville Wednesday, which netted about $2,500 for charity work and the Kiwanis sheltered workshop.

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — A 16-year-old student, whose last note to his parents said he was "fed up with life . . . I am going out to eliminate people," killed his teacher and a fellow student, then committed suicide, in a shooting rampage at his school Wednesday.

Michael Slobodian, a Grade 11 student, went to Centennial secondary school in this city northwest of Toronto and killed Margaret Wright, 25, his English and art teacher, John Slinger, 17, and wounded 13 other students before turning a semi-automatic rifle on himself.

Chief Douglas Burrows of Peel regional police said Slobodian entered the men's washroom of the school at about 11:30 a.m. armed with two rifles—.44-calibre and .22-calibre hidden in a guitar case—and fired at random, killing a student and seriously wounding another.

Chief Burrows said Slobodian then left the washroom and said: "I must be immediate," wounding two male students, then fired in the general direction of a home economics classroom, wounding five female students and one male student.

He proceeded through a first-floor hallway and fired at random in the area of the school's cafeteria, inflicting minor gunshot wounds to six students, and turned towards the art room, fatally wounding Miss Wright and seriously wounding two male students.

Then "the gunman turned the gun on himself, inflicting a fatal head wound," the police report said.

"I was standing there outside of the hall when I heard a bang," said Pat White, 17, a Grade 12 student. "I started to kneel it not decided against it because everybody was running and I was afraid something was wrong. I heard another bang and the people started yelling that someone had been shot."

Trudy Wright, 15, said she was walking toward the cafeteria for lunch when "I turned and saw a guy with a rifle and he turned and shot towards the art room and then he shot towards the washroom."

Mike Hollis, 15, a Grade 9 student, said:

"The guy apparently came out of the washroom shooting everywhere. He shot the art teacher. The shots were so loud we had to plug our ears. . . . I had a good look and the guy shot his own head off.

"His nose was blown off to one side. Another boy was lying in the doorway moaning and saying why did it happen to him. . . . There was moaning and screaming everywhere and a lot of blood."

Steve Jefferson, 18, a Grade 12 student, said he and his girlfriend were standing in the hall when the gunman "cocked two rifles and fired them at the ceiling."

"Then I looked back I saw the guy behind me fall," he said.

Dena Slobodian, 18, sister of Michael, said that "he was perfectly fine. There was nothing wrong with him this morning."

She said her brother, before returning to school from a Christmas break, wrote a note that he loved his family and was going to kill people and "eliminate people."

Miss Slobodian left upset because Mrs. Wright had taken away her. She said Michael had missed another English class, Dena said, and he hated English classes.

She said she then laid down and shortly after, Peter Slobodian, 47, their father, woke her up and showed her the note he had found on Michael's dresser.

Miss Slobodian said she and her father, who recently suffered a heart attack, went to the school to find wounded students being carried out.

Mr. Slobodian telephoned police.

Mother Tends Wounded Unaware Son Is Dead

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — The mother of one of the three persons slain by a high school gunman Wednesday accidentally fired first aid to wounded students, unaware that the 17-year-old son lay bleeding to death only a short distance away.

Pat Slinger, who is taking two subjects at Centennial secondary school and is a St. John ambulance first aid instructor, was one of the first persons on the scene after the shooting.

Mrs. Slinger said she was told someone was shooting inside the school about 11:40 a.m. and went to investigate.

She said she ordered the corridor, saw a great deal of blood and a boy propped in darkness in a pool of blood. Beside the boy were two rifles and several shells.

"I went into the classroom and there was a woman lying on her back . . . with a bullet wound in her chest," she said.

Mrs. Slinger said she administered first aid to the woman, later identified as one of the dead, Margaret Wright, her arts and language teacher.

She said the teacher was conscious with blood bobbing from her mouth. Mrs. Slinger said she told the teacher to stay calm and went back to the boy in the hallway.

"He said he wasn't going to die. There was no head."

She said she used pressure for her first-aid kit and "we worked . . . all of us," not knowing several others were her own son lay fatally wounded.

Mrs. Slinger, a library clerk specialist with Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd., in Oakville, Ont., said later: "John was one of those boys who said: 'There couldn't save him.'"

She said she "wished I could have helped," and Mrs. Slinger, who was taken to hospital in the ambulance with Dean Nadon, one of the injured, said school teacher Ken Whitton is to see whether John was safe.

At the hospital a nurse brought her son's wallet and told her the words she was operating table.

Later, unable to hold back tears, she added: "He was such a lovable expectation."

Bank of Canada Governor Says Slump May End Soon

OTTAWA (CP) — Gerald Bouey, governor of the Bank of Canada, said Wednesday that money available for loans should be held down as part of an attempt to reduce the rate of inflation.

Mr. Bouey said that Canada has a reasonable chance of coming out of a recession soon, but must expect relatively large losses in foreign trade and relatively high unemployment for some time.

"The distinctly easier monetary environment that we have had since last summer is one of a number of influences working in the direction of an economic upturn," Mr. Bouey said in a speech to the annual meeting of the Canadian Life Insurance Association.

However, he said it would not help the economy if the bank simply provided enough money for economic expansion without regard to inflation.

Money supply was increased in the early 1970s in an attempt to boost economic activity and cut into unemployment and this was one of the main causes of current high inflation rates, he said.

Making more money available helps hold down short-term interest rates but is about three years—but long-term rates are affected by expectations for future inflation rates, he said.

Jail Is Urged For Bad Meat

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal law should provide a minimum one-year jail term for persons convicted of selling tainted meat, Armand Cassette (Trois-Rivières) told the Commons on Wednesday.

A person convicted of a second offence should be sent to jail for five years without parole, he said in describing bad meat dealers as "people without scruples."

Extortion From Banks Continues

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Provincial Police estimated Wednesday that was taken today in the 13th extortion on financial institutions in Quebec in eight months.

Two attempts to extort $138,000 from Montreal banks each failed Wednesday when money was not picked up for, detailed-drop-off-points.

Police said Roger Falcandais, a Caisse Populaire manager, had his wife kept held in their suburban Chateauguay Centre home for four hours late Wednesday night and early today by two men armed with a small calibre revolver.

One man left at 3 a.m., taking the flyer to the nearby Caisse Populaire. He telephoned his partner at the manager's house after he had taken the money, police said. The second man left the manager and his wife unharmed.

In one of the unsuccessful extortion attempts Wednesday, a $138,000-dollar payment left in a telephone booth by the manager of a downtown branch of the Bank of Montreal was retrieved when someone did not show.

In the second incident Wednesday, police were alerted by 36-year-old Claude Rivard, who had been tied up with his mother and two brothers after thieves broke into the Rivard home shortly after 4 a.m.

The thieves had forced his father to go to the north-end Montreal branch of the Provincial Bank and instructed him to leave $150,000 in a parking lot.

The youth broke free after the family had been left in a van in suburban Ville d'Anjou, and alerted police who staked out the parking lot.

But the extortionists failed to show up, according to police, because they were apparently warned off by reports on local radio station based on information picked up on police radio network monitors.

Alliance's Weaknesses May Show

NATO Just 15-minute Topic When Trudeau and Dane Confer

COPENHAGEN (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau leaves here early today for the vital North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) summit meeting in Brussels, a two-day session that some analysts fear may point up the alliance's weakness as much as its strength.

He departs after a one-day round of talks with Danish Prime Minister Anker Jorgensen in which Trudeau said he again stressed Canada's and Canada's proposed contractual link with the European Economic Community (EEC).

He and Jorgensen indicated his attitude would be positive when the matter is brought before the community's council of ministers, the policy body, it said-assumed.

There already have been two first-round talks with Danish Foreign Secretary James Callaghan—in which he and Trudeau forces the West in advance of crucial East-West European security conference later this year.

There already have been two years of negotiations toward a declaration of basic principles on security and co-operation and the crunch comes at a 35-country meeting in Helsinki, Finland, now likely to be put off until the late fall.

Trudeau has so little time was allowed for preparation for such a high-level alliance meeting pessimistic observers in suggest that the outcome will be something short of a vigorous declaration of a new NATO course in a fast-changing world.

Ford to Try to Push Greek, Turk into Pact

BRUSSELS (AP) — After five hours of sleep, President Ford launched a new search for a Cyprus settlement today before joining leaders of other North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries for a summit meeting.

Ford held separate meetings with the premiers of Greece and Turkey. There was no immediate word on the outcome of the talks, but U.S. officials expressed guarded optimism in advance.

The president also had arranged meetings with Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of West Germany and the premiers of Luxembourg, Denmark and Portugal.

Control of Downtown Projects Sought

Council to Be Asked to Pass Bylaw On Development But Powers in Doubt

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville city council will be asked to approve a downtown development bylaw today that it is not yet sure is enforceable.

The proposed document was handed to city legal staff five months ago to determine if powers granted in the document are enforceable.

Legal staff replied Wednesday saying specific test questions would be needed to test enforcement.

Several months ago the city's industrial commission urged council to accept a bylaw that would give the city administration the right to adjudicate all applications for downtown development. The document would also give powers to control several facets of new development and the right to require that certain standards be met by developers.

A similar bylaw is now in effect for subdivision development under which council can control the lay-out of all phases of housing development.

The area affected by the downtown document extends from the east side of Pinnacle, bounded on the north by Moira St. and on the south by Dundas St.

Because the downtown bylaw would give council such far-ranging powers, the document was handed over to city solicitor Thomas Lafy for legal interpretation some five months ago.

Mr. Lafy replied to the committee Wednesday in a letter stating there is little he can do without more specific instructions with which to test the city's powers and determine if the bylaw would be enforceable.

The committee then resolved to ask the city solicitor specifically if the city — through the bylaw — would be able to demand certain set-back provisions, open spaces, side walk space and if the city could demand amounts of parking spaces to be made available by the developer.

Ald. Joe Cox, chairman of the committee, said he feels the proposed bylaw will be approved by council.

"There'll be a lot of discussion but I think council will generally agree with the document," he said.

Ald. Cox' committee recommended to council that the bylaw be accepted. Before the document becomes law, a number of public meetings will be held in the Quinte area giving merchants an opportunity to discuss its ramifications.

Ald. Cox said following the meeting he hopes some firm legal word will be available concerning the powers of the bylaw before council sits down to discuss it.

Debate Continues Over Street Repair Costs

A drawn-out dispute over how the costs of improvements on a section of Sidney St. would be charged against taxpayers will linger a little longer.

The issue has been raised before council in recent months by householders on the west side of Sidney — between College and Tracey streets.

Among other requests residents have petitioned to have costs of extending Sidney's four-lane arterial route to the strip charged to the city's general rate. This would call for a review of city hall's policy on local improvement charges which involves only landowners adjacents to improvement projects.

Such a decision can only be made if three-quarters of council are present, noted Ald. Joe Coe.

Because of out-of-town convention rate, conference only five of council's 10 aldermen and Mayor Jeffery were present at council this week.

Ald. Coe recommended the issue be deferred to next Monday's meeting of council.

Resident to Appeal Zoning for Apartment

An appeal — which automatically goes to the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) for study — has been lodged against rezoning that would permit an apartment block on West Bridge St.

City council last month approved the rezoning which would allow construction of a 28-unit apartment building on three lots known as the Willard Block.

Council this week passed the supporting bylaw amending the zoning.

At the same time, it received a protest from A. E. Lasier, 38 West Bridge St. against the amendment.

Mr. Lasier said traffic in the area already is excessive and apartment building would compound the problem.

A second objection, from Thelma Davis, 14 Willard St., was ruled not applicable to the issue.

However, council will forward the Lasier protest to the OMB for consideration along with the amending bylaw.

Trenton Waterfront May Get Facelift Under New Program

By AL RABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Mayor Bob Patrick called "great news" the announcement Tuesday by Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier that the Ontario government plans to put $500,000 in 1975 into a program to develop waterfront facilities on the Great Lakes.

Provincial money will be spent as part of a beautification program to develop marinas and boat-launching facilities, and easier access to lakefront shorelines.

In his announcement, the minister specifically singled out Trenton as one of three municipalities where work could begin soon.

Mayor Patrick said Wednesday, the minister's announcement is "great news" and the fulfillment by Mr. Bernier of an indication he gave the mayor in mid-February that a waterfront development program was forthcoming.

The mayor asked Mr. Bernier whether the provincial government would give Trenton help in developing a marina off Centennial Park during a mini-cabinet meeting in Belleville.

Mayor Patrick said he had no idea what form the program will have on Trenton, but expected some information to arrive in a letter he sent the minister this week.

The letter outline the town's efforts to elicit funds for various resource-related projects — marina and greenbelt — in Trenton.

He attributed the minister's mention of Trenton specifically to two factors.

Firstly, the mayor brought Trenton's desire for assistance to the minister's attention in Belleville in February. Secondly, as a municipality that sits at the mouth of the Trent River and the entrance to the Trenton Canal, Trenton, he said doesn't have anything where a need exists.

The provincial program will pay municipalities 75 per cent of their costs for labor-related projects, including the purchase of privately-held lands. Federal government assistance — in the form of breakwater construction and harbor improvement p— will also be forthcoming.

A natural resources ministry spokesman said Wednesday the entire $500,000 will be spread out over a number of municipalities, with no single one receiving all the funds earmarked this year.

He said the government has no specific communities in mind as recipients of funds. No framework for the program has yet been set up.

Mr. Bernier said some waterfront development projects could begin immediately and would be staged over several years before completion.

It is not known if Trenton is among the communities made reference to by the minister.

Architect at Work

Restoration architect Peter Stokes and his assistant David Lane (right left) Wednesday visited the Macaulay House adjacent to the Prince Edward County Museum c accompanied by Jeanne Minhinnick, an historic furnishings expert from Prince Edward. The trio studied the entrance to the old rectory and discussed removal of the porch added after construction of the house.

Committee Approves Major Restoration of Museum

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Restoration architect Peter Stokes of Niagara-On-The-Lake is expected later this week to begin restoration of Macaulay House in accordance with a master plan released recently.

No contract for the work has been signed by the museum management committee, but approved Mr. Stokes for the project which is split into three phases spanning a five-year period.

Mr. Stokes, who played a major role in restoration of Upper Canada Village met Wednesday with the Prince Edward Museum management committee to discuss Macaulay House.

Later, in an interview, he said June and July will be "pretty productive months" in relation to the old rectory adjacent to the county museum.

Mr. Stokes added measurements on the property will begin within the next two or three weeks.

Restoration work will begin on phase one in accord with the master plan, target date for completion of initial stages of the work has been set but Mr. Stokes predicts changes "before the snow flies."

Museum curator James Gooding noted Macaulay House will be opened in the living room area only for tourists this summer.

He added this part of the house can be viewed "eventually this summer after needed work is completed.

To assist with restoration of Macaulay House the curator is seeking old photographs of the rectory as it may have appeared in various decades.

Chamber Continues Drive For More New Members

TRENTON — A Trenton Chamber of Commerce drive to boost its membership has fallen short of its 150 member goal and has prompted the group to solicite the past year its May 31 deadline.

Treasurer Cec Birt said Wednesday a membership drive over the past several months has produced 135 members, 15 more than signed the Chamber roll in 1974.

To date, $7,000 has been collected in dues and represents half of the Chamber's 1975 budget of $14,073.

Mr. Birt said the Chamber is "behind the eight-ball" as far as finances are concerned. He anticipated a deficit year of $3,000, caused mainly by an accumulation of debts over the past two years.

The $3,000 shortage this year is due to the failure of the Chamber to get an $8,000 grant from Trenton council.

"The town only gave us $5,000," said Mr. Birt. "The point is that we needed $8,000 to balance the year off."

Trenton's grant is $2,000 less than the Chamber requested but $1,000 more than it received in 1974.

Chamber officials will continue the push to increase membership in the hope of reaching part of needed funds to offset the deficit. Mr. Birt said he expects some new members at the end of this month, when most business houses close their books for the month.

Notice of the continued drive marks the second time the Chamber has postponed an end to the push for new members. May 15 was the original deadline.

REAL ESTATE:
FROSTING THE CAKE

Pat McCluney
Realty Ltd.
A. E. McCluney
When the time comes to sell your home, the inevitable question will arise, Which Realtor will stay with the house and which will not? Certain Realtors carry little doubt such as tacked down walls well carpeting, showy windows, and items permanently attached to the house or property. They normally stay.
It's a good idea to include as many extras as possible. If you'll have no further use for draperies, particularly when they were made for an odd-sized window, be sure to include them. That porch furniture you will have no further use for or that extra lawn mower may be just the "frosting on the cake". The idea of putting something extra in a strong saleability factor, especially if it cannot be easily added in its present surroundings.
One bit of advice. Items should either stay or go! Do not try to sell them to the buyer. The sale of a house is a big enough negotiation without muddying the water.

Canada's Mining Industry Battles Overseas Competition as Well as Recession

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumers' Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Remember when Canada's mining industry was the undisputed "world leader"?

Our mineral deposits were thought to be unlimited and the demand for our ores for essential the supply.

That's all changed today.

Much depends to rival Canada's have been discovered since the recession here and abroad, which has trimmed industrial demand for metals and minerals.

As obvious example is the slowdown in car production because of sluggish showroom sales.

This has left the mining companies stuck with high inventories of some metals, and forced them to halt or curtail operations at several Canadian mines and refineries.

Financing these inventories has been responsible largely for the mining companies, because of the generally high level of metal on short-term borrowings last year and this.

On top of everything else, some provinces have sharply increased the taxes and royalties they impose on mines, while Ottawa has refused to allow these provincial levies to be deducted from federal taxable income.

Mining is a major industry in Canada, as production figures show.

Mineral output in 1934 was valued at $43 billion, or 4.6 per cent of our gross national product.

Last year's exports of crude and fabricated metals were worth $8.3 billion. The United States took about half, the United Kingdom 15 per cent and Japan 14 per cent.

Canadian imports in the same category—but mostly in fabricated form—amount to $2.5 billion last year. Our biggest supplier was the United States.

A certain proportion of the imports consist of specialized metals and forms that Canada may never be able to produce economically, but a substantial volume could conceivably be manufactured in Canada for the Canadian market.

Why must we still import as much as we do? Largely because of the inadequate capacity of Canadian refineries, which is being offset to some extent by current expansion programs.

But any significant further displacement of imports depends upon much greater investment in Canadian steel-making capacity. And that, in turn, is hampered by the relatively small amount of savings.

The primary mining industry itself will be expanded with the steel-makers for capital in the years to come.

Mines will probably have to invest more heavily in their operations over the next few years—in order to maintain the protection standards required by law, to pay for capital equipment and transportation facilities, and to introduce new exploration techniques that are more effective than ever before, are the familiar surveying methods.

Some mine operators may decide that the risks inherent in any mining venture are too great to justify the initial investment and the subsequent increases—especially in view of present and probable immediate world conditions.

Others already in Canada's major mining companies have gone through rough times before. Given a measure of world economic recovery in the immediate future, they ought to be able to survive their current troubles.

A Changing World

The scene is an area driveln and nearby a young couple sit in their small import waiting for the show to begin. Overhead is a full moon just hours away from eclipse. In the car is the couple's small daughter; about six years old, she is standing in the back.

Soon afterwards the youngster appears to have bedded down in the back seat, which is a good thing for this performance is supposed to be restricted to persons over 18. There is another anomaly: an advertisement on the screen informs patrons there is bottle-warming service at the canteen.

It's a good thing the youngster is asleep for other reasons. As the teenage girl hitchhikers of the French-made film exclaim, on finding what at first seemed to be an empty mansion in the woods, "little did we know what was to happen next." It was the start of another evening's mass entertainment in Belleville 1975-style.

It was what is commonly called a "skin flick," which if put together with an eye to art, social significance and the times in which we live, with an eye as well to the environment or background in which the film is made, can have some redeeming features; they can even be entertaining after a fashion.

There was little of it in this case. The mansion turned out to be home to a petty thief and some companions who accost the girls of making off with jewellery. What followed was a crude mixture of eroticism, perversion, and sadism. And some parents might have wondered if all those young people at the canteen at intermission were 18 and over.

A second feature exhibited some mildly entertaining science fiction with erotic overtones which of course was the intent of the program. It adds up to the new style of exploitation — exploitation — that has burst upon society. Or what Pope Paul has denounced as "the most ignoble and seductive" of amusements.

The public though must have its right to choose. Movie houses and drive-ins provide other film fare too, some of which can be termed wholesome." However, there is increasing emphasis on sexual exploitation — often amateurish from a production and acting standpoint — but no less corrupting for that. In these circumstances, the movie house should be carefully and very likely has applies to parents accompanied by small children.

Y's Debt

The Belleville Family YMCA is well on its way toward a greater degree of financial solvency.

For some time now city alderman and businessman Ben Corbe has been working quietly toward this end.

In doing so he has enlisted the aid of industry and individuals — commercial enterprises and supporters alike who believe in the Y and the work it is doing in this community.

The outcome is that the Y's debt now totals only $3,400.

This is still a fair amount of money, but consider that in February it was $58,000 and a year-and-a-half ago it was $87,750.

The debt is now at manageable, and very probably creditable proportions. In fact the debt may well be wiped out before long. This will only happen though with more of the same kind of backing; we are sure it will be forthcoming.

At a time of economic recession, this is a sign of the community's underlying stability and generosity.

Oshawa Times:

Community and Social Services Minister Rene Brunelle has taken a tiny step forward in his announcement of changes in general welfare benefits with his plan to encourage mothers to take full or part-time jobs.

Only one bigger step remains. Town those snotty-free fathers and make them help carry the load.

[With a logic that escapes us, he announced increased benefits which would still leave a mother and two children getting more via welfare than by working at the province's minimum wage.

The benefits in the case cited would total $423 per month. If the mother worked at the minimum of $2.40 per hour she would bring home 60 cents less in a 31-day month.

Havrot Affair, Denticare, and All

By DON O'HEARN

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Premier Davis has been quoted as saying there is nothing in the PC party constitution or in precedent which would have given authority to Ed Havrot being nominated in Timiskaming.

The premier is a bit loose with his history for there is a precedent of a premier doing just that.

Back in 1955 James Dempsey who had represented the riding for the PC's for three terms was renominated.

But there had been a bit of a scandal in lumber deals which Dempsey, minister of lands and Forest, as premier and leader of the party, refused to accept him as a candidate. He declared the nomination meeting void.

But the local party wouldn't accept this. They held a further nomination meeting a week later and again nominated Dempsey, who went on to again win the seat.

Davis as premier could have had in mind was that there was no successful precedent and that he could have been paying with a loss of face if he had tried to step in against Havrot.

For the same reason he will have supported as with the Dempsey nomination.

It is noteworthy that there has been no criticism from private members of the government of the appointment of Attorney Maloney as provincial ombudsman.

One of the standard arguments against the appointment of an ombudsman was that he would be handling cases from which properly belonged to the elected members.

The way the position of J. C. McIlmer in his Royal Commission report on drug prices.

The members, however, apparently don't feel this way.

If anything they probably welcome establishment of the office for as a potential help to them in their work.

Premier Davis said that the province couldn't adopt denticare now.

He said the cost would be $80 million and there just wasn't the money at this time.

The question is whether this decision will carry through the election.

Such opposition parties undoubtedly will have some form of denticare in their platforms.

And they will be in the plaudits with wide appeal.

Particularly so in any family that recently has been hit by a dental bill.

And after all, compared to some of our spending today what is $20 million for such a vital service?

Leslie Frost's War with CBC

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
of The Intelligencer

Leslie Frost never had much liking for the CBC.

His most common description of the Corporation when its name came up was "damn fools".

Mr. Frost was a man of monetary bent. He would never spend a dollar when a nickel might do. And his opinion of CBC spending was roughly equivalent to that of drunken bar flies.

In his early days, however, this was only a dislike. He would go along with the agency. After all he was a politician.

But in 1958 that years as premier he was almost paranoic on the question of the Corporation.

This grew out of a situation in the 1958 election, the last one Frost ran.

It happens that I had a very slight part in it as I was on retainer with the CBC at the time.

The crux of the situation was how Frost could be covered on the election night broadcast.

He would be spending the evening at his Queen's Park quarters and the CBC's problem was that there was no way it could get from Fenwick to Toronto and no problem.

But Lindsay no way.

A month ahead of the election the CBC asked me to tell Frost about the arrangements that he was willing to go for so that the Fenwick-Toronto, the nearest point from which the CBC could transmit, it would drive two hours to Lindsay and even provide a helicopter.

It was a picture that I thought that the only possible way he could get on time if it was necessary to go through would be for the CBC to lay a land line from Fenwick to Lindsay. Otherwise this would be prohibitively expensive.

He didn't seem too concerned at the time, but said he wouldn't have his Lindsay broadcast. He always spent his election nights there and he wasn't going to change.

About a week ahead of the election, however, he publicly raised hell.

It apparently struck him that he would be losing out. Towards the end of campaigns he was always lavish anyway. And he let out a blast at the Corporation.

It was intensionally discriminating against him, he said. In federal election it had always managed to put all three party leaders on live. Yet in the case of the provincial election it wasn't doing this.

The CBC responded in offers publicity, but otherwise there was nothing it could do but have a live voice interview out of Lindsay (this could be worked with telephone lines) and put this on behind a still picture of the premier out of Toronto.

So on election night this was the way it happened. There were live interviews of Wintermeyer and MacDonald and a voice interview with Frost.

But the situation in the Lindsay headquarters was tense.

For the CBC, with easy access to Wintermeyer and MacDonald on election night and both and had a number of interviews with them. While there was still only one voice interview with Frost.

There was much grumbling that night and the next morning it was obvious that Frost was furious. And he remained furious. From that date on the CBC had a great problem in getting any cooperation out of him at all.

There was one strange quirk to this situation:

Frost seemed to the premier insisted that this intransigent attitude of the premier was not his own. It was Mr. Frost's failure to carry him live or even to have him on that he felt only the one appearance while his rivals had many.

Rather it was the still picture that he CBC had put on him.

It was a picture that Mr. Frost particularly disliked and he insisted that this was Corporation intrigue.

She had an extremely personal dislike of Mr. Frost the premier, of course. And she wasn't trying to hide it.

So it was said that his baby attitude of his last years was the result of a mental his wife as anything else.

Even the Bunny Girls Have Lost Their Bounce as Ulster's Malaise Deepens

By KEVIN DOYLE
LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (CP) — On the barrel of an old cannon lying about the historic walls of this ravaged city, two graffiti artists have left symbolic, if baffling, testimony to their being closely attuned to the times and mood of Ulster.

Written on one side is the strident, traditional Roman Catholic refrain: "No Queen No Crown, no Church, no town." On the other is an angry Protestant rejoinder: "Up Paisley, he's our man."

Ironically, although they were probably accidental, on the metal many years ago, when Ulster's violence was most overt and spectacular, the sentiment they express new evoke a hint of nostalgia among even hardened Catholic and Protestants.

"That was how where we stood," said Billy Smyth, a bowling Ulster Orangeman. "If you were a pepist republican you were a young one (fan.) Ian Paisley was our champion.

"No matter what you think of the actions we took and which we thought necessary, we'll have to concede that there was a strong measure of discipline in the old days. Now that's starting to go, I'm afraid."

He's not the only one who's afraid. Ulster is in its last months or so a series of disasters and the bunny girls seem somehow more unsettling than anything else.

The troubles seem to have begun after the provisional, or extremist, wing of the Republican Army called a ceasefire in February, to be extended it indefinitely in January.

Almost overnight, a plethora of republican murder squads appeared on the scene, sprung up to fill the gap left by the provisionals. Informed sources say they are mostly extremely young, between 16 and 19 years old, weaned on violence, out of work and full of hate.

The hatred of the Catholic groups is not directed as much at the provisional leadership, whom they accuse of cowardice in calling the truce, as at Protestant civil groups. Protestant murder squads now are also operating in the Catholic ghettos, decimating Catholic leaders.

At the same time a split has developed in the Marxist official wing of the IRA which has been responsible for most of the British forces since 1972.

A break-away group, calling itself the Irish Republican Socialist Party (IRSP), is widely believed to have killed as many as 30 members of the official wing in a feud which has followed the split.

The IRSP has as a prominent leader the former Westminster MP and firebrand socialist Bernadette Devlin, nee Mrs. Bernadette McAliskey, a measure of the unease which the group's internal battle has caused moderates everywhere is the case of a reporter in her country home.

She's been mugged by the officials," he said, "and I don't want to be around when they get back."

New terrorist groups, calling themselves the Catholic Revolutionary Republican or the Protestant Freedom Fighters appear to spring up daily, voicing confused, conflicting and often ideologies that sometimes cut across religious boundaries, leaving nobody sure who his enemies are.

These developments, as much as any others in the six-year conflict, seem to have cast a deeper pall of gloom over the people in Ulster, who in the past never failed to impress with their buoyancy and unfailing good humor, or "bit of crack" as they call it.

In the burned and bombed-out streets of Belfast, for example, people seldom stop to talk any longer. Most of the pubs have long since been reduced to cinders.

Newspapermen from all parts of the world still climb over the debris after trying to interview the "ordinary" politicians, usually the last ones to know what's really happening, but otherwise they are few and far between.

The sunny girls, who even six months ago never failed to delight male visitors to the first-floor bar of the Europa hotel, seem to have lost most of their bounce.

In the bar, the management has removed the bunny dresses and even in the nightclub a new, less attractive, though still scantily-dressed group has taken over.

When you ask for Sheila or Joan, who once pretended to give you extra large drinks and special kinds of attention, the usual reply is that they have emigrated to New York, Toronto, Sydney or just moved south to the Irish Republic.

Even the 9:30 a.m. British Airways flight to Belfast from London seems to reflect the mood. The coffee and biscuit service has been suspended and the girls are obviously bored at all the delays you can have in getting on the hour-long flight.

The Europa, bombed 29 times in less than five years, is being slowly restored after the latest attack with the usual clever works and it is now only inside to climb up to the fifth floor to get a drink at it.

At a nearby run-down hotel, a bomb-looking barman, a member of the official IRA, was asked where he obtained the valuable service. Since he seemed to resent the question, I had thought it was cheap to but hearing of its value, he promptly raised the price at which supplies them and pleaded to tell them at inflated prices to customers.

Marmora Residents Face Only Modest Tax Hike

MARMORA — Village residents here will be relieved to learn that, despite the large increase in Hastings County and County Board of Education 1975 budgets, public school residential homeowners here can expect to pay a modest tax increase of 12.67 mills this year.

"This is a year for holding steady," Reeve Jack Reynolds commented when announcing the results of a recent budget meeting.

Reeve Reynolds said he credits the small increase in the mill rate to three things: A solid financial position as of December 31, 1974, (a surplus of $223.14), government grants and the fact that council scrutinized every item in the budget, cutting it to provision for only necessary expenditures for 1975.

The public school residential rate goes from 138.13 mills in 1974 to 140.80 this year, an increase of 12.67 while the public school commercial rate rates from 143.67 mills in 1974 to 180.72, a slightly higher rate of increase at 18.85 mills.

Separate school residential mill rates will advance from 134.62 last year to 140.15 this year for an increase of 13.53.

Separate school commercial taxpayers are hardest hit with an increase of 20.06 mills from the 1974 rate of 138.97.

"The village council and clerk-treasurer William Shannon should be congratulated on a holding expenditures to the line last year for it enabled us to break even on our 1974 expenditures," Reeve Reynolds said. "This has proven an excellent base for the 1975 budget and is reflected in our modest increased mill rate."

Mr. Reynolds added provision has been made for the expected expenditures on the Marmora arena. Council will be disclosing what those provisions are at a public meeting tonight at the Town Hall which has been arranged to acquaint people with the details of the proposed repairs to the arena.

The public school residential rate is broken down this way: public school — 33.05; secondary school — 34.86; general rate - 37.37; county rate - 29.23 and water 6.35.

The 140.73 mills for public school commercial consists of public school 36.72; secondary 37.62; general rate 42.97; county rate 45.91 and water 6.50.

The separate school residential rate of 140.15 was arrived at this way; separate school 32.42; secondary school 34.86; general rate 37.37; county rate 30.25 and water 6.35.

The allocation for separate school commercial was separate school 36.01; secondary school 37.62; general 42.97; county rate 45.91 and water 6.50 for a total of 180.03.

Cadets Busy Preparing For Annual Inspection

BANCROFT — The 25 boys of HMCS Viking here are busy drilling, cleaning uniforms and practising water skills in preparation for the unit's annual inspection later this week.

The Bancroft Sea Cadets are between 13 and 18 years of age and are under the sponsorship of the Bancroft Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion.

Commanding Officer Ian Davidson, says the boys learn a great deal in the sea cadet program.

In addition to the regular military skills, the youngsters learn canoeing, swimming and sailing as well as having the opportunity to attend a number of sea command summer camps.

This years inspecting officer of the corp will be Cdr. Angus Duffy of the Hastings County ESMO Organization.

Next year, there may be a whole new attraction about sea cadets because "we're hoping to be able to admit girls," said Commanding Officer Davidson.

PCs Want Drug Users Controlled

OTTAWA (CP) — Western Conservatives urged Solicitor-General Warren Allmand Wednesday to suspend the civil rights of accused heroin traffickers in Montreal, while in the courts catch up with a backlog of more than 1,000 cases.

John Reynolds (PC—Burnaby-Richmond-Delta), chief Tory critic on bail and corrections, asked that bail be denied to all heroin cases.

Mr. Reynolds said the War Measures Act had been used to quell terrorism in Montreal and another French crisis could be used in Vancouver, which has the worst crime situation in Canada.

"I think we have to take some serious action and take it away from the known drug traffickers," he told Mr. Allmand during a session of the Commons justice committee.

Andrew Brewin (PC—Calgary North) said the right to a jury trial could be suspended and a special court set up to handle the two-year backlog of cases.

Mr. Allmand agreed that the situation is bad. One reason was that police were tied up watching witnesses who might be harmed.

RCMP Commissioner Maurice Nadon said the situation is improving now that the British Columbia attorney-general has agreed to preferred indictments in the heroin cases, getting them into court faster.

Douglas Uneasy

OTTAWA (CP) — Signing of a financial agreement is the first part of a reactor to South Korea, it brought renewed concern Wednesday over the spread of nuclear technology and materials.

Mr. Roytenberg would not reveal details of the commitment, however. The agency had been seeking to halt imports of pre-priced U.S. eggs which could hurt domestic producers.

MONTREAL (CP) — At least 138 doctors in Quebec have signed a declaration admitting they performed abortions or helped women get them illegally, a spokesman for the group said Wednesday.

"It is the first time such an unanimous group of doctors in Quebec have made such a clear and committed stand on the abortion issue," Dr. Henri Bellemare told a news conference.

More Hit-runs

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 180,000 hit-and-run accidents were reported last year in Canada, perhaps reflecting the impact of the 1969 breath-test law. Other indications in Statistics Canada figures on traffic in 1974: A decreasing number of fatal accidents and a rising number of convictions for driving while impaired or drunk.

No French Officer

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Union of Postal Workers accused the post office Wednesday of deliberately delaying the appointment of a staff relations officer to handle grievances from Quebec.

"There hasn't been one French grievance heard for over two months now because the post office has not replaced the person who heard grievances in the past," said Andre Morrison, national chief steward of the union, in a news release.

New Election Head

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government says it plans to seek $200 million on the New York market on behalf of Ontario Hydro.

Allmand Orders Mounties To Probe CIA in Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor General Warren Allmand ordered the RCMP on Wednesday to investigate allegations the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) operated illegally in Canada.

Mr. Allmand described as "serious" allegations at the Commons justice committee by John Reynolds (PC—Burnaby-Richmond Delta).

If it was found that the CIA was operating illegally in Canada, the matter would be turned over to external affairs. His comments came as Mr. Reynolds read portions of an affidavit from Virgilio Gonzales, a Mexican who said that he operated in Canada on behalf of the CIA.

Mr. Allmand said policy is for the CIA to inform the RCMP when an operative is coming to Canada. However, there have been a number of reports of CIA agents and informants operating in Canada without RCMP knowledge.

Mr. Gonzales alleges he was ordered to monitor the activities of a Howard Hughes employee, John Meier, in 1969 after Meier failed an attempt to compromise Senator Edward Kennedy in Las Vegas.

The agent began personal surveillance of Meier in early 1972 and between then and 1974 his activities took place in Canada. Interist, owned by Hughes and heavily involved in Canada found him (Meier) in the Vancouver area," the affidavit says. The inference is the Meier called someone in the U.S. on a line bugged by Interist.

"I learned that Meier had applied to be an immigrant to Canada but (I) was told by Interist that they could block this easily," it says. "I was warned to be careful about involvement because the contacts were at a low level in immigration."

In early 1972, Mr. Gonzales said he was told by Interist a meeting had been arranged between Meier and "a Mr. Cowley of Vancouver immigration on Feb. 6." Meier would be served with a writ outside Cowley's office in a move to embarrass him with immigration.

Mr. Gonzales said he operated Canada Dec., a firm registered with Interist and owned by Reynolds, a member of Parliament's staff.

Mr. Reynolds said that "any allegation that we should have our own Canadian servative contacts pull Reynolds away from Meier but this did not work out," the affidavit says.

NDP Says CIA Agent Beats Deportation Order

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Robert Andras is under attack for allowing a former South Vietnamese general into the country, faced a new charge Wednesday about an alleged CIA agent given landed immigrant status.

Deral Blackburn (NDP—Brant), who has been grilling Mr. Andras about Gen. Dang Van Quang, asked in the Commons about Nelson Bardine.

Mr. Blackburn told reporters Mr. Bardine arrived in Toronto in 1972 from Uruguay "where he was working for the CIA." He was ordered deported a year later "but he is now a landed immigrant."

Mr. Blackburn has referred to Gen. Quang, who now lives in Montreal, as "the epitome of everything that went wrong in Vietnam."

Timmins Man ONT Head

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Opportunity for dentists to secure dentistic dentistries will not have to take up grading courses to obtain permanent licences, says a notice for dentists issued this week by the health ministry.

The letter from Barry Lowes, chairman of the ministry's governing board of dentists, therefore, said applicants passed last spring allowing dentists to sell full dentures without instructors passed completion of the courses.

The letter also said the board has set up an advisory committee to supervise and partial dentures under a dentist's supervision.

It's a Shad Story

TORONTO (CP) — Fish' species may record but weather has created one of the worst years for deaths in Lake Ontario of the Atlantic Ocean fish, the alewife.

Rapid changes in water temperatures caused mass deaths which mount massive shoreline decomposing to the earth, then changes to get rid of the small of rotting fish.

E. J. Crossman, curator of ichthyology at the Royal Ontario Museum and co-author of a book on fresh-water fish, said this year has been the worst that he has seen.

Jack Christie, director of the Lake Ontario unit of the fish research branch of the ministry of natural resources, said the alewife has simply not adapted to the lake. It first appeared in Lake Ontario in the late 1930s and moves in shallow from deep water to spawn in the spring.

Drop Denturist Classes

TORONTO (CP) — Roy K. McChesney of Timmins has been named acting chairman of the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission, it spokesman for Premier William Davis said Wednesday.

His appointment, approved by cabinet and effective Wednesday, fills the vacancy left by T. Ludlow, who retired as chairman of the board since Aug. 1, 1969.

The firing eight years ago of Mr. Hayrol (PC—Timiskaming) Ontario Municipal Board Chairman Mr. McChesney, vice-president and general manager of Rudyard, Mich., Ltd., has been a controversial figure in Northern Ontario.

Look Back at Childhood For Clues to Friendship

How many friends do you have?

To answer that, you need to know what I mean by friends.

If friends are persons with whom you've never quarrelled, with whom you attend the same church, school or job, or with whom you share the backyard fence, then you may have 36, or as many as 360.

If I mean the sort of friends you invite to dinner parties, or the ones you write to more than three times a year, then the list goes down, doesn't it?

And if we're talking about the individuals for whom you don't ever "put on the dog," with whom you are absolutely open and trusting and to whom you would turn if you were in trouble . . . then how many is that?

Not very many? Don't feel unloved. It would be unusual to have more than two or three.

Henry Brooks Adams, a 19th century American writer put it this way: "One friend in a lifetime is much; two are scarcely many; and three are hardly possible."

Yet, when you look back to your childhood, doesn't it seem you had more "best friends" than? Still others they lasted for a season, sometimes for a decade, but somehow we were able to form stronger, more independent relationships before we grew up and became more choosy.

Most of you must have been like the kids in my neighborhood the summer I was 12. In the long days before we became blood brothers or "sworn friends" (by either pricking each other with pins as if we were party balloons, or holding bleeding fingers together, and repeating vows as if our lives depended on it).

Our mothers breathed sighs of relief when none of us came down with jaundice or lockjaw, and school began that autumn with a rash of new allegiances in the classroom, kids who shared colored ballpoint pens and secrets.

Oddly, or perhaps not oddly at all, these pacts never grew stable between boys and girls. (We had to wait a few summers before these alliances began.)

Odd, too, is the need for affection that shows itself by this primitive way, to make the friends we love most into relatives ("She's just like a sister to me") and to compliment our relatives as our favorites by calling them friends ("My sister Ilsa turned out to be a real friend").

Then times when little is certain, when the patterns of our lives are fragmented, when are few emotional securities to hang on to. We move from place to place, we change jobs, we climb the social ladder, we leave old habits behind us and we have few guideposts any longer to tell us where to go.

Perhaps now is when we need friends as never before. Perhaps now should do whatever we can to bring back the intensity, generosity and total acceptance that was part of those "blood brother days."

We may never have a lot of close friends again — and that may not be a bad thing anyway — but we can do a lot to make the friendships we do have a meaningful, valuable and lasting ones.

Where do we start? Pick up the phone, or pick up your pen, and get in touch.

It hurts less than a pin.

Pet Care In Summer

The Tropical Gardens Pet Shop at 201½ Front St., Belleville, has some timely hints for taking care of your pets during the summer. Remember when it's hot and humid all pets need more water. Replace it often with fresh cool water. And don't forget the tiny animals; the gerbils, hamsters and mice. They need a lot more water during the summer and less food as they won't eat as much. If you have a bird, he too will appreciate water often during the summer months. A tip here for aquarium owners is to turn up the temperature in your aquarium two degrees during the summer to save your tropical fish from fluctuating temperatures when the outside temperature goes up during the day and down at night. If you have any questions on pet care the friendly staff at the Tropical Gardens will be pleased to advise you.

Mileage test have shown no other competitive model gets better gas mileage than the Datsun B210. Datsun's new 4-cylinder drive line for Datsun B210S with its 1,907cc engine, unibody construction and power assisted front disc brakes. Then talk to the sales people at Vader's in their air-conditioned offices. After all, "all you really need is a Datsun."

If your hair is dry and brittle from swimming or too much exposure to the sun, don't turn down a hair colour consultation, but you can do that at Studio 221. They have two new models in their shop this week. Both are short with lots of loose curls, right in style with the new curly cuts. Gems Around The World

W. Womancott and Son Jewellers, 247 Front St., Belleville serve you not only with the finest jewellery, but also with the latest information. Mr. and Mrs. Womacott have recently returned from a National Convention of Canadian Jewellers at Lake Couchiching. One of the highlights of the convention was an illustrated gem identification lecture by Bert Krashes of the Gem Institute of America, New York City. The lecture dealt with changes in the gem market around the world and factors affecting the value of precious stones. The lecture was followed by actual gem identification, which was done in small groups. A second highlight of the convention was a jewellery fashion show planned by the Diamond Information Centre and Delbeva in which the latest diamond jewellery was shown for both men and women. The Womacotts felt it was a most informative program.

Dining-Out Pleasure

We recently had a camping weekend, which is good family fun, but not always a holiday for Mother. Returning in the late afternoon, it was decided that Mother should be treated to dinner out after all her efforts...barbers and bugs bites. What better place to go for a quiet relaxing meal than the Bay Shore, The Bay in Picton. It's just a pleasant drive from Belleville or Trenton. The food and service are outstanding. For the special dinner, or anytime, treat yourself to dining excellence. Give a happy weekend a perfect ending at the Inn on the Bay.

Ann Landers

Facts About Artificial Insemination

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married eight years. We've been trying without success for at least three years to have a child. My gynecologist suggested that my husband have a sperm test for fertility. He agreed. The results showed he has a very low sperm count. I seriously considered artificial insemination. How does a couple go about picking the donor? What if the child is born deformed? Would you advise me to keep it? Please answer.—Kenny Confer in Pa.

Dear K.: Yes, entitled to artificial insemination. There are approximately 20,000 people alive today born of conceived that way. No harm comes to involved. The sperm is injected with a syringe.

The couple doesn't select the donor—the doctor chooses. Usually it is a medical student.

There's always a chance the child will not be normal, but it's very slight. Only two or three per cent of all children born are congenital deformity.

Yes, you would have to keep the secret. Once you become pregnant it's your baby.

Dear Ann Landers: There's another side to the Babysitter story. I'm a young mother who has been looking for two years for responsible, mature, reliable person to sit with my children, any I spend my money.

I'd like a sitter who arrives on time, and doesn't come with a glittering who, between the two of them, will eat everything in sight, including jars of caviar and cans of pineapple.

Is there a sitter alive who can be trusted not to have her boyfriend over the moment we leave the house?

Last minute cancellations have ruined more than one evening for my husband and me. Why can't a sitter provide a substitute (even her mother) if she is unable to make it at the last moment?

When is a sitter who will stay off the phone for 10 minutes so I can get dressed? I want to check on my children? Is there anything wrong with the sitter who wrote to you that the people expect maid service? Yes, I don't.

I've had several sitters who expected HIM to clean up after them. I'm sick of finding pots stuck to the bottom of my pop Maizes on my kitchen cabinets, wet glasses on mahogany tables and ink scribblings on my white telephone.

Please don't suggest a baby-sitting service. My last four came from there. All they do is demand higher wages.—Still Looking

Dear S. L.: Have you considered an older woman or a college student? I recommend you try.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a friend (my age, early 60s) who is becoming very hard of hearing. She gets annoyed when he attends group meetings and can't hear the speaker. He has gone up to several speakers and told them they "mumble" and suggested that they take elocution lessons. Recently he complained to the custodian of the hall that the audio doesn't work and needs repairing.

It's always someone else's fault. Why can't he accept the fact that he is getting deaf? Should I recommend a hearing aid?—Sioux Falls Reader.

Dear Sioux: Go ahead. But I'll bet anything he won't hear Sign you.

Doris Clark

Unmarried Mother Favors Adoption

Dear Doris: Two months ago I gave birth to a beautiful baby girl. I am 17 and unmarried; my parents helped me and I let my baby be adopted.

My worker, of course, couldn't tell me who adopted her but she did say my baby's parents are mid-twenties and have a three-year old adopted son.

Of course I'm sad that I'll never know my girl but I'm glad she has a real family who will love her and can support her properly. I would like to say thanks to the wonderful people who have love in their hearts for such children as mine.

Doris, I am an adopted child. I've found such a good life with my Mom and Dad. I'm glad my biological mother had the courage to let me go. God bless her.

Adopted.

Dear Adopted: What a testimonial! Many, many girls will be help to making their own heartwarming decision by reading your message.

Dear Doris: I am 20 years old, and friendly with a man of the same age. We like to talk of goodby things together. We go to bars and eat in fine dinner occasionally.

We are friends only, with no other intentions. Is this wrong at our age? Or should I stick with the normal crowd?

A Worried Widow.

Dear Widow: What on earth has age got to do with friendship? Since you are free and over 21 I see nothing wrong the man in the case has no wife or children. Please tell what you do to your own business.

Your question arises simply, because of the almost universal attitude that elderly folk aren't people any more. It has simply got to be changed.

And I'm batting my bottom dollar it will change, as the population gradually grows older and we value more the store-up knowledge and stability which is the young man's heritage from those older.

Have a good time with your friend. Kick up your heels if you feel so inclined!

Dear Doris: I am sending the words of the poem "Chicken-a-de-doo", I still have many of the old poems in my memory found in the old New Hamwick Fair reader, and I love to recall them.

A Friend

Dear Doris: I am sending "Chicken-a-de-doo" as I am in possession of that particular reader. I hope it is the one Gloria wants.

I have several other readers of that same vintage (1923) about, and if you should desire a copy of any just write me.

A.E.S.

Dear Friends: My thanks and Gloria's, to A Friend, A.E.S., Mrs. R.L., Mrs. R.W.L., A.W.S. (Sr.), Mrs. A.L.B., G.D., and others to whom we are still rolling in.

(Don't just muddle along. Do something about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris, in care of this newspaper, can put you on the way to Living.)

Physical Fitness Is for Every Day

EDMONTON (CP) — Physical-fitness programs should be a day-by-day affair—with average people involved," says Dagmar Carlson of the Edmonton Gym Club.

"Olympic like the Olympics impress the world with a few elite performances and then they're over," she said.

The news media in North America concentrates far too much attention on the professional competitive sports. They've been such a gladiator type of thing where athletes are objects for the amusement of the spectator and the rest of the people sit and watch.

"In Europe, most of the rules and TV stations are aimed toward and amateur sport is widely and properly covered."

Mrs. Carlson, who teaches gymnastics at various gymnasiums, said she is appalled at the young boys and girls who are overweight and have poor respiratory conditions.

"Three laps around the gym and they're huffing and puffing," she said.

"Of course, they're being driven to school. And I just don't understand why schools allow those machines that discourage self drive and potato chips."

She said she becomes concerned about parents who brag about compulsory physical-fitness programs.

"I think it should be mandatory right. I see the commentary and even the professional level.

"But you have to have well-trained physical education teachers. Accidents happen when there is not enough proficiency. Organization alone is to develop agility and strength. You mustn't run before you can walk properly."

Here in Dresden, Germany, Mrs. Carlson said, is be a competitive swimmer and diver, took part in track and field sports and was competitive in gymnastics.

After a group of German gymnasts visited Edmonton in the late 1950s, Mrs. Carlson and her husband, Carsten, kept up a correspondence with them which resulted in their being invited to bring a group of children to a gymnastics competition in Bonn and in the end, the Edmonton youngsters did well and have been asked back to participate this summer.

Skinful youngsters will go overseas in June on the Edmonton Gym Club's European tour.

"We will also be going to France, but only as spectators because participation is restricted to host's countries," she said. "I am interested to see the level of fitness in these countries compared to ours."

While the Edmonton youngsters will be entering some team and individual competitions, I is the opportunity to learn more about the various sports that is important in Mrs. Carlson's view.

"I believe it's important that everyone counts, not just the gold-medal winner," she said. "Sometimes, there is just a fraction of a point between the winner and the next one, and both polished in judging and back are involved.

"Enjoyment and an appreciation of fitness are as important as prizes. We want these children to have long participation in sport, not just a short hectic competition."

Gift for Cancer Patients

EDMONTON (CP) — The gift that Irene Hertz provides the patients she visits in hospital cannot be smelled or eaten nor has a visual effect that is therapeutically valuable.

She carries a football-shaped fiber pad in her Canadian Cancer Society tote-bag and that simple, fluffy pad may provide some of the most important short-term therapy a breast cancer patient receives during the first traumatic days after breast-removal surgery.

Pinned under her nightgown, the pad removes the unsightly reassurance of walking down hospital corridors with one arm draped conspicuously across her chest.

"It has to be the nicest gift the cancer society can give," said Mrs. Hertz, co-ordinator of the society's mastectomy rehabilitation program, who had the operation herself more than 11 years ago.

When Cariocas Holiday They Flock to Bahia

BAHIA, Brazil (CP) — The Carioca (people of Rio de Janiero—are great civic boosters, but when they go on a special holiday or honeymoon, the city they flee best is Bahia, also known as Salvador.

Bahia, 30 minutes by air on the northeast coast, has beaches much like those in Rio's Zona Sur or Copacabana and its traffic isn't as insane. Its charm is its numerous colonial buildings, special traditions and a carefree, relaxed spirit of the Bahianos. They have their own festivals, arts, crafts, shopping boys, voodoo rituals, dances and regional dishes.

The colonial buildings date back as far as the 16th century when Bahia became the capital of Brazil for more than 200 years.

Sugar plantations made the area prosperous and Bahia's churches, monasteries, mansions, palaces and government buildings were showcases of affluence.

Along its beaches are old forts, churches and lighthouses numerous and the yacht club and its large bay is dotted with islands and alive with sailboats, fishermen, motor boats and fishermen's boats.

Bahia is a little reminiscent of Quebec City with an upper and lower town, distinctive restaurants and an atmosphere of savoring the finer things of life at leisurely tempo. But it is really more like Lisbon with its red tile roofs, shutters, wrought-iron balconies, mosaic terraces, narrow 17th-century hilly streets, paving set in very patterns of chipped stone, squares with fountains, elaborate 18th-century churches, pillars, columns and facades carved in the ornate, bearing Manuelin style of mother Portugal.

The National Artistic and Cultural Patrimony Foundation, set up in 1941, looks after preserving monuments and the colonial section of the city. Old homes are being repaired with fresh stucco and many tiles and owners of colonial buildings can apply to the foundation for advice and low-interest loans, to restore them.

The patrimony is a rich one—more than 30,000 buildings including 75 churches 300 years old or so. Sao Francisco Cathedral is rated the most famous in all of Brazil and one of the most beautiful in the world with its carvings, sculpture, tiles, paintings and lavish use of gold—about 1,000 pounds of the precious metal gilds statues and ceilings.

Bahia didn't become a ghost city when the capital was moved to Rio in 1763. Instead it developed as a centre for rubber, coconuts, bananas, cotton, tobacco, sugar and cattle ranching. Now it is prospering with new hotels and apartment blocks. More than a million people live in Bahia but it's still the kind of place where you can lie about and hear a rooster crow.

A convent of 1686 has been converted into an inn with its four wings enclosing a court containing fruit in the cool yard. Most of the rooms are rich in atmosphere with gobelin, beams, stucco walls, alcoves, colonial furniture, hand-woven web hangings, bedspreads and rugs, but modern hermits have 20th-century luxuries like refrigerators and color television.

Street Vendors

Artifical Finger Joints Aid Arthritic

LONDON (CP) — Artificial finger joints for arthritic patients are being fitted by a matter of hours at a London hospital.

The Arthritis and Rheumatism Council says a patient can go into the surgical unit in the morning, have diseased and stiff joints removed and new ones fitted and be out by lunchtime.

The operation is carried out under a local anesthetic. The only sign of the replacement is a thin cut along the finger and this scar soon fades away.

The council is financing research under the direction of Prof. J. E. Calnan at Hammersmith Hospital. The work is aimed at producing simple, efficient joints and easy operating techniques.

The development of a joint made of plastic and in one piece has made the advance possible. It has been successfully "practised" in the medium so that it will bend easily. No hinge is necessary, so there are no rubbing surfaces to wear out.

Calnan's operation was evolved partly to release hospital beds. The hospital set up a special surgery unit which now fixes finger joint replacements and other operations on the same basis. "Many patients have been off work for only half a day after quite extensive hand surgery," said Calnan.

Northern Freight

One of the principal means of shipping Arctic supplies is by Pacific Western Airlines, now owned by the Alberta Government. PWA carried eight million lbs. of freight last year and most of it went by Hercules aircraft. The plane has a 46,000-pound payload and can operate on ice strips throughout the north. (CP Photo)

Ice Will Soon Release Ship

EDMONTON (CP) — The ice will soon be breaking up on Canada's longest river, opening a 1,200-mile route to the Arctic for barges that must carry a year's supply of almost everything in one summer.

If the ice goes as expected, barges pulled by tugs will leave Hay River, N.W.T. about June 1, follow the shoreline of Great Slave Lake and enter the Mackenzie River. They're bound for Inuvik and Tuktoyaktuk on the river delta, and points between.

Some of them even continue on through the Arctic Ocean to Alaska's North Slope to supply rigs drilling for oil and gas and eastward to such communities as Spence Bay on the Boothia Peninsula, jutting into the Arctic Ocean proper.

It's a demanding kind of shipping.

Mackenzie River pilots are among the most skilful in Canada but even this talent is not always adequate to deal with the hazards of constantly shifting channels and shoals, not to mention the huge waves that can rise suddenly on the vast Great Slave Lake.

There is also the always-impending threat of freeze-up.

Late last September, the ice locked up about $20 million worth of ships and barges along the Arctic coast. The 13 ships and 23 barges belong to the Northern Transportation Co., largest shipper on the river system.

Last year, it carried 237,000 tons of freight, much of it vital supplies for the towns and smaller Indian and Eskimo communities, DEW-line stations and exploration camps. Fuel, machinery, drilling equipment, non-perishable food supplies and the whole range of things that people need in a year go on the barges.

Lionel Montpetit, vice-president of the company, said he expects a slight increase in tonnage carried this season to perhaps 300,000.

But he expects no great upsurge in northern shipping "until some of the basic issues in the North are resolved."

"I wish it would be soon."

He was referring to lengthy and often fierce land disputes that have delayed the go-ahead for the huge Mackenzie Valley pipeline to bring natural gas from the Arctic.

River barges would be used extensively to bring in the equipment.

Some of the company's northern shipments don't start until mid-summer when ice finally clears from many passages and harbors. For example, a facility leaves Hay River Aug. 1 for the Arctic coastal communities such as Cambridge Bay, Gjoa Haven and Spence Bay.

Hudson Bay sailings from Churchill, Man., go out July 29 to Eskimo Point and later to other communities.

The other principal means of shipping Arctic supplies is by air. Pacific Western Airlines, now owned by the Alberta government, is the largest northern air shipper.

A PWA spokesman says the steady growth in tonnage of the last four years to continue in 1975. PWA carried four million tons in 1971 and eight million last year.

Most of it went by Hercules aircraft which has a 46,000-pound payload and can, even handle old-company washrooms or buildings without the need to take them apart. It lands at ice strips throughout the North.

Summer is the slack season for, this kind of shipping since the strips last until early, although cargo shipments continue to the established communities with gravel or paved runways.

Larger Moose Population Is Predicted

EDMONTON (CP) — Experiments to increase the food moose have been highly successful and a larger moose population is predicted near Sibbingdank Lake area about 180 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Gerry R. Lynch, a wildlife biologist, said the area at one time provided good browsing for the animals but the trees matured and willows grew out of reach. The result was a steady decline in the animal population.

In the experiment 200 acres of old willow growth, some 30 feet high, were knocked down and the stems moved back in to make use of the tops and, as new green shoots sprouted, the area provided good summer browse last year. It provided room for use of old and new growth.

Men, food means more animals, Mr. Lynch said, adding that while the area should not be made a sanctuary, it might become a special management area so the harvest could be regulated.

Perhaps in 10 years the harvest could be 200 moose in a 100-square-mile area." He said the rough country has good tree cover which also is ideal for deer and elk.

Limited Budget Travel

Aviemore Chalets in Scotland's Spey Valley offers cheap accomodation for the limited budget traveller.

Britain Offers Cheap Shelter

LONDON (CP) — Normal tourist hotel prices may be beyond the reach of travellers who are still at school or university but Britain offers a number of inexpensive alternatives.

One way is to stay at a university. The British Universities Accomodations Consortium, which controls more than 20,000 university beds, offers a variety of facilities ranging from comfortable single bedrooms costing up to $13.50 (£6) a night to apartments with four to six bedrooms costing $39.50 to $40.50 a week, plus tax.

The campuses, most of them on extensive parkland, also offer lounges, recreation rooms and television.

Youth hostelling is one of the best and cheapest ways to see the countryside. Members of a youth hostel association in their own county are accommodated for a minimal charge, mostly in dormitories. Facilities are simple and guests usually help with light domestic duties.

The British Tourist Authority offers a list of farmhouses offering accommodation at prices ranging from about $1.35 to more than $3 a night. The authority lists details of the number of beds, bathrooms and meals included in the price and visitors write to the farm of their choice for reservations.

Britain has a wealth of camping sites and trailer parks, many of them in areas where hotels are few. Many have such amenities as cars, restaurants, lounges, shops and laundries and even heated pools. Some have trailers stationed on the site for hire.

The Aviemore Chalets Motel in the Spey Valley in Scotland offer a holiday of five to seven days that includes hiking, fishing and sailing. Accomodation is in self-contained four-bedded rooms in comfortable timber chalets.

The resort offers instructional courses in angling and sailing as well as movies, dances, discotheques, an indoor swimming pool, folk-singing performances, an artificial ski slope and other entertainment. Prices range from $19.20 to $41.73.

The British Tourist Authority also offers a guide to cheap accommodation in London including moderately priced hotels, guest houses, private homes, self-catering establishments and hotels costing less than $4 a night for bed and breakfast. It also gives details of campsites and accommodation in converted schools.

Seeks A Record

LONDON (CP) — Wing Cmdr. Kenneth Wallis, who makes autogyros, plans to seek the world's distance record in one of his machines. The autogyro, while it looks like a helicopter, functions differently. The current world record—100 miles—is held in the United States. Wallis built the helicopters for the flying sequences in the James Bond film, You Only Live Twice.

Lot Of Mileage

MANCHESTER, England (CP) — A bus powered by lead-acid batteries and twice as economical to run as conventional diesels is being tested on Manchester streets. The 36-passenger vehicles have a top speed of 45 m.p.h. and can travel an entire day before their batteries require recharging.

Lethbridge University Trains Students on Job

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — Students enrolled in a pilot-project at the University of Lethbridge can receive on-the-job experience in work as diverse as political organization, pottery and customs inspection—and at the same time earn credit towards a degree.

The university's co-operative studies program, which finds students jobs in their field of interest, is unique in Canada, says Dr. Edwin Welding, program co-ordinator.

"There is no other Canadian university that offers a co-operative program in the liberal arts, or any university offering a co-op program outside the applied arts and business."

Other Canadian co-operative education programs are open only to students in specific fields such as business or engineering, Dr. Welding said.

Participants in the program, open to students in any faculty, major in such diverse fields as art, political science, physical education, economics and history.

The program, which tries to place students in jobs as close to their academic and career goals as possible, has found them positions as recreational director, business-publications editor, teacher aides and social workers.

"I've had some students who have been thinking of leaving university and have been persuaded to give it one more chance by taking a co-op studies 'work experience,'" Dr. Welding said.

"The co-op studies job has turned them on, to university again and they have returned to complete their degree."

The program, one of the few that allows students to apply credit gained on the job to their academic degree, awards a maximum of 10 credits in arts and science and five in education—the number usually earned during a year of on-campus study. The number of credits awarded is decided by a faculty committee that assesses the student's work experience.

The program also allows students to earn money while furthering their education, an important factor for Lloyd Evenin of Taber, Alta.

"My family is better off now than they have been since I went back to school," said Mr. Evenin, a father of seven, who works as a native court worker in Taber under co-op studies.

Battled Bilingualism

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield rejected Leonard Jones as the party's official candidate for Moncton for the July 8 voting last year. The reason was Mr. Jones opposition to bilingualism. Backed by a group of volunteer workers, he ran as an independent, winning more votes than the Liberal and Conservative opponents combined. (CP Photo)

Bilingualism Foe Seated with French

OTTAWA (CP) — If someone is thinking about running for Parliament as an independent and asks Leonard Jones for advice, he will say, "Go right ahead."

But with a wry smile, the 65-year-old independent MP for Moncton adds, "There are not too many Len Jones's."

He said he backed away in one of the back corners of the Commons chamber behind the French-speaking Social Credit members, but he still is one of the best-known members nationally. Len Jones now is a household name across Canada and it all started in Moncton when, as mayor, he began battling bilingualism in the mid-1960s.

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield rejected Mr. Jones as the pc party's official candidate in Moncton for the July 8 voting last year. The move was the mayor's opposition to bilingualism.

However, backed by a group of volunteer workers, Mr. Jones ran as an independent, winning more votes than the Liberal and Conservative opponents combined.

Since then, his legal action against the constitutionality of the Official Languages Act has been rejected by the Supreme Court of Canada.

In his maiden speech in the Commons, Mr. Jones attacked Ottawa legislation to make French the province's work language, saying it would cause "friction and inequities."

But he is able to his supporters in the Commons federation. Stanfield, Harry and other things he wants to discuss, the tall, soft-spoken MP and serving his constituents.

He says he enjoys the freedom of not being tied to party-set dates forced to follow party lines.

"I can honor my own philosophy because I always have a free vote. I'm trying to reflect the collective majority opinions of the people of Moncton."

But that freedom was brought into jeopardy with Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp in the Commons.

Periodically the House leader will say there is unanimous consent or general unanimity to proceed with a matter. But generally he has just complied with the House leaders of the Conservatives, NDP and Social Credit. And unless he starts asking me I intend to deny unanimous consent."

Recently Mr. Sharp told the Commons he had general agreement for a special Wednesday night sitting to continue debate on legislation ordering striking Quebec longshoremen back to work.

Mr. Jones was on his feet immediately—taking the House he had not been consulted.

"I don't like being pushed around by the government House leader."

To learn from government back-benchers, Mr. Jones said, "The people of my constituency need me."

The people should have no trouble bringing their problems to his attention.

"I go home every weekend. I have a constituency office and its phone numbers as well as those for my law office and home are readily available."

He has planned a series of meetings in the current two-week recess throughout his riding "as I had promised I would during election time."

Like most MPs, he gets requests—for help with voters' immigration problems, in summer choices jobs and even for invitations for Mother's Day.

One thing that has rankled him since his arrival here is not being able to get a vote on any of the standing House committees. Membership is based on party standings in the Commons.

Whitecollar Crime Costs Top Crimes of Violence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whitecollar crime is evidently costing billions of dollars more per year than violent or street crime in the United States, yet there is no comprehensive effort to keep track of it.

Despite public attention in recent years to high-level official corruption, massive stock frauds and other illegal activities, federal agencies concerned with crime are making few attempts to study white-collar crime, its magnitude or effects.

Estimates of the cost of crime of all types range as high as $20 billion a year and the offences loosely grouped in the white-collar category account for perhaps four-fifths of it.

It is widely agreed among law-enforcement officials that white collar crimes, such as fraud, embezzlement, bribery, stock theft and manipulation, kickbacks, pilferage, tax evasion and computer-related schemes are growing.

There are signs of a growing official response to the problem, some of it perhaps the result of pressure from critics who believe too much emphasis has been given to street crime.

Justice department officials said a special branch is being organized to address the overall problem of white-collar crime, spurred partly by increased concern over massive frauds involving both corporate and federal money.

The security chief at one major government agency said he was particularly encouraged by a department decision to give its criminal division's fraud section increased staff and a more direct involvement in prosecuting cases.

"It's my view that there were many cases so difficult to make that the U.S. attorneys were not interested in trying," he said. "And sometimes they were just too lazy."

Foreshadowing this proposed new drive on white-collar crime was the FBI's annual report for 1974 which said there has been a 20-per-cent increase in convictions for white-collar crime since mid-1972. FBI Director Clarence Kelley was quoted as saying the cost of white-collar crime "dwarfs" that of street crime.

However, the FBI's own Uniform Crime Reports are indicative of how white-collar crime has been ignored, critics say. These reports, based on data collected from local police across the country, cover only certain types of street and violent crime. Consumer frauds, embezzlements, bribery and other crimes in business and government are not mentioned.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, another justice department agency, has a $1.4 million white-collar crime project with the National District Attorney's Association but makes no effort to obtain data.

A recently-published commerce department booklet titled The Cost of Crime Against Business gives a total figure of $20.6 billion for 1974, up from a "conservative estimate" of $15.7 billion in 1972. This survey mixes some white-collar crimes—such as pilferage, bad cheques and credit-card frauds—together with burglary, robbery, vandalism and other street-type crimes. But it excludes embezzlement and other white-collar offences.

It reports the loss to banks from credit-card frauds in 1973 was about $600 million.

Business, in general lost $3 billion to bad cheques, of which $600 million affected banks, it says. Meanwhile, a continuing increase in internal bank crime-employee embezzlements and so forth — pushed annual losses from $44.1 million in 1963 to $135.8 million in 1972.

The last figure is six times the amount of money—$23 million—taken by bank robbers in the same years.

The census bureau's crime statistics branch used a "victimization" survey to record crime data on a national and selected-city basis. But like the FBI's, these are all crimes against persons and property.

Robert P. Parkinson, who directs the operation, said a pilot project to tabulate white-collar crime data was tried in the late 1960s but was abandoned because information gathered was meaningless.

In trying to determine losses from employee pilferage, for example, it was found that most businesses had no way of separating this from shoplifting losses.

Defining white-collar crime has proved baffling to statistical analysts, authorities add.

Pilferage of a company's inventory might be considered plain larceny, or it might be white-collar crime, particularly if accompanied by manipulation of records to conceal the losses.

Arson is a "street" crime by nature but is being used increasingly to defraud insurance companies or obtain phoney tax write-offs.

One recent study of the Stanford Research Institute notes a threefold increase in the rate of "deliberate burnings" in 13 years.

Other crimes that can be defined both ways are bad cheques, credit-card frauds and cargo theft.

Government agencies which try to keep track of white-collar crime through their own statistical methods admit their results are, at best, imprecise.

The Securities and Exchange Commission, whose function is to watch over the stock market and pursue criminal fraud, has seen the number of cases referred to the justice department for prosecution about double in three years.

Haunted by Sir Walter Scott

Said to be haunted by Sir Walter Scott, Plumpton Hall standing just outside the 12th century market town of Ulverston, is believed to be the oldest house in northwest England. It was begun in 1114 A.D. by a Viking named Plum. (CP Photo)

Plumpton Hall Oldest Home in North England

NEWLAND, England (CP) — The clock goes back 800 years when you enter the old wing of Plumpton Hall standing serenely on the shores of the Leven Estuary in Newland, near Ulverston.

The original building dates from the 1100s, and is reputed to be the oldest inhabited house in northwest England.

Contemporary with it is St. Mary's Parish Church, little more than a mile away, which was begun in 1111 A.D. and the Plumpton Hall, still is flourishing.

Plumpton has been acquired by Gloria De Fenton, a poet and romantic who loves old things. She now is planning to open Plumpton as a guest house for people within easy reating for history.

"I don't want any rowdies," Mrs. De Fenton said. "I am very psychic and I know this house is haunted by good spirits. I wouldn't want it to be defiled by rowdyism. The medieval banquet hall will be available for private dinners and I hope they will be merry in the true sense of the word."

Plumpton Hall is believed to have been the "inn" of a Viking chief named Plum who landed on the shores of the Leven Estuary and decided to make his home there.

Late in the 12th century Plumpton Hall passed into the possession of the barons of Kendal. It is recorded that William De Lancaster granted permission to the prior and canons of Conishead Priory to use whatever dead wood they required from the grounds of Plumpton Hall.

Mrs. De Fenton is particularly proud of a 700-year-old lantern that hangs from a hook in the entrance to her home. This is the legendary Lantern of Plumpton, and, according to the legend, if it is taken out of the hall it will somehow return of its own accord.

"We are told it was once thrown into the sea," Mrs. De Fenton said, "yet somehow it was returned to this house and still is here today."

She believes Sir Walter Scott, the novelist and poet, stayed several times at Plumpton Hall and that he revisits the old place in spirit. RESTORED HALL

Plumpton Hall was empty when she took it over. She has tried to restore it to what she thinks it was like in the 17th century by scouring pe-that time.

There is a wig room in which the 17th-century guests of Plumpton Hall hung their wigs and cloaks.

There is an Elizabethan dining room that was locked up for 30 years.

There is a Wordsworth Room, very much haunted—though not necessarily by William Wordsworth. In fact there is no evidence he ever stayed at Plumpton Hall.

The place is full of old chiffoniers, old dressers, old ornaments, old paintings—and a portrait of William Sawrey whose family occupied the house in the 16th century. It is recorded that William Sawrey presented a "richly chased" silver patten to St. Mary's Parish Church, Ulverston.

"A stained glass window on the first floor bears the coat of arms of the Sawrey family.

Mrs. De Fenton said most people today are skeptical about ghosts.

"They do not understand," she said, "that man is not just a body, but a spirit also. When De body dies, the spirit lives on. It is as simple as that."

In more recent times, Plumpton Hall was a farmhouse.

There is something about this old place with its timeblackened oak beams, its log fires and old four-poster beds that invites peace and repose. It has a peaceful, relaxed atmosphere that as Mrs. De Fenton said could only come from "good spirits."

Steering Clear

LONDON (CP) — Whitbread brewery group, trying to avoid giving publicity to its controvertial Bass Charrington, has made an allergies in the route for the second round of its world yacht race in 1977. Competitors will not be going through the Strait next time.

Saudia Arabia's Supply Of Cash up 84 Per Cent

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — The supply of money in Saudi Arabia, in banks, outlets and under mattresses, has risen 84 per cent in two years, says a report by the central bank here.

In many countries this would mean runaway inflation. Five Saudi Arabia, engulfed in an oil boom, even with 15-per-cent annual inflation, mostly in the price of imported Western goods, means that the population is at least 70 per cent richer in cash holdings than in April, 1973.

The Saudi Arabian Monetary Authority (SAMA) reports that the money supply rose in this period to 7.1 billion from 2.9 billion riyals—to $2.1 billion from $1.1 billion. This is more than $1,000 a family.

Statements about the Saudi Arabian economy often sound like science fiction. For example, in three years this country of about five million people will be self-sufficient in money, one statement goes.

This projection would mean that in 1978 the country could theoretically stop working—in Saudi Arabia's case, production—and all be like a millionaire living off the income from his investments.

Under this theory, Saudi reserves, now about $23 billion, are expected to rise to $150 billion by the end of 1978.

Income from $150 billion invested at current high interest rates would be more than $8 billion. Saudi Arabia's expenditures abroad in this year, for consumer goods and massive public development projects, are also estimated at $8 billion.

Saudi Arabian officials say this figure does not take into account the two factors they fear most: inflation in the West, which reduces the buying power of the investment income, and revolutionary devaluations affecting most of the reserves which are in Federalist banks, United States Treasury bonds, or dollar deposits.

But stories about the Saudi Arabian economy tell something about what the rise in oil prices has meant to this desert monarchy.

E.g. SAMA official Ristad efforts by the government in 1974 to spend the oil billions. The Saudi Industrial Development Fund was set up to give businessmen long-term, interest-free loans for new industrial projects.

The real estate development fund was set up to give interest-free loans for home building. Only 50 per cent of these loans will have to be repaid.

Both of these funds will be given whatever amount they need to meet the demand, the official said.

A part of government investment fund was set up to buy shares in new enterprises. When the enterprises start showing a profit they are to be sold at their nominal costs "to Saudi citizens of low income or limited saving ability so as to improve their economic position," a SAMA booklet said.

Some of the 10 billion riyals ($2.9 billion) was set up to give easy-term loans to developing countries.

Allocations during the fiscal year ending in July for current and future development projects were $7.5 billion, up 46 per cent from the year before.

Some of the major projects mentioned by SAMA for the next five years:

—New airports for Jidda and Riyadh to cost more than $370 million.

—New desalination plants to cost $825 million, raising the total national capacity to produce fresh water from the sea to more than 170 million gallons a day.

—Two refinery petrochemical projects to cost $2.5 billion.

—Two auto assembly plants with General Motors and Nissan of Japan to produce 75,000 cars a year.

Munro Denies Cabinet Split on Wage Settlements

OTTAWA (CP) — The suggestion of a cabinet rift over the inflationary effect of wage settlements was played down Wednesday by Labor Minister John Munro.

"I don't think we are split," he said reporters after opposition members in the Commons pressed for a clear statement on government policy.

Mr. Munro said little in the Commons Wednesday, in contrast to his hard-hitting speech Tuesday criticizing "the prevailing myth" that excessive wage settlements are the main cause of inflation, that they are running at double the average rise of wages in the U.S. and that they threaten our competitive advantage over the Americans."

Prime Minister Trudeau and Finance Minister John Turner both have cited high wage settlements as a main cause of inflation. The prime minister has said that Canadian wage settlements are running at twice the level of those in the United States and have hampered Canada's ability to sell goods abroad.

Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp said in response to opposition questions Wednesday that "quite clearly, the prime minister speaks for the government."

"I don't know what that has to do with minister of labor," said Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield. "But I should like to know what it does to the government's consensus program."

Mr. Stanfield asked how the government can "properly present a consensus program to the people of Canada before it has achieved consensus within its own cabinet." A new budget will be brought down June 22.

Mr. Sharp replied that "the government fully supports the minister of finance and the minister of labor."

"One can have a difference of view as to whether wage increases have doubled," said Mr. Sharp, speaking over opposition taunts.

Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo-Cambridge) asked whether the cabinet has decided to abandon the principle and tradition of solidarity in respect to economic policy and whether the budget ... will be subject, as in the government side is concerned, to a free vote."

Mr. Sharp said the budget vote "will be a question of confidence, as it was the last time, when we had a resounding victory."

Outside the House, Mr. Munro said wages are an important factor in inflation, but they are not the only important factor. Professional fees, land speculation and oil and food prices were other major factors.

One way or another, Dick and the boys have been getting together over a little Molson Export for years.

Handleman Wants Pay On Output

TORONTO (CP) — Productivity increases—not the consumer price index—should be the basis for pay increases, Sidney Handleman, Ontario's minister of consumer and commercial relations, said Wednesday.

He told the Ontario branch of the Trust Companies Association of Canada that 1975 will be remembered as the year of pillage and rape—"not by corporations or abstract legal entities but by individuals and groups of individuals at all levels of society."

Those who already have a good share of the province's high standard of living are pushing for more, he said. "Reason is not prevailing over personal greed."

Wage demands including escape-clause increases or fat executive raises were irresponsible.

Bodies Still Elude Police Divers

NAPANEE — Ontario Provincial Police at Napanee are still unsuccessful in their attempts to recover the bodies of four men missing and presumed drowned from a one-mile wide channel between Amherst Island and the mainland just south of here.

When asked about Wednesday's efforts, an OPP spokesman said, "there is no news." Divers have not recovered the 15-foot fibreglass boat used by the men and two women who left the island at 1.30 a.m. Sunday.

One woman is dead and the other is in fair condition at Kingston General Hospital. They were found on Sunday.

Divers will return to the waters today in the area between the departure and arrival points and west of that area where the women were found. The current is strong in the area.

Yardmen Centre to Be Built With or Without Provincial Aid

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Yardmen Recoil Paul president Ted Brunton says the Quinte Sports Centre slated for Canniffton Rd. will be built with or without provincial government help.

Mr. Brunton was responding to a question of how much money has been collected towards the $6-million centre and what will happen if anticipated senior government funding falls through.

"We've made a promise — a commitment to the city to build a centre and one way or another, we will," said Jack Lamberg, project co-ordinator for the fund.

Mr. Brunton said he feels the amount of money raised towards the centre should not be revealed prior to the proposed lottery operation E.C. Fisher said about $2 million has been placed in trust fund contract earmarked for the project."

Mr. Fisher said over the four years of lottery operation, the Yardmen have amassed a total, gross income of $3,018,459. Of that tot, $979,000 has been paid out in prize money and $387,031 has been used for lottery expenses.

Profits since 1971 — the first year of operation — are calculated at $2,258,228.

Mr. Fisher said this means the lottery has experienced a profit of 82.5 per cent of its earnings — a percentage he said is very high. He said most provincially-licensed lotteries have 50 per cent profit.

Yardmen, provincial government spokesman and city council will meet in camera Friday to discuss the possibility of senior government subsidies to foot the remaining $4 million required for the centre.

Preliminary plans show the building's first phase to include a swimming pool and ice surface.

Mr. Fisher said the point of Friday's meeting will be to discuss municipal takeover of the project thereby opening the way for provincial subsidies.

"At this time, provincial grants may only be given to projects under municipal government control," said Mr. Fisher. The building would ultimately have to be owned by the municipality, he said.

"We're going to have to take a good, hard look at where we are going," he said.

During an interview Wednesday, Mr. Brunton said "a few file point have to be ironed out," explaining why the meeting was called. "It's an exploratory meeting to find out when and how much money," we can get, he said.

All senior level projects to begin construction can be let within 30 days," said Mr. Lundberg.

These last week questionnaires were delivered to 10,000 homes in the immediate vicinity of the city, surveying the residents as to their priorities for the building. The questionnaire asked individuals would like to see built into the centre and what reaction there would be to membership fees.

These fees would be used to offset the operating cost of the building," said Mr. Brunton.

So far, 1,000 of the questionnaires have been returned to the Yardmen but answers have not yet been tabulated, said Mr. Brunton.

Students Study Museum

About 35 students of Jack Dixon's Grade 4 class at Sir John A. Macdonald Elementary School spent almost five hours in extensive study of Glanmore House (Hastings County Museum) Wednesday.

Curator Marion Lewis said the students were taken on an in-depth tour of the museum by students' guides from Moira Secondary School, made sketches, wrote stories and poems and viewed several old houses in the city.

He said it was the first unstructured visit of its kind where a class has taken over the museum. Even mothers came along, he added.

Two Students Return Home

Two students from the Sir James Whitney School in Belleville returned home earlier this month after changing places with two American youngsters.

The exchange grew from an international meeting of Kiwanis clubs from Ontario and New York State in Belleville.

The students from the Belleville High were Barry Tonkin, 14, of Thunder Bay and Nancy Hebden, 15, of Bloomfield.

They exchanged for a week with Tony Cooke, 14, and Lisa Brooks, 15, of the New York State School for the Deaf, in Rome, N.Y.

The exchange officially took place at the International Peace Bridge at the Thousand Islands.

Put Papers In Order: Ellis

The number of people seeking said Ivan parliamentarians in getting last-minute proof of citizenship is mounting.

Thus all Canadians would do well to have proof of citizenship, says Jack Ellis, MP Hastings in his latest newsletter to constituents.

Much of the demand stems from the need for passports.

But the need to prove citizenship is made more necessary by voting regulations. In future federal elections voters will have to produce documentary proof they are Canadians before they cast a ballot.

The handiest document is a birth certificate. Naturalized Canadians should have a citizenship certificate, says Mr. Ellis.

Inquest Makes No Ruling on Death

NAPANEE — A coroner's jury investigating the death of an Ontario Hydro worker who fell 52 feet from the roof of a building at the Lennox Generating Station near Bath Feb. 26, has made no recommendations following an inquest here Wednesday.

The jury heard the death occurred under unusual circumstances and that it is difficult to guard against all circumstances. It said it discovered Ontario Hydro is currently researching a safe safety problems and said it felt the research should be accelerated and with the cooperation of the department of labor and other organizations.

Coroner Dr. Bevest of 27 Creigston St., Kingston, died from a thorax injury and heart rupture between 9 and 9:15 a.m. on Feb. 26.

Arms Drill

Military Unit Practices On Outskirts of City

A helicopter ground support group has departed Belleville after hosting land units on its outskirts into a testing ground. The unit was attached to 450 Transport Helicopter Squadron from CFB Ottawa South.

It was enroute to Niagara Falls and Camp Borden for land exercises when it made the Belleville stopover.

Informed of its arrival some weeks ago, Maj. Carl Hubel, training co-ordinator for the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, contacted Belleville Mayor Frank Sills when it made the Belleville stopover.

Informed of its arrival some weeks ago, Maj. Carl Hubel, training co-ordinator for the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, contacted Belleville Mayor Frank Sills when it made the Belleville stopover.

Lieutenant William Wills who owns vacant land on the city limits near the Wallbridge Road — Highway 401 interchange.

Mr. Wills agreed to allow the unit with its vehicles to use the area, testing out ground techniques during its two-day camping stopover Tuesday and Wednesday. The troops also used the Belleville Armory rifle range for target practice.

The unit's role, explained Capt. Jim Hunter, its commanding officer is to provide tactical and logistical support for the helicopter group transporting troops.

The training hosts at various military sites is part of a 10-day tour during which the unit also will stop a stopover in Peterborough on its return journey.

Expert Says Few Pupils Use Reading to Learn

Deputy director of education L. F. Reid says only a small percentage of the population actually use reading as a learning device today.

To support his argument and learn more about this problem Mr. Reid, a former principal at Quinte Secondary School, attended a five-day conference in Calgary called Brass Tacks Conference between May 5 and 9.

At the conference Dr. Wayne Jennings, director of St. Paul Open School, at St. Paul, Minnesota, told the delegates only 20 per cent of the adult population use reading to improve their knowledge or education.

Dr. Jennings, a well-respected educator in the United States, said most people learn by conversation, observation, movies, visual media and exchange of ideas with other people. He said people's learning ability through reading can also be placed on a bell curve.

He said it is pointless for educators and school systems to make everyone good readers. Dr. Jennings said only half of kindergarten students are geared for the school system. The rest are either slead in reading abilities or behind.

Roses Mark Anniversary

Belleville is looking slightly rosier this summer.

You can see the effect at the Armory regional memorial and Corby Park.

It's all due two women's groups — city chapters of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire (IODE).

The IODE this year is marking its 75th anniversary in Canada. For the occasion it had a special rose developed, as a fund-raising scheme. Among beneficiaries of the proceeds are groups concerned with children's care.

In Belleville The IODE's Argyll and St. Julien chapters went a local step further. They raised cash to buy enough roses for community presentation.

Both chapters have presented 100 of the bushes, which bloom a deep red, to the city park's board. They're now blooming in Corby Park.

The Argyll chapter, celebrating its 50th anniversary, has presented a collection of the bushes to the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment with which it has a long association.

The parks board agreed to plant them around the regimental monument on the armoury lawn at Pinnacle and Earl streets, and maintain the memorial's environs.

Old Photos Sought

The curator and his assistant are eager to collect photos of the old Picton rectory as it appeared through the years.

Caught In Act, Two Flee

Two unknown male youths, surprised in the act of a theft at Trudeau Motors on Station St. early today by a night watchman, dropped their loot and escaped, city police said.

Police said they were seen in the body shop about 2:30 a.m., took off but left behind a cardboard box containing a quantity of wrenches and other tools on the outside of a window.

Entry was gained by breaking a window on the south side of the building and the youths escaped by opening a window on the opposite side.

Another break-in was reported to police shortly after 11 p.m. Wednesday at a city residence but nothing was stolen.

Bylaw Debated

Members of the subdivision planning advisory committee Margaret Orr and Joe Cox (right) check downtown control bylaw details with planning board deputy planning director Frank Stokmans. Enforcement of the document is being questioned by legal staff. In the meantime, the committee has recommended council pass the bylaw. If passed, the document will give council broad control powers on development and growth downtown.

An Essential Donation

Harold Thompson prepares to donate blood, assisted by Red Cross aide Helena Ellvenslo at a blood donor centre organized by Belleville Kinsmen in Masonic Temple Wednesday. Local Red Cross officials later reported 265 pints had been collected — less than expected. They're hoping for better response as clinic continues today with evening hours of 6 p.m. to 8.30 p.m.

New Device Will Allow Deaf To Communicate on Telephone

Sir James Whitney School (OSD) officials are reacting with optimism and enthusiasm to the invention of a new device that will allow the deaf to talk on the telephone.

Dr. Joe Demeza, superintendent of the local school for the deaf, said it "would be a marvelous device and would be a great advance from the current telephone - teletype coupler system (TTY).

The Toronto Star said Wednesday three Metro men have invented a small, pocket-size device which may revolutionize telephone communications for the deaf and hearing impaired.

Described as a touch-tone system the invention itself is a small rectangular plastic container which can be attached to the telephone. It has small panels and illuminated letters rapidly appear to spell out whole words.

Dr. Demeza said Sir James Whitney would be interested in learning more about the device and perhaps, obtaining some.

"The main advantage of this device is that it's portable and relatively inexpensive," said Dr. Demeza.

The Star said the new device will be manufactured in a one-precise workshop established by the Ontario Institute of the Deaf in Metro Cale. The workers will be deaf and disabled people and are expected to sell for about $100.

The currently TTY is basically a telephone hooked up to a teletype and the conversation is transmitted in print out of the message. Sir James Whitney has several of these devices but they are not portable and maintenance is a major problem with them.

The three inventors are Dr. Vas Douglass, an authority on speech pathology and communications, James Doyle, a University of Toronto engineer and William Lancee, a University of Toronto mathematician and specialist in computer sciences.

In Canada there are estimated to be about 80,000 people who are hearing impaired and about 22,000 who are totally deaf. Sir James Whitney School is one of three schools for the deaf in Ontario.

Rose Week Approved

Much soon will be coming up roses, if county council learned Monday.

As a result it declared June 22-29 Rose Week in Belleville.

The move followed a request from the Belleville Garden club which—with summer—involves itself in various community horticultural projects.

Highlight of the week will be the club's annual Rose and African Violet Show, at Centennial Secondary School June 28-29.

Tire Blows, Driver Hurt

A 24-year-old Toronto woman is in satisfactory condition at Trenton Memorial Hospital with possible spinal injuries and cuts and bruises as a result of a one-car accident on Highway 401 near the end of Alkens Rd. about eight miles west of Belleville.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville said today Ellen J. Stuart of 69 Dearborn Ave. was confined at 12.10 a.m. today when a tire blew out on her car.

Police said she lost control of the vehicle which entered the median, went over and came to rest on its wheels facing east.

Constable James Wilson, the investigating officer, estimated $800 damage to the car.

Court Fire Extinguished

PICTON — Firefighters were called to the Prince Edward County Court House on Union St. May 23, when they found some rags lying in a half-way outside incinerator.

No damage was reported in the small blaze which broke out before 8 a.m.

Woodstock Gets Share Of First in OFL East

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Woodstock Warriors moved into a first-place tie with Burlington Mohawk Executive Provinciers in the east division of the Ontario Football League, defeating Toronto Waxmen Globals 4-3 Wednesday.

In other action, Hamilton Wentworth Scrappers beat the Evergreens 3-0 and 6-2 in a doubleheader in Kitchener to take second place in the east division.

Woodstock had to overcome a three-run deficit to win at home. They led 1-0 in the second inning and made it 3-0 in the fourth after John Barkowski blasted a two-run homer.

Woodstock had the score in the fifth and the winner came in the seventh when Ralph Hewitt singled, moved on Terry Lamb.

Bill Fiddis was Woodstock's winning pitcher, allowing five hits, walking one and striking out eight. Losing hurler Reg Martin gave five hits but was struck out 10. Toronto now has lost six consecutive games.

Hamilton hurler Ed Nendorf gave up only two hits in the first game while Bill McBellis allowed four hits in winning the second.

The Scrappers blasted the Evergreens 3-0 in the first after Wentworth pitcher Bob Barker hushed a three-run homer in the top of the seventh inning.

In the second, Hamilton forced extra innings after infielder Doug Farth tripled and scored on a throwing error in the top of the seventh to tie the game 2-2.

In the eighth, the Scrappers scored their winner after Gord Pearman clashed a three-run homer to left field to supply the winning margin in the 6-3 decision.

Reds Blank Expos 6-0

Healthy Nolan Delivers

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GARY NOLAN

Gary Nolan has found the right medicine for a bad shoulder and it's given a shot in the arm to the Cincinnati Reds' pitching staff.

"He's back and we're all kicked," team-mate Johnny Bench said Wednesday after catching Nolan's 4-4 two-hit shutout over Montreal Expos Wednesday night.

Nolan, batting back from shoulder so sore that sidelined him most of last season, pitched his first shutout since 1972. Nolan's victory, his third in a row, sparked visions in the Cincinnati camp of a possible return to the form of 1970, when he won 18 games and led the Reds to the National League pennant.

In the other National League baseball games, New York Mets beat Los Angeles Dodger's 4-3, Pittsburgh Pirates defeated Houston Astros 3-0, Philadelphia Phillies defeated San Francisco Giants 8-6, Chicago Cubs beat Atlanta Braves 5-4 and St. Louis Cardinals defeated San Diego Padres 6-5 in 10 innings.

Nolan permitted a first-inning single to Pepe Mangual and a ninth, then retired 11 batters before Rich Coggins doubled in the sixth inning.

Ed Kranepool's sacrifice fly scored Felix Millan singled off Doug Rau, 5-4, to start the six-run rally that was greeted by Joe Torre's second as a sacrifice bust by Jesus Alou. Messersmith, who also pitched in relief in 1972 when he was with California Angels, came in at this juncture and was greeted by Joe Torre's single to right. The base hit advanced Millan to third and Torre moved to second on Joe Ferguson's throw to 1st-baseman Messersmith walked Rusty Staub intentionally to load the bases and Kranepool plunked his first sacrifice fly for the Mets. Dave Kingman, sent a long fly to right that delivered Millan with the tie-breaking run.

Dave Parker hit a two-run homer and Ken Brett scattered nine hits as Pittsburgh whipped Houston.

The Phils beat the Giants, helped by rookie Jerry Martin's two-run homer, his first in the majors, and a sixth shot by Mike Anderson.

Chicago pitcher Bill Bonham's second one run and drove in another run as the Cubs outlasted the Braves.

Nolan, who struck out four batters, walked one and gave up a single in the first inning before retiring the side in order. He was in command throughout, allowing only a single and a walk after the first inning.

Nine Wins for A's Lefty

Orioles Are Blue Birds

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

VIDA BLUE

Vida Blue, Bill Lee, Jim Hughes, Rudy, May, Stan Bahnsen and Eric Raich were the Associated League's pitching stars on Wednesday night. Nolan Ryan wasn't.

Blue hurled a four-hitter and became the first nine-game winner in the majors as Oakland A's blanked the sliding Baltimore Orioles 5-0 at home run by Sal Bando, Billy Williams and Reggie Jackson.

Lee also pitched a four-hitter for Boston Red Sox who defeated Texas Rangers 4-1 but lost his bid for a third consecutive shutout on two eighth-inning errors, one of them his own wild pickoff throw.

Hughes, a rookie, scattered seven hits for his sixth consecutive triumph, a 5-3 victory over Minnesota Twins over Detroit Tigers.

May survived first-inning wildness and allowed six hits while Bobby Bonds hit a pair of two-run homers in New York Yankees' 6-3 triumph over Kansas City Royals.

Bahnsen pitched his first complete game of the season, a six-hit 9-3 success for Chicago White Sox over Milwaukee Brewers.

Raich, making his second big league appearance, worked 7 2-3 innings as Cleveland Indians bat Ryan and California Angels 9-3. Ryan yielded seven hits and six runs in seven innings, including two-run homers by Buddy Bell and John Lowenstein.

It was the Indians' 10th consecutive victory at Anaheim Stadium over three years as they completed a three-game sweep of the Angels under coach Dave Garcia while their suspended manager, Frank Robinson, watched from the press box. He returns to action Friday.

Raich, who failed to hold a 8-4 lead against Oakland, and Blue in his first start, notched his first triumph before 28 friends and relatives. He lists from Compton, Calif., and pitched for the University of Southern California.

"Going against Nolan Ryan really gave me goosebumps," he said. "What went through my mind was I hoped I'd give up less runs than he did."

Baltimore's Mike Torrez had a no-hitter until Blanks hit his fourth home run of the season with one out in the sixth inning. One out later, Joe Rudi walked and Williams followed, with a homer into the second deck in right field, his seventh. Jackson hit a two-run homer in the eighth, his sixth of the season.

Punch Is Stung; Dudley a Stinger

BUFFALO (CP) — Rick Dudley, 25-year-old Buffalo Sabres right-winger who played out his option with the Sabres in the National Hockey League and signed a five-year contract with Cincinnati Stingers, the new entry in the World Hockey Association.

Dudley's departure after two seasons with the Sabres was announced Tuesday by general manager Punch Imlach who expressed both bitterness and regret.

"I'm very disappointed that Dudley continued to deny during the playoff season that he had signed with a WHA club," said Imlach, adding that "the Sabres are sorry to see him go."

Dudley was the fifth highest scorer with Buffalo this season, scoring 30 goals and adding 34 assists for 64 points.

He played junior hockey with St. Catharines Black Hawks before turning professional with the town of the Central Hockey League in 1968. He played three seasons in the American Hockey League with Cleveland and two with Cincinnati—before winning a job as a regular with the Sabres.

RICK DUDLEY

It's Time To Pay

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The World Football League has filed a bankruptcy petition for the purpose of paying off its creditors, an official of the WFL said Wednesday.

Ted Falkinburg, administrative vice-president of the WFL last year, said in an interview that league president Chris Hemmeter had made a proposal that was intended to satisfy all creditors. The plan was mailed last week to many persons owed money from the old WFL.

He said creditors are to vote June 4 on whether to accept the plan.

Technically, the old WFL filed a bankruptcy petition last April 25, changing the name of the company to Football Creditors Payment Plan Inc (FCFP). A United States district court spokesman said the petition was filed for the purpose of arranging payment to creditors.

"The new league bought the name of the old league, and the logo, in order to continue operating," Falkenpiel said.

Argos May Land Lee

TORONTO (CP) — Quarterback Bob Lee, who signed a three-year guaranteed contract with Atlanta Falcons last year but no longer fits into the National Football League team's plans, has been offered to Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League.

Argonauts general manager John Barrow says Lee, 29, will be signed to a multi-year contract if proper financial arrangements can be made. Falcons would pay part of his salary and the Argos would assume the balance for the last two years of his Atlanta contract period.

European Cup

Bayern Blanks Leeds United

PARIS (Reuter) — Two goals in 11 minutes Wednesday enabled Bayern Munich of West Germany to retain soccer's European Cup with a 2-0 win over Leeds United of England after weathering heavy pressure in the first half.

Bayern's Ipot Swedish defender Bjoern Andersson in the fourth minute with a badly placed header, and a few minutes before the half by attacker Uli Hoeness lobbed off after twisting his knee.

The handicap looked too great for Bayern as Leeds' kow Kobe in the German defense but had luck and poor shooting prevented a Leeds score.

After the half, Bayern began to put back into the game and, with 19 minutes left, Franz Roth scored. After another 11 minutes, Gerd Mueller beat Leeds goalie David Stewart again.

Dittmar Cramer, Bayern's trainer, said his strategy for the game collapsed because of the early injuries but he said he was satisfied with the outcome.

"Bayern knew that Leeds was the favorite and they planned to put out of defensive tactics," said Cramer. "It was not their idea to play in defence but this forced was applied by the two injuries.

"I am happy that the two goals were scored during Leeds attacks. It needed skill and luck."

The Bayern scoring came shortly after Leeds thought it had taken the lead on a goal by Peter Lorimer but French referee Michel Kitabjian disallowed the score, saying three Leeds players, including Billy Bremner, were off side.

Leeds fans behind the Bayern goal showed their displeasure at the ruling by throwing broken seats and other debris onto the field.

After the game, the winner carried the silver cup in a victory lap around the Parc des Princes Stadium before a crowd of 49,000 but when they reached the Leeds section, they quickly retreated under a hail of thrown debris.

The game was halted twice when the Leeds fans threw bottles and seats which came close to hitting Bayern goalie Sepp Maier. Police reported several injuries in clashes between Bayern and Leeds supporters.

Italy Defeats Canada

MILAN, Italy (CP) — Canadian national basketball team suffered a 72-68 loss at the hands of the Italians, setback Wednesday night.

The Canadians, led by 15-point performances from Phil Tollestrup and Bill Robinson, stayed close through most of the game but the Italians pulled away in the last minutes.

The score was 39-32 at the half and Canada managed to pull within five points but with only 12 minutes remaining, the Italians moved in front 60-49 and won after the Canadians' hopes for a rally ended when Tollestrup and Ken McKenzie fouled out.

It was only the second game of a five-game tour of Italy by the Canadian club and coach Jack Donohue was not happy with some of the weaknesses he spotted in his squad.

CHRIS EVERT

Evert Advances To Quarter-final

ROME (AP) — Top-seeded Chris Evert of the United States smashed her way into the quarter-finals of the women's singles in the $130,000 Italian Open tennis tournament Wednesday with a 6-1, 6-3 triumph over fellow Barker of Britain.

Bjorn Borg, No. 1 seed in the men's singles, has had 5-seconds to edge rookie Victor Pecci of Paraguay 7-6, 6-4 and enter the third round.

Three seeded girls failed to make the quarter-finals. Lisky Boshoff of South Africa beat Kazuko Sawamatsu of Japan 6-2, 6-3, Katja Ebbinghaus of West Germany downed Pam Teeguarden of Los Angeles 7-5, 6-2, and Fiorella Bonicelli of Peru ousted Chris Evert's sister Jeanne 6-4, 6-4.

Czechoslovakia's Martina Navratilova, the No. 2 seed, trounced Ingrid Bruning of Sweden 6-2, 6-2.

Schultz Loses Cool

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dave (The Hammer) Schultz of Philadelphia Flyers, fresh from his Stanley Cup win and claiming to have just beguiled his way out of a traffic ticket, tore up a woman reporter's notebook early Wednesday while she took notes on his account of the incident.

It occurred at the Spectrum following the return of the Flyers after their 3-0 victory over the Salvas in Buffalo Tuesday night. Bill Eisenberg, a sportswriter for the Philadelphia Bulletin, was covering a party there thrown by Ed Snider, owner of the Flyers.

Schultz burst into the room saying he and a friend had just been stopped for speeding, but the policeman recognized the Flyers star and said, "I can't give you a ticket. We've been rooting for you guys. Have a beer and sit down."

Schultz, who led the National Hockey League the last two seasons in penalty minutes and who is known for his aggressive play, spotted Eisenberg taking notes. He rushed at the woman, shouted obscenities and tore the pages from her notebook.

Schultz continued to shout obscenities at Eisenberg until Flyers' backup goalie Bobby Taylor intervened, telling Schultz, "Cool it, Cool it."

It occurred at that Eisenberg told Schultz.

"Calm down, hell," Schultz snapped. "Why are you writing that down about me?"

Schultz pointed at the Stanley Cup at one end of the room.

"That is what you should be here writing about."

Citizens Finance defenders Len Tydt (off his feet) and Harry Lamers challenge Quinte Italo-Canadians forward during early moments of Wednesday's Bay of Quinte Soccer Association match at Bain Park in Trenton. Teams played to 1-1 tie. Neither side had much luck when players moved into scoring range.

Shooters Are Off the Mark

TRENTON — Neither team had its sights set properly as Trenton Citizens Finance and Quinte Italo-Canadians battled to a 1-1 Bay of Quinte Soccer Association tie here, Wednesday.

Golden scoring opportunities were missed at both ends as over-eager shooters shot wide of the mark or banged the ball off the post and crossbar.

Italo-Canadians pressed in the early going, taking advantage of the wind and sun to pen the Trenton side in its own end. But it was the Finance squad which scored first.

Henry Sonneveld was the marksman, converting a pass from Dennis Woodcock. That one came with about 15 minutes played.

Later, Woodcock had to leave the game after injuring a leg in a crushing collision with an Italo defender.

Italo equalled off a free kick with 30 minutes played. George Del Grosso booked the ball into the goal area and Finance goalkeeper Terry Hore, perhaps bothered by the sun, was victimized.

Hore couldn't hold the ball and Oscar Nespoli was on the job to drive it home into an empty goal.

"No way," muttered the disgruntled goalie.

But that's soccer.

In a game played at Brighton, Cobourg Tory's defeated the home team 5-3.

Steve Dunstaer and Don Rosier were the winners. They threw third strikes past five and walked two. They only gave up four hits.

IN MEMORIAM

HOUSE — In loving memory of a dear son, Warren, who passed away May 29, 1973.
We think of him in silence,
No eyes can see us weep,
But deep within our aching hearts,
His memory we keep.
—Loving and remembered by Mom.

HOUSE — In loving memory of a dear dad, Warren, who passed away May 29, 1973.
Gone from our household pond,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
Some may think you are forgotten,
Because we do not weep,
But in silence we remember,
And you always were before.
—Loving daughter, Mrs. Ruth Dale, Don, Mike, Peter, Gary and Nancy.

HOUSE — In loving memory of a dear husband, Warren, who passed away May 29, 1973.
Sweet memories come first and I remain,
One thing I'll have you do,
Visit lovely dears in the path of flowers.
Don't let Father see you,
For he would be lonely too, you take,
Then I may visit the stone,
And tell you how I miss you.
—Always remembered and sadly missed by Mom, Dale, Don and Nancy.

HOUSE — In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather Warren, who passed away May 29, 1973.
Sadly missed along life's way,
Quietly resting from the day,
No longer in our lives to share,
But memories we have and always will bear.
—Always remembered and sadly missed by Pete, Gary, Mike, Don and Brother-In-Law Doreen and grandson Warren.

VADEN — In loving memory of a dear mother, Lillian Vaden, who passed away May 30, 1970.
Dearest Mother, you left us,
To rest in the arms of the Savior,
To rise from the world of sorrow,
To enter the home of the blessed.
—Lovingly remembered by son Howard Warren and daughter-in-law Mary Jane.
Two grandchildren.

HOUSE — In memory of our dear friend Warren House who passed away May 29, 1973.
Two years today, but every day,
We miss you more and more.
—Always remembered by Carl and Marion.

Lancelot, the peerless knight and bridge player, looked over at wily Mordred sitting, fat and remarked, "I am going to treat you like a lamb with this hand."

Then Lancelot played the four of clubs from dummy, Gawaine, sitting East, had to play a low club and Mordred's jack was allowed to hold the trick. He led a second club, Lancelot won with his ace and drew trumps with three rounds. He then led to win the third one in dummy. Then he played the queen of diamonds. Gawaine followed with the seven.

Lancelot turned to Mordred and said, "Here's another friendly trick for you." Then he played his nine spot and Mordred made another trick with a jack.

"Cadzooks," said Mordred. "Methinks I like you better when you act as an enemy. The last time I left an ace of spades err it is lulled to sleep by the old switcheroo."

So Mordred played his ace of spades and said Lancelot to a contract that would have been beaten if Gawaine had ever been able to gain the lead.

Colon Irrigation Not Advisable

By G. C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Although I have had diverticulosis for a long time, I have had no difficulty with this problem.

A friend of mine has advised me that colon irrigations are helpful in keeping diverticulosis under control. I would very much like your opinion on this.

I would vote colon irrigations no two counts, at least.

Such a procedure will cleanse the lower bowel, but it may also disrupt the natural chemistry of the colon. It is also questionable whether such irrigations would reach and flush the lower portions of the colon, and, as you know, diverticulosis and its complications from the intestinal wall can occur anywhere in that structure.

You seem to have your diverticulosis under control, so why fool around with methods that can be damaging, and at best only half-effective?

You would be better off making sure you get an adequate amount of bulk in your diet to promote natural bowel movements. Laxatives and enemas should be avoided unless there is a well-established reason for them.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: On all the laxative commercials there is a warning that continued use may result in dependency on them. But none ever explains what a laxative really does, or how it is that some people do not have. No one else has been able to explain this to me. E.N.

The body moves unneeded solids from the intestinal tract in a process that involves a "peristaltic" movement of the walls of the bowels. This alternating contraction and relaxation of the muscle fibers propels the food and, eventually, the waste to the rectum. When bacterial muscles take over, being called into action by undigested detection.

A laxative comes under the general heading of a cathartic. It is generally considered a mild cathartic, as compared with a purgative, which is more severe. A mineral oil would be considered to be a mild cathartic. It mixes with food solids in the intestines, making them softer and thus promoting easier passage down the digestive tract. A purgative would be a medication that has a direct and usually strong stimulating effect on the muscles of the intestines. Castor oil, the terms laxative and purgative are generally used interchangeably.

Usually a normal diet will take care of the matter, and no assistance is needed.

Prolonged use of any cathartic can disturb both the peristaltic process mentioned above and the natural muscular control at the rectum, making evacuation a regular and often troublesome. Persons who are habitual cathartic users tend to develop hemorrhoids more than do people who avoid them.

Sat back to your question. The main potential danger in the chronic laxative use, besides hemorrhoids, is a disturbance of the body's natural processes. Usually, in a case like yours, constipation will take care of itself, unless there is a functional abnormality. Many people will not wait to give the bowel time to do its work, indulging on a movement a day, which they consider a universal sign of good health.

Honest Your Honor

LONDON (CP) — Detectives snooping on houses in search of valuables from a fraud case were surprised when salesman David Mewitt 32 — quickly handed over his ill-gotten gains in person at a police station. The judge believed his story that the package fell off a truck, but nevertheless fined him $25 for theft.

Colon Irrigation Not Advisable

By removing bowel material completely with harsh laxatives, it may take two or three days for a new stool to accumulate.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My father age 72, was told the has cystic fibrosis in both breasts, and may have to have one or both removed. Is this common for a woman her age? Could it become cancerous, and is there any treatment?—M.N.

The term is cystic disease of the breast, not cystic fibrosis, which is an entirely different disorder, of glandular origin.

The condition your father has is not common in older women. It requires close observation and periodic check by both physical (by palpitation) and by mammography (X-rays of the breasts). It can become cancerous, but fortunately rarely. Surgical drainage or removal of the individual cysts.

Stray Pets Becoming Problem

OTTAWA (CP) — Stray pets, once just a nuisance, are fast becoming a serious problem for municipal officials. The soaring pet population in Canada and elsewhere has brought a wave of critics clamoring for tighter restrictions on dogs, cats and other animals.

Some Ottawa officials express the view that stray pets may take over the city if something isn't done.

Ottawa-Carleton regional water users recently received a letter warning them their water bill laying out the rules for dog-owners last summer.

The pamphlet asked owners to control their pets, convince others to do the same, stop their dogs from defecating on other people's property and call police about stray dogs.

Another city council move was a hefty boost to $25 from $2 in the pound charges for unclaimed animals picked up by dog catchers.

A recent survey of municipal and United States cities showed that 40 per cent of them rationed the stray-pet problem through laws in serious need.

"We haven't come to that point yet," said L. D. Smith, Ottawa's chief of street services and pollution control, "but we're getting pretty serious here."

Smith said Ottawa police received 3,200 stray-pet complaints in 1974, mostly about dogs, triple those received in 1973. A police spokesman predicted the 1975 complaints would rise appreciably this year.

Mr. Smith said the problem can be solved.

The long-term solution, of course, is neutering and spaying the animals. Educating the public about these solutions and the lengthier treatment of the present pet-control laws are the short-term approaches.

Last year the Ottawa Humane Society killed almost 15,000 cats and dogs, about half of them classified as strays.

The Humane society pays up to half the neutering cost of animals found from the society by needy owners.

Ontario Firms Sold Bad Meat to Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — A supply network that provided tainted meat for human consumption throughout the province of Quebec had links in Ontario, the Quebec police commission inquiry into organized crime was told Thursday.

Evidence also indicated that two unnamed Ontario retail outlets may have received meat from a Pelee Canneau, Que., meat supply firm that was acquiring tainted meat from Ontario.

Leo Lacelle, a Quebec meat dealer, said the inquiry he purchased between 300,000 and 360,000 pounds of tainted meat—mostly beef and diseased animals—from meat salvagers in various Ontario centres between 1971 and 1973.

Mr. Lacelle said Art Surrett, owner of King Animal Food near Peterborough, was his chief supplier of tainted meat.

He identified his other Ontario suppliers as John Meegren of Brewerton, 20 miles southeast of Orillia; and meat salvagers Lloyd Lorenz of Durham, 30 miles south of Owen Sound; Hans Rohl of Via Rhodi Hill, 80 miles east of Ottawa; and a Mr. Macabee of St. Albert, 30 miles east of Ottawa.

He said the meat purchased near Peterborough was taken to East Templeton, Que., in unmarked trucks where it was transferred to cardboard boxes.

Some of it was then moved to Hull Food Supply in Pointe Gatineau, Que., where, Mr. Lacelle testified, it was loaded on to a truck with the markings of Federal Packing Inc. of Magog, Que., a firm which police raided last month and seized thousands of pounds of tainted meat.

He said that two Ontario retail outlets, which he did not identify, were among customers for Hull Food Supply's meat.

Mr. Lacelle testified he paid Ontario salvagers from 22 to 38 cents a pound for the meat. Previous testimony has involved tainted meat from dead and diseased animals is usually sold in pet food and fertilizer companies for a fraction of that price.

Asked if he thought the Ontario dealers who sold him the meat knew it was for human consumption, Mr. Lacelle replied: "They should have known by the price."

Evidence filed with the inquiry by police commission lawyer said Ernest Laderoute, owner of Hull Food Supply, had acquired Federal Meat Packing with a total of 282,349 pounds of meat from 1972 to 1974.

The inquiry also heard testimony from Hugh McGovern, a 23-year-old butcher, who said Ontario meat salvagers routinely sold their products to Quebec meat distributors.

He described how, between 1968 and 1971, while working for his father-in-law, Gerald Mallette, he helped unload meat in boxes labelled "not for human consumption" from a Toronto-area salvager, whose name was ordered withheld by the inquiry.

He said the meat was marked with charcoal dust as required by law to slow it was destined for the pet food market but the charcoal was cut away and the meat repacked in unmarked boxes.

He said much of the meat went to Hull Food Supply.

National Meat Standards Are to Be Fixed in July

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government plans to set national bacteria standards for meat sometime in July, Dr. A. R. Lancaster of the health protection branch said Thursday.

"We've taken our time because we want to set workable standards," Dr. Morrison said. "It's been a long term development program, not a one shot Mouse grandstand operation."

He was replying to charges made last week by Dr. Ken Pennifold, Ontario supervising mental health officer, that the federal government had made no change in the condition of meat in Canada, even after last year's tainted hamburger scandal.

Dr. Pennifold said a conference last November of federal, provincial and municipal health experts to discuss microbiological standards for meat was a "waste of time" because no standards had been set. He also said meat sanitation workshops for meat merchants and the results of the western half of the national hamburger survey promised last year by Health Minister Marc Lalonde never materialized.

Dr. Morrison said his department has published several pamphlets on meat sanitation and distributed them in the industry through the Food Trade Association.

He added that meetings are planned "in the near future" with industry representatives to discuss meat sanitation courses.

Dr. Morrison said the western part of the national hamburger survey had been released, but it did not give a result publicly as the eastern half because there are no health violations.

Mr. Lalonde said that the bacteria in the meat was harmless to humans if the meat was properly cooked. He admitted, however, that the bacteria could be present in bologna or other prepared meats and would not be destroyed because the meat would not be cooked.

Just Hope

OTTAWA (CP) — Grocery shoppers can avoid buying tainted meat by patronizing reputable supermarkets but diners "can just hope" that meat served in restaurants has been inspected and approved, Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the Food Prices Review Board, said today.

Brampton Shooting: It Can Happen Here

President of Hastings Teachers Forecasts New Atmosphere Now in Canadian Schools

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

County educators are now saying it's happened in Ontario and it could happen in Belleville — violence in the high schools.

Director of education Eric Rumacres, in response to the two shooting deaths in Brampton Wednesday, said "the school often becomes the focal point of a student's emotional instability and the teacher becomes of a symbol of society's pressures on him."

Mr Rumacres, who believes this type of violence is a problem of society not just the school, said it is difficult to predict how emotional problems will manifest themselves.

He said the only safeguard against such violence in the schools is for the teachers to be acutely sensitive to the behavior of students. He said the main reason for advocating professional development for teachers is a need for a greater understanding of human behavior.

Judie Curry, Hastings division president of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation (OSSTF), reacted with shock to the slaying of a Brampton teacher and student. She said teachers across Ontario and Canada will be deeply affected by the tragedy.

"There will be a new atmosphere in Canadian schools now," explained Mrs. Curry." It's no longer an American television it's now been brought home." She said it may affect student teacher relationships.

Mr. Rumacres said the major problem is that society no longer gives schools a clear cut indication of what moral and ethical values it wants students to learn or strive for.

Mr. Rumacres said parental concern and care could possibly defuse a situation which could end in violence. If parents watched the behaviors of their children for signs of abnormality it would help in diagnosing and treating emotional disorders," he suggested.

Mrs. Carty said several teachers in Belleville were not surprised at the outburst of violence. She said some even wondered why it has taken so long for this type of violence to erupt in Ontario high schools.

Atlantic Postmen Are 'Sick'

HALIFAX (CP) — Inside postal workers booked off sick today in two federal areas of the Atlantic provinces and regional officers of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) continued to forecast similar action across the country during the day.

Nova Scotia postal officials announced the number of workers not be paid for the time they have called in sick. In Moncton, an overnight tire-slashing incident reported at a post offices parking lot drew extra security officers as duty today.

Union officials and postal authorities in the region continued attempts to assess the impact of a Thursday night call for all 1,100 CUPW members in the four eastern provinces to book off.

A postal union spokesman at national union headquarters in Ottawa said the walkout would take place in the Atlantic region and Quebec, with the exception of Montreal.

Bell Asks Rate Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — Bell Canada announced plans today for higher rate increases would help in a yearly revenue increase of $102 million in two steps.

The higher rates would apply to long-distance calls and optional and auxiliary services such as extension telephones.

But the company which serves Ontario, Quebec, parts of Newfoundland and the Northwest Territories said there would be no increase for residence and business main-telephone service or service charges for connecting residence and business main telephones.

The company asked the Canadian transport commission to approve an emergency interim increase which would take effect Aug. 1 and a further boost effective Oct. 1.

Teachers May Get Right to Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's 70,000 teachers will be given the right to strike under legislation to be introduced next week, Education Minister Thomas Wells said today.

In a statement concerning the proposed legislation, Mr. Wells said school boards also would be given the right to lock out teachers.

"The legislation represents a significant step in a return to more harmonious relationships between teachers and school board in this province," Mr. Wells told members of the legislature.

Toronto Postmen Dislike Support Given Montrealers

TORONTO (CP) — A petition protesting the handling of negotiations by the national executive of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) is being circulated among the 5,400 members of the union's Toronto local.

Drafted by Fred Ashton, a former secretary-treasurer of the local, the petition demands that executive and national negotiating committee withdraw their position that clerical workers be the part of office agents employees in Montreal local 300 in contract negotiations.

The petition also demands that the union negotiate a collective agreement on the same terms that were accepted by the Letter Carriers' Union of Canada.

Ald. George Segouras complained of cars parking in the area "all day long".

The construction site has been boarded up to the edges of the roadway.

City Garden Plots Attract Numerous Green Thumbs

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

John Blanchard likes gardening — watching things grow.

It's an instinctive trait he shares with many.

Thereby hang a common problem for scores of Bellevillians until this spring.

For John there was one sense of loss when he moved from Brockville — and a garden — to Belleville recently. He became an apartment dweller, on Village Drive.

Gardening was out — or so it seemed until recently.

Those days if you're looking for John Blanchard in his spare time you'll like as not find him happily vegetable-gardening — along with other land-short fellow citizens.

What they're also doing is demonstrating the apparent success of Belleville's first municipal garden allotment scheme of modern times.

After a slow start, the project is now in full swing with few garden plots left.

So much so, parks board officials — who conceived the scheme — already are conjecturing happily on its future prospects.

So far I'm very optimistic about it for next year", says Gene Gemmell, department horticulturist co-ordinating the project. The scheme has made 96 plots available on land donated by Alberti College between Wellington and Sidney streets.

Offered for the summer on a $10 lease, only a few plots still were unspoken for Tuesday. Mr. Gemmell expected them to be rented soon.

The leasing produced some unexpected changes in the intent of the scheme. Originally it was hoped the allotments would appeal mainly to senior citizens as there are living complaints for the elderly in the area — and apartment dwellers.

Surprisingly, officials reported recently in the parks board, senior citizens showed a lack of response — despite experience with wartime vegetable gardens.

Many of the gardeners now are both young apartment dwellers — like John Blanchard — and home owners with little property to grow vegetables.

Mr. Gemmell says it's estimated the 20-by-30 foot plots can keep a family of four in fresh vegeta bles throughout the summer.

"But it's not just the economic benefits that are the project's attraction," Mr. Gemmell and Mr. Blanchard say.

Besides the satisfaction of creating something themselves, the project has become something of a social venture as the gardeners mingle, sometimes exchanging tips.

Mr. Gemmell puts it this way: "The project gives the pleasure of being able to get out and work the soil and meet other people."

Home Inmate In 97th Year Enjoys Swim

OTTAWA (CP) — "I feel 18— I love it, it's wonderful," said 96-year-old Elizabeth Berwick about her Tuesday afternoon swimming at a local community centre.

She and eight other members of the Hillel Lodge, a Jewish home for the elderly in Ottawa, swim every week. Mrs. Berwick is the oldest; the youngest swimmer is 65.

Daisy Mitchell, recreation director of the lodge, said the program improves morale and physical well-being.

Mrs. Berwick proves the point. She has to be lowered into the pool on a lift because of arthritic knees. And 45 minutes in the water she said she walked more easily, slept better and felt fresher, more relaxed.

Although she did not swim in her youth, Mrs. Berwick plans to swim "as long as I live, as long as God will give me." She may be swimming for a long time yet; her father lived to be 114.

Joseph Turnstow, 90, also enjoys the program. "It's good exercise, clean, it helps pass the time, and it gives you a lift, a lift of pep, a perk-up." He said it is his favorite activity.

Three Ottawa pools offer swimming programs for the elderly.

Growing Their Own

Belleville's municipal garden allotments are giving apartment dwellers and owners of small homes the chance to grow their own vegetables this summer. Dry Spring May Create Problems for Boaters

By AL SARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — An abnormally dry spring this year might mean a spell in water levels on the Trent River this summer, with resulting navigational problems and damage to river wildlife.

A Parks Canada official in Peterborough said Thursday this year's dry spring has prompted staff on the Trent-Severn Waterway to begin reduction of flows earlier than is usual for the time of year.

The measure, said water control manager Ernest Ellcombe, is being taken now to conserve water in about 40 reservoir lakes that feed the canal system in summer when rain is less plentiful. Reservoir lakes — the most northerly being Kawartha Lake about 100 miles north of Peterborough — are only 65 to 90 per cent full.

Right now, he said, it's hard to tell what this year will bring. If summer months turn up dry, Parks Canada officials may be forced to keep lower lakes on the waterway itself, an unusual practice.

Mr. Ellcombe said levels along the canal system are low enough to be navigable, but flows are low because of below-average rainfall over the past month and a half.

Water stored in the reservoirs is the key factor in maintaining a navigable level throughout the system, Parks Canada guarantees boaters, through depth charts it prepares, that water levels will remain fairly constant — within about a half-foot range.

If it drops more, said Mr. Ellcombe, a boater could find himself left "high and dry" in only five key places where a chart indicated a six foot draft.

But he said he feels water levels will be maintained on the system: "We've always managed before. You don't have to have it perfect year after year to manage."

Water level control on the Trent River is critical for the preservation of wildlife, according to Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority chairman William Carter.

In a strongly worded letter to Parks Canada last year, he claimed water level control over the last three to five years has been poor.

Mr. Carter said such poor control makes a mockery of any attempts to give consistency to water fluctuation can write out of the preservation of fish.

As an example, he cited a drop of two feet in the Percy Reach last year that left fish eggs "high and dry in shallows that ordinarily are one or two feet below water".

"My personal observations at Campbellford verify lack of control as a result of the rise and fall of up to two feet which frequently occurs in a short space of time."

During the last three to five years, said Mr. Carter, the fluctuations in water levels have increased in magnitude and frequency. If continued, this could result in the Trent River becoming useless as a wildlife sanctuary and a tourist attraction.

Map to Outline Exact Areas of Flood Plain

TRENTON — Quinte Planning Board deputy director Frank Stokmans said Thursday that once the flood plain map for the Trent River is complete there will probably be a ban on building within a specific area on the river's east and west banks.

Work on the map has not begun and is expected to be in the hands of the town and the Lower Trent Region Conservation authority within two months.

Currently, both banks are covered by an interim official plan designation that acts only as a guide to town council for policy decisions for development along the river.

The $9,000 study by a Toronto consultant will define areas along the river that are subject to flooding. Trenton is paying about $1,400 as its share of mapping costs, while the major portion is covered by Queen's Park.

No completion will allow the planning board to proceed with a draft for an amendment to Trenton's official plan, now laden with virtually a total prohibition on development along the river.

Ambiguity over flood plain width has prompted one local industry, Domtar Packaging Ltd., to complain that possible development plans have been held up.

Domtar manager Frank MacKenzie said last December his company was being held at a standstill on plant expansion because of fears over infringement of land eventually to be designated in the official plans as high hazard land, and therefore closed to development.

Company administration supervisor Art Currie said Thursday plant expansion plans have been shelved temporarily since the need to expand may have been ended by a new process the company has developed.

Authority Plans Attack On Tent Caterpillars

PICTON — Students working with the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority through the summer program commencing '75 today attacked a large infestation of tent caterpillars at Macaulay Mountain with sprays.

Richard Hendry, assistant agricultural representative with the offices of the Ontario with the offices of the Ontario ministry of agriculture and food here, says many calls concerning caterpillar infestations have been received.

He notes some of the insects are tent caterpillars but others are a species that have not yet been identified by the agricultural office.

He observes the commercial spray Sevin is recommended as one of the cheapest and easiest methods of coping with the caterpillars but adds hand sprayers are highly ineffective at 40 or 50 foot trees.

Mr. Hendry says, the caterpillars will move on from the trees in their life cycle in any event.

Tents to Fold

Tent caterpillars have infested trees and bushes at the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority's Macaulay Mountain site but tents are about to fold as student workers prepare to spray the cocoons. A senior supervisor with Experience '75, David Matthies scouts out blighted shrubbery for co-workers.

Hay Crop Threatened By Weevil Outbreak

PICTON — Hot, dry weather in Prince Edward County this spring has fostered the Alfalfa weevil "in fantastic numbers" says Richard Hendry, assistant agricultural representative at the ministry of agriculture and food offices here.

Mr. Hendry commented visits to numerous county farm fields recently show the weevil is "very plentiful" this year.

He said the agricultural office is encouraging farmers in the usual prodecures of early cutting or spraying to combat the weevil.

The early cut is described as the most feasible and economical way to prevent crop loss.

Farmers are advised to spray only if they find the weevil is "getting ahead of them" noted Mr Hendry.

The sprays used are expensive and a few are hazardous since it is impossible for all fields to be cut at once it is likely, however, that sprays will be used by some farmers.

Mr. Hendry said the 1975 hay crop in Prince Edward will vary because of dry spring weather conditions.

He observed many farmers will cut hay next week while others have cut already.

It's difficult to say now but most fields seem fairly short," he remarked.

"The yield is likely to be reduced."

Mr. Hendry said there have been "spotty" rains in the county this spring and added that a dry May usually indicates a lighter hay crop.

In Prince Edward approximately 40,000 acres of hay is grown annually.

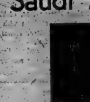
Saudi Arabia to Spend Oil Billions on Industry, Education, Water and Hydro



By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Surely the measure of prudent performance by those new nations with their increasing revenues from oil... has to be how they are spending their new financial resources?

Earlier this month the council of ministers of Saudi Arabia approved that country's Five Year Plan to cost about $140 billion.

If the major elements survive and go through, Saudi Arabia will be one of the conservative desert kingdom, will enter the 20th century.

The Saudi Five Year Plan, to be carried out with the import of no less than half a million outside technicians, includes 500,000 housing units, 2,000 miles of power transmission and about 10,000 miles of paved highways.

Other items include improvement of water supplies in a very arid nation, expansion of port facilities many times to suit new equipment and a huge educational expansion to cope with 1 million high school students.

And of course, there will be the anticipated massive involvement in the heavy industries which could help emerging countries using their own or someone else's funds can reach.

The Saudi amount to be invested is staggering by the standards of the developing nations or of Five Year Plans in nations much less well-endowed with commodity earnings as the Saudis.

The Cuban Five Year Plan over the same period will cost an estimated $15 billion and the several Venezuelan external investments in short term markets comes to a modest $1.5 billions by comparison.

At the same time oil-rich Venezuela also has between 20 and $10 billions in oil revenues over and above tax earnings with which to make long overdue social democracy come to every Venezuelan.

The Venezuelan situation is perhaps typical of the oil nations, many promises, expansionist speeches by national leaders, but large delays in getting the oil earnings flitting down to the man-in-the-field.

The youngish new governor of the Venezuelan state in which sits affluent and indifferent Caracas, the nation's capital, vowed that city's still large slums and is worried about how a cheesy Latin bureaucracy can distribute Venezuela's great wealth to the chronically poor.

None of the major oil exporting nations, including tiny Brunei, can claim delays are due to inadequate planning staff. At the level of economic expertise, the Arab, African and Latin American oil-producing nations appear to have a plethora of economists.

The annual meetings of Princeton, Yale and University of California economics department grads of the last 25 years would include large numbers of Arab ex-students now in senior positions if they chose to use them.

What the developing countries who are members of OPEC must develop, is a will to massive change.

Many of them are severely restricted by intensely conservative religious traditions and cultures which are going to interfere with forced-draft, modernization schemes.

One wonders how the superambitious Shah of Iran who runs a tough police state, will complete his much-touted social and educational reforms when he has ordered 1,000 British heavy tanks at a cost in excess of $1 billion for all this prestige hardware.

At this point it would seem the developing countries who are major oil producers would put their own backyard and disorderly house in order instead of constantly criticizing the greedy industrialized world.

They have forced the latter to release to them tens of billions of dollars, deutschmarks and yen. Can they put them to work properly?

'Humanize the Work Place' Urges State Secretary At Consumer Discussion

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs
Analyst
Thomson News Service

It doesn't take a Marshall McLuhan to perceive that consumers are bridging a whole new set of expectations in the market-place today.

And yet business often seems slow to recognize the big changes taking place in consumer psychology.

But when some six business executives got together for a one-day conference on consumer affairs the other day in Toronto, the result was a clearer perception of just how deep these changes are going.

Today's young adult consumers reflect, in a way, the vestiges of youthful belligerence and rejection of authority, Paul Fave, president of Imasco Ltd. told the gathering organized by the Conference Board in Canada.

"They are far more pragmatic and much less prone to conspicuous consumption," Mr. Fave noted.

"Keeping up with their peers, in a materialistic way, is unnecessary and in fact avoided in order to be individualistic.

"Their lifestyles are a reversal of former values and today is the relevant period.

What does today mean simply for business?

Well, very least, it means that functionalism is the most important factor in a product and that fancy packaging alone is no longer acceptable.

"Consumer sophistication demands—a reassessment of product line, packaging, quality and consistency of quality," Mr. Fave said.

He attributes the more practical approach of today's consumer to three factors, all of these:

—Sharply increased foreign travel, which has given a greater self-confidence, broader outlook, new tastes and tolerance of change, to thousands of Canadians.

—The much greater financial security among so-called blue-collar workers. "He is usually protected, through wage escalation against escalating living costs," said Mr. Fave.

—The inflationary squeeze on retired and pensioned people. Because of their inadequate income, their needs are becoming "highly value-oriented," while their wants far outpace their purchasing power.

As for the consumer future, consumerism will continue to command the active support of government because it is a visible, non-alienating political issue," he predicted.

Government was represented at the conference by Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner, who reminded the business leaders that monetary rewards are becoming more important to their employees, and "the nature of work" is becoming relatively more important.

Business, he said, should examine more boldly to "humanize the work place"—to take the big words more literally, for example, enlarge jobs to give individuals and groups more responsibility for several operations.

He had another worthwhile suggestion, that could be acted on by the public service as well as private employers: Provide more opportunities for people with physical or other handicaps to participate, even if it means changing established personnel policies, work procedures and even processes.

That is the kind of "public relations" that would have a positive impact on today's more critical consumer.

A Christian Society?

A letter on this page from a Belleville minister touches on some of the ills of our society.

Vandalism for one thing is a problem, by foreigners beyond the reach either of parents or of the church.

To the old vulgarity of conduct and of language, of ordinary day-to-day conversation, handed down from generation to generation, has been added an increased loosening of the bonds of morality and civilized conduct.

With such an assault on moral standards, and with continuing lobbying by a variety of interests against the abortion laws, there is the threat of a complete decline into hedonism and depravity.

The church itself has been under fire for its involvement in politics, and for embracing the tenets of humanism at the expense of the teachings of Christ. Yet it is still looked upon as a bastion of Christian and moral conduct.

Possibly it could be doing more in this line, reaching out more to people, and the young especially, its ministers speaking out more to people in their homes. A concerted effort perhaps by the ministerial association to put across what the Archbishop of Canterbury, during the coronation of Queen Elizabeth, said of the scriptures: "Here is wisdom, this is the Royal law, these are the lively oracles of God."

Mentioned on occasions here has been the admirable religious programming on television at Christmas, as well as records of religious music so widely available, from Johnny Cash's Gospel Story to Tennessee Ernie Ford and Anita Bryant. Also available now is a record series by actor Leif Ericson presenting the various Bible stories. These are all evidence of a more widespread Christian witness than might be supposed in these somewhat godless times.

There is a need though to let it all come together, through the established Church, a return to public morality, and an end to public posturing such as that by the anti-abortion law lobby that seeks a return to the days of Sodom and Gomorrah.

Meat, Milkshakes Under Scrutiny

Nothing in life should be taken at face-value.

It's a maxim that has singular relevance to the revelations about distribution of bad, and even diseased, meat in Quebec and possibly parts of Ontario, as well as to information on high bacteria count in milk shakes at a variety of chain outlets.

What is to be done about this?

Clearly, the process of inspection and on-the-spot maintenance of hygienic standards at food outlets and places of distribution must be stepped up.

While they are at it, this might be a good time to introduce general smoking bans in food outlets, this to include both staff and public.

It's a serious matter. In addition to routine inspections and stricter standards by food outlets and distributors, the Ministry of Health will have to be in addition to allay public fears. In other words, it is going to have to make follow-up inspections.

The task is a heavy one though and it may be that the job could be done best at the community level. The milkshake inspections were done by the Consumers Association of Canada, and in doing so they have rendered a valuable service. Similarly with meat, inspection at most source must be maintained, in the interests of everyone.

Viewpoint

Montreal Gazette

It is vital that the government work with — not against — unionism in adapting and implementing the recommendations of the Cliche commission. The punitive tone of some of Premier Bourassa's remarks is inappropriate and counter-productive, since Cliche commissioner found that the majority of workers desired democratic unionism.

Helped Communists—He Goes Free

The Globe and Mail

Nothing melts the flinty heart of the Department of National Revenue more readily than a plea declared by a taxpayer that he has made a contribution to a political party. Federal eyes mist over at the very thought of such selflessness and the amount involved is given a very handsome degree of deductibility.

Some might say that official recognition of this as a charitable donation to the best of all possible charities is morally excessive but it really can't hold a candle to the happiness with which it is regarded in modern Portugal.

Proof of this is to be found in a report from Lisbon about a former bank clerk, freed on a charge of embezzling more than 13 million escudos ($460,000). He was found not guilty of defrauding the Banco Totta Alliance on the grounds that the money had been used to finance the Communist-controlled secret revolutionary army.

Depositors at the Banco Totta Alliance will be happy to know that the interest will be paid in days or some forever. The day of the collective withdrawal is here.

Youth and the Church Today

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

If the "Belleville, the friendly city". But I wish more people would realize how friendly and how many children do not go to Sunday School, and how many parents go to Church on Sunday morning.

Yet the rink is crowded for hockey practice and the streets are filled with children, while parents sleep off the effects of the week, or the effects of the weekend. It makes one question the priorities of the parents and the leaders of our youth. No wonder we look for an escape from home! But shouldn't love of God and love of man go hand in hand?

If Belleville were really friendly towards its children no child would have to seek friendship by being in Sunday School or being on the team. Shades of Communist eastern Europe, where religion is forbidden or opposed to Christian Communism.

I wish Belleville were really friendly to God! Broken bottles on the streets and streets of Prayer rarely know how to hurt God's feelings, but the "feelings of broken glass" by Hilker's Hardware will be remembered of 1938.

We have a badly broken window that symbolizes Christ, the Light of the world, and the real struggle of good against evil. It was not done by brownie's littles, but by irresponsible hoodlums, who roared up in a car, and left their broken glass behind.

Perhaps it's time we learned that the friendship of man can only be found in God, who cultivate the friendship of God.

REV. DONALD HIMMELMAN.

Crossing Guards Praised

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Regarding two items in your newspaper of May 19 under the heading of "Boost Appreciated" and "Guards Ask Pay Increase", I did not read much when Trenton Council appointed the crossing guards, but when you suggested the crossing guards petition me as an urban to the council that was too much for even me.

Listen here, we have brought up three children from Grade 1 to Grade 8 and when we had the crossing guards, I never once had to fear for my children's safety. Not only that, ladies, the neighborhood children at school and bring them home every chance I get, due to the busy roads.

It used to bother me when I would see some of them take a chance and try to beat the cars across the road. Then came the crossing guards. What a different and relaxed feeling I had, knowing that my children would be taken care of by busy roads safely. You can't put money against a human life. I am a taxpayer and I think my money I am 100 per cent with the crossing guards.

Alberta MP Takes a Shot at the Trudeau 'Power Group'

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Keep an eye on Charlie Joseph Clark, 36-year-old, two-term Conservative MP for the Alberta riding of Rocky Mountain.

He just might be a candidate the time comes for his party's leadership.

But he won't get it because he is still a little young, even by the age of today, maybe a bit too smug, "liberally progressive for some of the conservatives, and lacks a power base.

Give him, though, a couple more Parliament, and a few more years in the Commons backbenches, and the next time the party is looking for a leader, he could find him ready, willing and able.

Joe Clark has been in the Commons only three years, but he has been active in Conservative politics, working both at the constituency level with the Progressive Conservatives, for and with its executives.

He has seen plenty of public exposure, both in the Commons and in meetings, and has displayed some of the Opposition's better parliamentarians in action at the Government.

Prime Minister Trudeau has been his prime target.

And like Trudeau, he can make a deadly missile of the abruptly turned phrase.

He was speaking the other day of the Trudeau Power Elite, and how, since the last election, it has thus a year it has transformed Ottawa and the Government into something almost sinister as both "unrepresentative" and "unaccountable."

Oversight, says Joe Clark, has usurped the role of Pierre Trudeau's vaunted "participatory democracy," became "restrictive cronyism."

The fear of firing — the Prime Minister and his colleagues — hung over cabinet like a black cloud, learned Finance Minister Turner his only member with any vestige of independence or influence.

And the Trudeau power to the political fact that among the Trudeau cabinet he is the only member not in debt for his present prosperity and future potential to the Prime Minister.

The opposite side of the cabinet firing coin is appointment to the ministry, and skilfully using both this carrot to entice the backbenchers and the stick to intimidate the cabinet, Pierre Trudeau has both pumping through hops.

In his speech-making to his personal "power elite," relates Joe Clark, satisfy it thoroughly undemocratically, the Prime Minister has developed a system with the buddy system.

A typical was the posting from the Privy Council Office, where he was one of the chosen "buddies," to Jean Marchand, Agriculture deputy minister.

"He is no ... sort of man to get measure on his shoes and may not have a previous from a Rhodes Island Red, but otherwise he is unexceptional," Agriculture are impeccable," cracks Joe Clark, "he cultivated favor in the Prime Minister's office."

Appointment to High Places is governed by "personal loyalty to Pierre Trudeau to the new "Power Group" — beyond the control or even influence of cabinet ministers.

"It comes out cast in the image of the Prime Minister. ."

The very "narrowness" of the "Trudeau Elite," warns Joe Clark, is dangerous to the country, for it thinks only as the Prime Minister thinks, denying its power not from loyalty to the public interest, the government and, of the party, but to the PM.

Chamber Wins Award

BANCROFT — The Bancroft and District Chamber of Commerce as well as the Belleville Chamber of Commerce were two of six such groups honoured by the Ontario Chamber of Commerce at the recent annual convention held in Niagara Falls.

The Bancroft given in recognition of the Chamber's efforts to establish improved broadcasting in the north Hastings community.

Bancroft president Doug Meeks and Community Radio Committee member David Whitlaw accepted the award.

The initial impetus for a North Hastings Radio Committee came from a broadcast committee of the chamber which was headed by George Robinson.

The project came to being 18 months later when CJNR went on the air on March 1 1976.

The Belleville award was accepted by president George Thomson. It was won for the organization, operation and philosophy of the Belleville Chamber's "Manufacturers Week."

Prince Rupert Rescue Volunteer Search Unit

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP) — For Captain Martin Holt, the sinking of the Riviver Rogue last February near this northwestern British Columbia city, claiming the lives of six of his fellow mariners, meant the time had come for caution.

Over a period of years Captain Holt and his employers, Riviver Straits Ltd., in company with other towboat owners, fishermen, merchant seamen and pleasure-boat operators, had been pressing the federal government for a search and rescue base in Prince Rupert.

The death toll at sea in this area averages 10 to 12 annually.

Pleasure boats don't often venture out of the harbor unless the weather forecast is good. Hecate Straits and the stormy seas along the coastline militate against taking too many chances with light craft.

But the Riviver men are in the towboat business and although their equipment is about as sophisticated and reliable as any along the coast, they do get into trouble.

Riviver Rogue was on a routine trip from Masset on the Queen Charlotte Islands to Prince Rupert with a partially loaded barge in tow when disaster struck. Before anyone could get close enough to help, the 85-foot, steel-hulled boat was resting on the bottom.

Captain Holt participated in attempts to locate the bodies of the six crew members. Only three were found.

As chairman of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce port and marine committee, Captain Holt acted. He went to Ketchikan, Alaska. For five years he had been hearing reports of a volunteer rescue squad operating out of that port.

After four trips to Ketchikan, in company with other members of the committee and concerned people from the marine industry, he had all the facts and figures.

Working with a group of friends, Captain Holt gathered data and local volunteers to get more information and was able to see that this city offered every opportunity to provide a rescue capability of its own.

He had help from provincial emergency program staff, municipal emergency measures officials, an organized land search and rescue group and volunteer air search and rescue personnel.

He found long-crossed supplies of medical and first aid equipment, radio units and a corps of volunteers to adapt this material to search and rescue work in the area.

Captain Holt enlisted assistance of a pressure group called Air Sea Rescue Action Committee (ASRAC) to continue the fight for a federal rescue base and took his case to the public.

He became the first president and chairman of the board of Prince Rupert Rescue 15, a volunteer organization capable of operating a combined air-land-sea search and rescue operation within 10 minutes of a distress call.

It has medical and paramedical people on standby, police and firemen and equipment on immediate call, the Canadian Coast Guard, fishing boats, tugs, missionary boats, the National Harbors Board pilot boat, ministry of transport helicopter and private helicopters, civilian aircraft, Victoria-based Canadian Forces ships, forces' search and rescue teams from Comox, B.C., ground searchers, trained mountain rescue teams, divers and communications experts.

Detectives Seek Killer's Reasons

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — A team of 30 detectives and police licensee spent Thursday trying to piece together the reasons why a 16-year-old Grade 11 student killed his teacher.

Michael Slobodian took two rifles to Centennial secondary school Wednesday morning after leaving a note saying he was going to "eliminate people," then killed Margaret Wright, 36, his English teacher, and classmate John Slinger, 17.

Thirteen other students were injured, also seriously in the shooting rampage. Slobodian turned a high-powered rifle on himself and committed suicide.

Ernie Nicholls, 19, shot in the abdomen, remains in serious condition. Seven of the other students wounded were reported in stable condition. One other student has been released from hospital.

Four other students were treated for minor injuries and released Wednesday.

Flags were at half-mast, students were black armbands and most sports activities were cancelled at the school Thursday.

At students gathered in quiet groups near the closed school, police interviewed anyone they thought might have an idea as to why the quiet boy, who loved biology but hated English classes, became a killer.

Police said there is no evidence to indicate Michael took drugs. They hope someone might give them an indication of what caused him to pack a .44-calibre rifle and a .22-calibre rifle into his guitar case and head off to the school.

"We're trying to get all the pieces together to come to some determination of why this happened," said William Teggart, deputy chief of Peel regional police.

He said an examination of school records revealed nothing to indicate Slobodian had undergone any psychiatric counselling.

In the note, found by the youth's father shortly after the shooting, Slobodian said two of the persons he planned to eliminate were Mrs. Wright and Ross Brunsea, a physics teacher.

Mrs. Wright had called the Slobodian home Wednesday morning to complain that Michael had skipped his English class. After his mother told him about the call, he took is guitar case and walked out of the home.

Mr. Brunsea said all students should be psychologically tested.

Asked if this would be acceptable to students, teachers and parents, he said:

"It had better be acceptable for I'm not going to sit here and accept that somebody can shoot."

He described Slobodian as "abnormally quiet" and a student who "kept too many things to himself."

Four students—Debbie Parker, Karen Champagne, Ann McHarron and Kevin Walter—said that two days before the shooting the Slobodian boy had tried to sell two rifles, a gift from his father, at the school.

Consumer, Federal Government Have Cut Shares of Spending

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer spent $62.36 of every $100 paid out last year, compared with $66.36 in 1954.

By contrast, the federal government spent directly $8.76 of every $100 last year, down from the $8.85 of 30 years ago.

All levels of government directly paid $21.65 of every $100 compared with $14.79 in 1954.

These statistics Canada figures shed some light—but only some—on spending patterns at a time when governments are under attack as being unable to control the trading inflation through heavy outlays.

The statistics trend is that consumers are able to spend less because governments are spending more money for them. A major factor is spending by the provinces on medical care and hospitalization.

Industry Minister Alastair Gillespie in a recent speech in Vancouver took issue with the contention that governments account for about 40 per cent of all national expenditure.

Public demand for more and better services has expanded government spending, Mr. Gillespie said.

"The person who complains that government spending is high is the same person who will also complain that he gets just one garbage collection a week," the minister said. "He wants two."

Why the big gap between the $21.65 per $100 spent directly by all governments last year and the figure of about $40 per $100 claimed by critics of government spending?

The answer lies in the word directly.

The federal government spends directly on such things as defence, a variety of public works projects from wharfs and warehouses to bridges and roads, public service salaries, prisons and the machinery for collecting taxes.

But indirectly, it does much more by collecting revenues and passing them on to others as family allowance payments, old age pensions, unemployment insurance benefits and oldage pensions.

Hence the figure of government responsibility is about 40 of every $100 spent last year.

The business community is the third major player in national spending behind the consumer and government, and last year the Statistics Canada figures show business spent $22.99 of every $100 compared with $21.50 in 1954.

Adding up the expenditures of the three groups does not total $100 because of inventories of unsold goods.

There has been a big spending on medical care and hospital payments and a big factor is the dramatic increase in direct spending by provinces.

Last year, the provinces spent directly $8.76 out of every $100. Twenty years ago it was $1.30 out of every $100 while 10 years ago it was $4.79 and five years ago $5.

Disbursements at all levels collected almost $70 billion last year from the public in taxes and $53.8 billion. The federal government collected more than $30 billion but spent directly only $8.3 billion.

Money governments distribute to others to spend are called transfer payments. A total of $8.7 billion last year went from the federal government for unemployment insurance benefits, opportunities for youth grants, old age pensions and family allowances.

The federal government gave the provinces almost $6 billion last year. The provinces give money to people, groups and companies and both the provincial and federal governments give money to municipalities.

Unregistered Plane Crashes With Cargo of Marijuana

ROCKWOOD, Tenn. (AP) — An unregistered cargo plane carrying about 800 pounds of marijuana that crashed here Thursday killing two persons was traveling an established drug smuggling route, officials indicate.

The plane crashed on a Thursday and burned at the municipal airport here while taking off.

Morgan County Sheriff Cecil Byrge said two bodies were recovered from the wreckage along with 800 pounds of marijuana.

He said a billfold and other papers recovered from the wreckage indicated the victims were men from Gainesville, Fla. A Knoxville medical examiner said positive identification might take two days.

Byrge tentatively identified the victims as Jennings Carey Brown Jr. and Charles McAnally.

The airplane was a Lockheed Lodestar of Second World War vintage that customs officials in Florida say is similar to ones often used by drug smugglers, months in Florida.

It has a large cargo capacity and long flight range.

They said three similar airplanes smuggling drugs into the country have crashed in recent

Gasoline Rationing Blueprint is Prepared

WASHINGTON (AP) — The plan nearly everyone says they hope never gets used, the government blueprint for gasoline rationing, is on Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb's desk.

The 12-volume Gasoline Shortage Contingency Plan calls for giving every licensed driver coupons for an equal amount of fuel regardless of where he lives or how far he drives to work.

The government committee that prepared the plan says it could be fully operational within 90 days of a decision to provide, would cost $1 billion a year and require 60,000 employees to administer.

Drivers would receive ration coupons which they would be free to sell to the highest bidder.

PLO Visit Is Opposed By Davis

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario would consider it "an affront and a provocation" if members of international terrorist groups such as the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO) were allowed to attend a United Nations conference here, Premier William Davis has said.

A May 3 letter from the premier to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau was read in the legislature Thursday by Allanwood-General John Clement. The premier was absent.

There have been reports that members of the PLO may attempt to attend the fifth UN congress on prevention of crime, scheduled for September.

Mr. Clement also tabled a letter from Claude Desjardins, Mr. Trudeau correspondence secretary, saying the letter was being brought to the prime minister's attention.

In his letter, Mr. Davis said he understood the province would not know the intent of the groups until the end of May.

"However, I they do seek to attend, I would appreciate being advised of the measures which your government proposes to take," the letter said.

New York Budget Cut

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Abraham Beame, criticizing Republican lawmakers and Wall Street bankers, announced a revised $11.88-billion budget Thursday that he says will cut 8,200 employees from the city payroll by June 30.

In addition to the 13,791 dismissals Beame previously ordered, the new 1975-76 "crisis-level" budget calls for the layoff of an additional 37,215 city workers. One out of every three policemen and one of every five firemen will be fired. Workers in education, health, transportation, housing, parks and municipal government are also marked for dismissal.

Beame said the budget will mean:

Canada Seen as Bothered By Billion Dollar Hangover

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada has a billion-dollar hangover.

That's what some experts say about the annual losses in productivity of alcoholic workers and it doesn't include the costs of social agencies.

The situation leads in countries trying to conceal the effects of alcoholism until the point of no concealment is reached, when the employee is fired.

"Alcoholism still isn't understood as an illness," said Allan Clements, co-ordinator for Unemployment Insurance Commission's Pacific Region employee counselling program.

"Unfortunately, the general public takes a moral view of alcoholism. There is a stigma attached to the illness itself."

Mr. Clements said the social stigma prevents industry front defining programs to battle the increasing incidence of alcoholism.

The alcoholic is a bad news machine. He is absent about three times more often than other workers, he is twice as likely to have an accident on the job and 10 times as likely to work; he has taken up to 15 years of his life span and is prone to alcohol-caused complications ranging from liver infections to suicide.

"By the time a person's alcoholism is showing up on the job, you may be sure there has already been trouble in the family and social situations," said Mr. Clements. "So, these first signs on the part indications of how serious the drinking problem has become."

He said Canadian Collieries Co. Ltd. estimated that alcoholism among its 1,500 employees in Prince Rupert, B.C., cost $187,500 in 1975, including overtime, retraining and sick benefits.

Mr. Clements said part of the problem is lack of a clear-cut program to deal with industrial alcoholism. His job is to notify UIC branch heads on availability of a program for identifying and rehabilitating alcoholics.

Regional branch heads and union representatives meet with Mr. Clements and representatives of rehabilitative agencies such as the Alcohol Foundation of British Columbia and the department of national health and welfare.

Mr. Clements uses a multi-media approach, confronting his audience with facts, figures, films and anecdotes, all to the effect that alcoholism is a treatable disease.

He uses a short film in which a supervisor talks to an employee about his work performance—not his alcoholism. The word "alcoholism" isn't mentioned, and the supervisor sends the employee to the company doctor, saying: "If we don't get at what's bothering you, we will have to let you go."

Mr. Clements said this takes the supervisor off the hook and sends the employee to someone capable of determining whether the man is an alcoholic and can be treated for the disease.

"I suggest to supervisors that they provide for medical help immediately after the initial interview because you have provoked a crisis in the alcoholic's life. We find that 100 per cent of employees accept this."

Mr. Clements suggested a meeting with the doctor should be a condition of continued employment. If the doctor confirmed an employee was under treatment, provided for meetings with supervisor, union personnel, a national health and welfare person and Mr. Clements.

He said this is not gauging up on the alcoholic and cautions that an alcoholic's remission may occur overwhelm a one-to-one situation.

The doctor prescribes a patient care, Alcoholics Anonymous or a live-in treatment centre.

Then the employee is required to sign a letter confirming the purpose of the meeting and acknowledging that continued employment is conditional upon participation in the treatment.

Mr. Clements, a recovered alcoholic with 14 years of sobriety behind him, is available at this and subsequent stages for counselling.

After one year the employee's progress is reviewed and the letter rescinded or the treatment period extended.

Volunteers Essential To Nursery's Program

Miriam Bishop, co-ordinator of the pre-school programs for the deprived children in the Belleville area, spoke to the members of the Delta Kappa sorority Wednesday night about the volunteer work that has brought about the First Adventure child development centre.

Meeting after class at Mother's restaurant, prof Mosher, the sorority adviser, Mrs. Bishop described the origins of nursery programs in the city.

More than ten years ago, a nursery was begun at Bridge Street United Church in conjunction with nursing classes for low-income mothers, she said. Soon a number of other nurseries were initiated at schools and at Loyalist College and eventually the First Adventure nursery for multi-handicapped pre-schoolers was established, as well as one for emotionally-troubled children.

The nursery programs have grown into the child development centre currently being renovated and enlarged for its autumn opening. It will be the first integrated nursery of its kind in the country, Mrs. Bishop said, innovative in its choice of staff and all the present nursery services under one roof.

She credited the strength of the volunteer movement in the city for helping to bring about the centre, which will have facilities for 60 children in its half-day program.

Mrs. Bishop answered questions from her audience about the role that the public can play in the creation of the centre. She advised the women that donations are needed since funds have forced the setting aside of features such as playground equipment for the time being. She recommended that if groups wanted to become involved in one of the centre's ongoing projects, they should work with the library collection, playground equipment or audio-visual aids.

There is also a constant need for volunteers, she said, especially those with teaching experience, such as the Alpha Delta Kappa members with are all involved in education.

Miriam Bishop, talking about First Adventure.

The one-to-one relationship necessary to the type of intensive teaching done in the nursery requires a large number of helpers, she explained. Training will be given new volunteers under the supervision of Betty Emsley, the director of the Early Childhood Education course at Loyalist College.

Mrs. Bishop also expressed her hopes for increased follow-up work with the children who "graduate" from the nursery program and enter the public school system. It is in this area that primary class teachers can be of invaluable assistance to the First Adventure integrated approach, she said.

Hastings Museum Honors Volunteers

By ROBIN CHASE

Historical artifacts and Glanmore House which houses them mean little if they are merely there without the value of guiding and interpretation, says Harlen Lewis, curator of the Hastings County Museum.

And that's where the volunteer guides come in.

The museum held a party to honor the work of its guides Thursday at Glanmore House at 257 East Bridge St.

Mr. Lewis said the volunteers, "you make it come to life. You make things real."

In the absence of museum operations, "volunteers are the most essential," he commented.

Maria Wishart, the head volunteer guide, said there are 31 volunteer guides working this year in different capacities. They main duty is to act as guides or interpreters for the museum, she said.

They also set up school programs, research display materials and do general research in the archives, she added.

Mrs. Wishart remarked, "we're hoping to use them more extensively next."

She explained the guides have training programs and are taken to various historical locations through out the Quinte area.

New programs will be on tap for the volunteer guides in the autumn, Mrs. Wishart said. The museum has three girls working under a grant during the summer months to set up new projects.

Among the volunteers are teaching guides supplied by Moira Secondary School, she noted. They are allowed by the school to leave classes to gain experience in guiding.

They were among volunteer guides who were honored by museum officials on Thursday.

Quinte Women

Norah Holley-Hime, Artist

How does a mother of seven children find time in her home life to paint landscapes and portraits?

"Very often I get up at one in the morning after every body else is down and asleep, and paint through till dawn. It's a good time then, there are no interruptions," says Norah Holley-Hime, professional artist who lives with her family outside Bloomfield.

"You learn to play your cards as they come," she says, and goes on to explain that she studies during her lunchtimes in readiness to keep his evening sacrosanct. Often, when she paints during the day, she occupies her four-year-old daughters, Rona and Rose, with paper and crayons so that they can draw along with her.

"I started painting early in my childhood," she says, encouraged by my father who was an artist, and by family friends who are also painters. It has always been part of my life," she says.

Mrs. Holley-Hime, who studied at Western Technical School in Toronto where she grew up, lived in Texas for several years before travelling to Turkey in 1959 for a year of study. On return, the family settled in their present country home.

"I taught painting in Medonte for years at night school," says Mrs. Holley-Hime.

"But the trouble with winter night classes is that the time and the weather keeps us indoors.

"I taught outdoor classes last summer in Bancroft, and that was just great. You have to move fast when you're painting outside, and you can't be too precise and pernickety about your work or you might inside. The result is usually much more free and genuine, because you're really in contact with your subject."

Holley-Hime prefers working with classes of no more than 10 students so that she can establish a one-to-one relationship with each painter. She intends to offer classes in 12-hour "packages" this autumn five and genuinely, and skilled artists alike, with no age limit at either end.

"The idea will be to move around the area to different locations and paint together," she says.

"What easier way to get away from the housework than going out to sketch and paint for an afternoon?"

Alcohol Loosens Inhibitions

Dear Ann Landers: Me wife is Ann Landers? Never. But here I am, and I don't know what good it is doing me. I'm afraid it'll feel better. The problem is my wife. Since I've had to stop drinking, she's...

Incommunicado. Leave it at that. The reason I don't think her complaints are serious once in a while she does she's big lover. Usually it's when she's been out from a party and she's had more than her share of drinks. Then, I'd better be ready or I would never hear the end of it.

Her usual routine goes like this. After supper, she gets up and says, "I'm tired of this and that, I'm going to bed." Then she gets mad at me, don't bother me." On weekends her best excuse (it) your mother may drop in; (2) the kids are going home from the movies; (3) the insurance man, paperboy or collector is coming to collect; (4) I just had my hair done.

I'm not the type to run around, but I don't know WHAT time it'll be in five years. (I'm not now). A word to you: don't be like me. Don't let your wife get into the habit of drinking every night. If there are enough treats in the house she won't go out looking for trick.—Fooled

Dear Fooled: Your letter contains an interesting clue. It is common knowledge that alcohol loosens the lid on inhibitions about that unbelievably go back to her early childhood. I suggest joint counselling. Can't hurt. Might help.

Dear Ann Landers: I most experienced you for your words of wisdom to "Ms. Widow." She wrote that her husband died suddenly, leaving her with several children to raise, and no insurance. She said he believed it made better sense to put money into a bank where it would draw interest rather than pay it out in insurance premiums. The woman was very bitter when she learned the bank balance was $6,500. If he had carried life insurance she would have collected over $20,000.

You answered: "Put aside your resentment for a moment, dear lady, and consider: Suppose, he was insured." What a story! Life is full of the unexpected. He can't defend himself. And you're angry at him? You owe every widow in the world an apology—Appalled

Dear Ann: The most WAS IGNORANT. That's what I said but that's what I should have, but dead, but his widow is alive. She has the gifts that he raise and very little money. He'd be lower better, he would have carried his insurance

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from "The Life of the Party" prompted me to write you a letter to a newspaper.

Your advice was exactly right. I know, because I was once "The Life of the Party" willing to be the butt of her jokes in exchange for attention. I took a shattered marriage to get me into therapy. When I discovered the real me, the person of sense of personal worth I had never known before.

When I tell friends that my new approach in life is the result of counselling, I get looks that say, "Why would anyone so jolly and outgoing need therapy?" they said. If they only knew!

By the way friends call ME. I don't chase them. I can be in a group and listen instead of trying to monopolize every conversation and hogging the spotlight. Sign me—Growing Off Ann And... Enjoying Myself

Dear Friend: Less IS more. I doff my bonnet to you.

Wife-selling Is Now Illegal in Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuter) — It will be illegal to sell your wife in Brazil from next year, with exceptions to come into force in Brazil later this year.

Neither will it be legal to rent her out or gamble her away.

Jurists have been working on the new code for years to replace one to force since 1890. They have also banned as crimes artificial insemination by a husband without her husband's consent and incest.

Adultery and pimping have been legal remain crimes under the new code which adds the invasion of privacy, drunk driving and pollution of the environment.

Criminal law professor Nilo Batista said the synthesis of incest and the maintenance of adultery as crimes show the conservative trend of the new code.

The decision of such matters as abortion, offences committed against the mother, fraud of financial "gain", he said in an interview.

The ban on selling or renting out wives comes under an article dealing with "commercial transaction in which a human being is the object." Punishment is up to three years in jail.

At present Brazilian husbands have a pretty free hand. Recently local press reported that a husband stabbed his wife in a bar, a game and lost.

In another match published case a husband in the interior of the country rented his wife, on a contractual basis, as opposed to pure prostitution.

Also covered by this article is the sale of a farm which includes the purchase of a transaction, a practice frequent in central Brazil.

Another illegal practice which set the husband's consent will be punishable by two to four years' imprisonment under article 219 of the new principal.

Driving under the influence of alcohol is at present as often only punishable by the criminal traffic code and as such is punishable with a fine of no more than a month's minimum legal salary. In the new code, the accident causing damages, injury or death the element of alcohol is not included.

Under the new code, driving under the influence of alcohol, even when no accident, injury or damages is caused, will be punishable by from three months to one year in jail.

Pollution of the environment, including lake, river, and sea water, beaches and atmosphere, will bring up to three years' imprisonment. At present only polluting drinking water is a crime.

In a somewhat archaic defence of family honor the new code also changes the law on infanticide, defined as the killing of a child by its mother during or immediately after birth.

At present this carries a sentence of up to six years' imprisonment and was originally based on the mother's post-natal psychological state.

The new code says that a mother who kills her newborn child for financial reasons is exempted from the present penalty for homicide and its heavier sentence.

Now infanticide will be restricted to a case where the motive is to conceal dishonor, that is when a woman has illicit relations unknown to her family and friends.

This means an unmarried girl from a conservative family who becomes pregnant and tries to conceal it will benefit from the lesser charge of infanticide if she kills her baby.

All others will face homicide charges.

Doris Clark

Don't Dwell on the Dark Side!

Dear Doris: "Sensitive" complained about her children making her and her husband feel old and inferior. I'm a sensitive daughter-in-law I'd like to show another side.

My mother-in-law is fun. "Oh, you've been ill. Well, I've been sicker, and believe me, when you are older you'll know." She has a lot to say about being on a fixed income, when-so-she says, we can afford anything if we need it. Any gift we are lucky if we ever hear that they have received it. They like to dwell on being "old."

They seem to overlook that their son works long hours, has many business pressures, or the fact that I have had to cope with major surgery and raise three children along the way. Because we are younger, it doesn't mean we don't get tired.

Disappointed, Dear Disappointed: We receive our personality all our live long. If we get habits of optimism and friendliness, if we learn not to worry about others, this shows in our family and in our actions, even if we live to be 100.

But if we greet every morning or it's wave Black Monday' soon as our feet touch all God's creatures, these habits will be set like steel in old age.

Part of the sorrows of some old people is their disappointment in themselves. Their faults they are going down hill and they kick against the goads like — probably without realizing it by kicking some human being — figuratively.

Confidential to Anni — Shower Ideas: The original shower idea was for assistance to a bride who had to be invited to the wedding and wanted to bring the bride a small gift. You will notice that I said small.

Recently, it seems that showers have become larger events, with guests bringing expensive gifts. This is an imposition and should be avoided — especially since they are often invited to more than one shower.

No, the bride does not need one of each item wanted by each donor, but should thank each for the thought behind the item. But a note of thanks to the hostess who put on the shower is always indicated.

Dear Doris: I should love to have more of the Canadian Pen Pal Club. Long I have been a reader and would start one in our own country.

I love to write and go not far from home, visiting by pen.

Dear Pen Happy: Letters can take you to places far and near, once you get the hang of the habit. I am sending you the details about our own Canadian Intelligencer Pen Pal Club, and you will be noticed, has been set up by particularly throughout citizen.

Our club is for the special use of the blind, deaf, or handicapped Canadians; both who watch for the mutual in the morning, and to get a friendly flow letter each day!

Weddings Rise in Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is in the middle of a marriage boom, with one of the highest marriage rates in the industrialized world, says John F. Peters, a sociology professor at Wilfrid Laurier University in Waterloo, Ont., who has made a study of marriage patterns. In 1971 there were nine weddings for every 1,000 persons in the population.

This is lower than the all-time high of 10.2 in 1941 and 1946 but higher than the average of between 7.5 and 8.5 recorded between 1921 and 1925.

Peters says marriages today are different from those of the past. Dr. Peters said the social pressure to wed has declined and the number of couples living together informally outside wedlock is increasing and becoming socially acceptable.

"Possibly marriage will be of natural link between the wife with the result that fewer will break down in the years."

The rate of marriage breakdown is rising. Before 1968, the divorce rate was 50 per 100,000 than 54.3 per 100,000 population, but only one year in four. Divorces are nearly doubled. By 1973, the Canadian divorce rate was up to 164.1.

Provinces Need Councils For Status of Women

OTTAWA (CP) — Individual provinces should establish agencies to improve the status of women, Dana DeGenstia, president of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, said Saturday.

"Grass roots people have a lot to complain about and the social governments are the only ones who can help them," said the head of the federation's Ontario annual meeting.

Establishment of provincial councils would make it easier for women to present briefs and ex-

Good Diet Available To the Average Person

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Elizabeth Chant Robertson says the average person of an eating habit have a nutritious daily diet if the food is processed properly.

Dr. Robertson, consultant and research associate at the Hospital for Sick Children, has compiled a readable guide to food and nutrition—The Right Combination.

She said in an interview she hopes the book will become a teaching and reference work in Canadian schools as well as a guide to adults.

Dr. Robertson is anxious to reach adolescents, "especially girls who have adopted such poor eating habits."

They cut out the "wrong" things in food over their weight. Boys do better because they eat such quantities of everything they manage to get enough nutrients."

Dr. Robertson, who has been doing nutrition research for 45 years, has a library of statistics indicating people are eating less fruit, vegetables and milk.

She backs statements with research, much carried out in hospital laboratories.

For example, she says unsweetened, fresh orange juice is a good source of vitamin C and compares favorably with fresh orange juice. But eating the full fiber provides 10 per cent more vitamin C than juice alone.

Dr. Robertson is not enthusiastic about sugar crystals fortified with vitamin C.

"This is an artificial food," she said. There is no real comparison with the real thing."

The importance of establishing good eating habits in childhood cannot be emphasized enough, Dr. Robertson said, "because they last for years, perhaps for life."

Strikers Take Injunction to Supreme Court, Ruling Reserved

By BARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Hastings County's first labor dispute this year before the Ontario Supreme Court.

A Supreme Court justice reserved ruling Thursday on an appeal against an injection restraining striking Trenton Union of Operating Engineers, Company workers and also members of the same union, said contractor William Tatham. He said his workers have a signed letter that stipulates there will be no strikes or walkouts on the project.

Ben Hartley, lawyer for Tatham, said the legal arguments for both sides were heard by Madame Justice Mabel VanKoughnet, who set a date for a ruling.

About 30 construction workers are involved in the dispute, now entering its fourth week.

Striking wages, hours and better overtime schedules they also are attempting to achieve average wage parity with municipal workers on similar jobs in the Belleville — Peterborough region.

The parity bid has boosted a wage demand that, in effect, amounts to $1.75.

Carl Bateman, county administrator, said today there had been no moves toward resolving the dispute as far as he knew.

Meanwhile, union steward John Boyle charged today the county has employed non-union strike-breakers" to take over union jobs.

"They're trying to freeze us out," said Mr. Boyle.

Carl Bateman, Hastings County administrator, could not be reached for comment.

Operating engineers are demanding a $1.75-increase over a one-year contract.

UCS Forecasts Greater Need for Funds in 1976

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

This year's United Way campaign, in October, will have to raise 9 - 15 per cent more to support Rs 13 member agencies next year, says the campaign chairman.

Bob Burns, Canadian National Railway Bridge Area manager, was named Thursday as chairman for Belleville's 1976 United Way campaign.

Mr. Burns, last year, was chairman for the campaign's industrial division.

A written message, released by the United Community Services board of directors Thursday, states Mr. Burns is currently seeking volunteers to aid in the campaign which will be held during the month of October.

Funds raised through the campaign support 13 "help" agencies in the city providing services for city and area residents.

Last year the United Way raised $72,264.

The committee asked to have scheduled demand by county road workers struck for higher pay May 6.

The injunction was granted to Canada Steamship Lines, a construction company which is constructing a new reconstruction work on County Road 2 on the eleventh concession of Thurlow Township.

The contractor asked to have scheduled demand by county road workers who

CMA's New Female GM Will Be at QER Races

Hamilton's Marilynn Bastedo is general manager of the Canadian Motorcycle Association. In her position she must promote competition and upgrade the motorcyclist's image. Tuesday night at Quinte Exhibition Raceway she will be co-ordinating officials during the local leg of the Ontario Motocross Dirt Track Championships. The races get underway at 2 p.m. with the trials scheduled for Sunday afternoon at 1:30.

HAMILTON (CP) — Marilynn Bastedo is a motorcycle momma with a difference.

As general manager of the Canadian Motorcycle Association, a non-profit national organization of 7,500 members, her primary job is to promote competition in the sport.

But she has a secondary role—the continuing effort to upgrade the motorcyclist's image, tarnished by the publicity that follows outlaw bike gangs.

"It will never be erased completely — those Brian (red-haired woman whose life is now, but whose duties aren't).

"I know snowmobilers suffer from the same image, not black leather jackets but vandalism and disregard for people's property. But I think the fact I'm a female has helped.

"I'm married with two children (Teresa, 13, and Patrick, 11), live in a respectable neighborhood, and we don't have noisy parties with motorcycles coming in and out all hours. I think if a mag had this job he might have a harder time convincing people."

The CMA, formed in 1948, moved its headquarters from Toronto to Hamilton in 1971. At first it was in the Bastedo home but it was moved to an abandoned small-car delivery plant. And in January Mrs. Bastedo was appointed GM.

The CMA is affiliated with the Federation Internationale Motorcycliste in Geneva, and has 63 member clubs across Canada. Most members join as individuals in one of three categories—full competitor, non-racing member or standard member. And each category includes death and dismemberment insurance.

Mrs. Bastedo and her full-time staff of four publicize CMA events, handle the expenses, deal with motorcycle matters on an international level and are responsible for officials at all sanctioned events — a duty she and her co-horts will be carrying out Saturday night at Quinte Exhibition Raceway.

This year her role has added responsibility. Canada will play host to three world championships.

On June 29 a cross-country motocross competition for 500 cc cycles will be held at Copetown, 15 miles west of Hamilton.

"We're expecting to have 60 international riders from the current world champion Pekka Vehkala of Finland on down."

On July 5 motocross competition for 125 cc bikes will be staged in St. Gabriel de Brandon, Que., a first world championship in that category.

"Safety standards are the No. 1 priority at events," says Mrs. Bastedo. "We are concerned that there are enough personnel to cope with the entries which sometimes can run as high as 200."

A national board of seven governs the CMA. Marilynn, her husband Larry, who operates a motorcycle sales and service shop in Hamilton, and Jim Kelly, president of Hamilton's Steel City Rider, form the Ontario contingent.

President is Gerald Marshall of Points Claire, Que., and other Quebec members are Roy Whistin and Pierre Corbeil. Seventh member is Vic Hewitt of Vancouver.

Regionally the CMA maintains offices in Vancouver, Edmonton, Valcourt, Que., and Antigonish, N.S.

The association also publishes a monthly magazine, CMA Cycle, which in March doubled its circulation to 16,000 and was sold on news stands for the first time.

The association and the motorcycle industry have been huddling over plans to make anyone who buys a bike an automatic member of the CMA. This could increase membership to 60,000 and give the CMA more authority in talking with governments.

It could also change the association from a competition oriented body to a road oriented one.

"The industry has approved the plan verbally but we're waiting for a financial commitment on paper," says Mrs. Bastedo.

She is looking to the day when trails might be set aside for motorcycle-only use and railway lines, hydro right of ways abandoned ravines and pits-places where they would be able to enjoy their sport without hurting the environment or bothering the neighbors.

And perhaps then Marilyn will find time amid her administrative duties for a bit of trail riding "a very enjoyable type of activity."

As for competition, she'll leave that the les ment.

"I think competitive riding for women just isn't very feminine."

Repeat As Lacrosse Champs

BY DOUG JEFFRIES

For the second consecutive year the Quinte Saints have won the Bay of Quinte Secondary School Field Lacrosse Championship.

For the Saints, they did it the hard way, having to knock off the favored Collegiate, BCI.

Quinte coach Wally Uhryunk said "It was a team effort all the way. Last week we didn't have one single practice and fished a championship but this year we worked hard, because we knew there were looking ahead to play us, being the defending champs."

In a roughly played contest which had 32 penalties, the Saints came from behind to beat BCI 6-4, with Saint captain Roger Champagne scoring four goals.

Sandy Waterson and Jim Hannah tallied the other Quinte markers.

For the Collegians, Steve Dunbar came with two of the goals. Singles went to John Gore and Brent Walmsley.

Spectators on both sides of the Quinte turf watched the visiting team score early and take complete control forment of the first half.

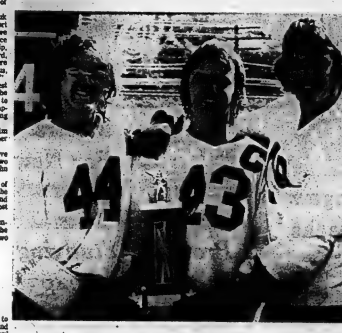
Leading 4-1, BCI took unnecessary penalties and the Saints capitalized for two goals. With only a minute remaining in the half, the Saints pressured the BCI defence into making mistakes which resulted in the Quinte tying the score.

Ahead by two goals going into the final quarter, Quinte took a strong defensive stand. Although play was in the Quinte end most of the second half they couldn't break the Quinte zone, but when they did the Quinte goaltender, Steve Hale, was in the right spot.

To get to the finals BCI played Centennial and just got by the Chargers 5-4.

The Saints had to knock off Nicholson, which they did in fine fashion by a score of 11-4.

For the Saints it was their second win in as many years.



The Quinte Saints captured the Bay of Quinte Secondary School Field Lacrosse title for the second consecutive year, defeating Bellesville Collegiate 6-4 in the deciding game, Thursday. Displaying the league's championship trophy are (left to right) assistant captain, Gord Male, captain Rorer Chapman, and assistant captain and goaltender, Steve Hale.

It and it proved all the runs they needed in the second inning when Wayne Woods led off with a single, followed by Ethier's clutch double over the third baseman's head. With one out Dwight Rathwell singled scoring Woods before a pass ball scored Ethier with the game and the 3-0 victory.

It was Ethier's third win of the year without a loss. Earl Foster allowed the Printers only four hits while taking the Barden loss, their first of the early season.

Elliot Maddox – Gets Revenge

Ex-Ranger Shoots Down Texas

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — New York's Elliot Maddox circled the Yankees' dugout room for 39 minutes and grinned.

He had struck a mortal blow in his running feud with Texas Rangers' manager Billy Martin and helped to gleeful.

Maddox had four hits and four runs batted in and delivered a game-winning two-run double in the ninth inning Thursday night to give the Yankees a 5-4 victory over the Rangers, who gave up to him a year ago.

It was the only baseball game played in the major leagues Thursday night.

Maddox was embroiled in a baseball controversy with Martin in spring training and it exploded over into the regular season last year when Texas visited New York City. Maddox was benched one game and claimed that was done on Martin's orders.

Maddox was asked how it felt to grab a measure of revenge on Martin on the ninth inning. "It's always nice to come back and haunt a team that gave up on you," he said.

"I think the best ball thing is over. I hope so."

The New York centre-fielder, whom Rangers' management claimed could neither field nor hit before he was traded, went into the game with one hit for his last 30 times at bat.

The team made him of one in the locker room Wednesday night after we beat Kansas City and I just had to laugh," Maddox said. "The irony of the entire thing is that I broke out of a slump against the Rangers.

"My two line drives right at somebody was robbed on two other balls and had a line-drive homer off the pitcher's rubber right into the second baseman's hands against Kansas City. I was really getting frustrated. I just had to get a hit for a change."

This was the eighth victory in the last 11 games for the streaking Yankees and the sixth loss in a row for the sagging Rangers.

Maddox opened his evening with a triple to score Bobby Bonds, followed with two singles after a groundout and climaxed the game-winning double to score Sandy Alomar and Bonds.

Starters Pat Dobson of the Yanks and Clyde Wright of the Rangers were knocked out of the box in the fourth inning.

Dobson picked up the mound victory in relief. Reliever Jim Umbarger was saddled with the loss.

Yankees' manager Bill Virdon said: "We have Maddox could play centre field when we got him from the Rangers. He was an unknown quality offensively because he never got to play much. If he can just hit .250—or hit like he did tonight—it will mean big things for this team."

Seals Fate Depends on Arena

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Unless a new and spacious arena is pledged in the Bay Area, a syndicate headed by businessman Mel Swig has served notice it will withdraw as a bidder for the National Hockey League's California Seals.

The apparent demise of the nine million Yerba Buena Project, which its big arena could make the future of major league hockey in the San Francisco Bay area.

The NHL has given Swig until Saturday to give assurances of purchase. But the rejection Tuesday of the Yerba Buena plan hung a black cloud over Swig's own prospects.

He had figured on continuing use of the Oakland Coliseum, Seals' headquarters for the next three years, then moving over to a larger facility in San Francisco. The Oakland Arena seats about 13,000; the San Francisco arena would brush up to 19,000.

"We thought we had something worked out with the San Francisco City administration. We would lease Yerba Buena property from the city and construct a building. But now, with the apparent demise of the whole project, we are left without a plan.

Swig said he and his group were desperately to keep the Seals in the Bay Area, but only the hope that we can build a winning team and a profitable one.

Swig said continuing to operate from the Oakland Arena would mean certain financial economic suicide.

He said he thought an extension could be received from the NHL on the Seals' franchise, but unless something is done his group would have nothing further to offer. There are no other local bidders.

Spurs Grab Cougars

DENVER (AP) — The World Hockey Association's Denver Spurs plucked 18 players from the roster of the defunct Chicago Cougars, it was announced Thursday, including centre Gary MacGregor, who led the rookie last year's record 44 goals and had 94 assists.

The Spurs also announced acquisition of defenceman Guy Talbot, who coached the team while it was a member of the Central Hockey League, and would remain next year along with his assistant Bob McCord.

The Cougars had financial troubles during their three years in the WHA and expired as a franchise earlier this week.

Along with MacGregor, the Spurs picked Centre Ralph Backstrom, a former National Hockey League player with Montreal. He scored 15 goals for the Cougars last year.

Other players selected from the Cougar roster were defenceman Marc Tardif, Serge Bahbinow and Keith Kokkola; centres Mart Lemenday and Rosaire Paiement; left wingers Francois Rocher, Bob Livingston, Jan Popiel, Rick Morris and Brian Cooter; and centre Peter Marr. The Spurs took goalies Cam Newton from Cincinnati and Greg Pronyk from Long Island of the North American League.

Chynoweth Critical Of Players' Lawyer

SASKATOON (CP) — Alan not adopted or accepted the Eagleson, the Toronto lawyer who serves as a legal adviser to players, "is trying to muscle" the junior professional hockey in waters more than they already are," insisted Ed Chynoweth, president of the Western Canada Hockey League said Thursday.

Chynoweth criticized Eagleson for a statement by Canadian Major Junior Hockey League may have to turn some junior of his junior hockey clients professional if they don't sign contracts.

Major Junior Hockey League gave about with a plan to set a minimum scale of charges to professional an under age junior professional clubs who sign players. Meet ional should be adopted as possible in hopes of deterring pro club from taking him before he completes his junior eligibility proposed plan put forward by Toronto lawyer Joe Kane.

In a prepared statement, Chynoweth said that, "Eagleson is aware, the CMJHL has sky.

"It appears Mr. Eagleson is trying to get some of his clients in the junior hockey league before it all comes in an end and he is using the CAHPA as his stepping pegasi."

Chynoweth said that if players agents continue to sign underage players in violation of the rules of amateur hockey they are going to kill the goose that laid the Golden egg.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the price of turning pro is getting out of hand," he said. "Professional clubs should do all they can to eliminate bidding wars."

Soviets to Play Series Against NHL

TORONTO (CP) — Two Team Canada select squad as it hockey teams from the Soviet Union will each play six games in Canada and the United States next season against National Hockey League teams, NHL Hockey League teams, NHL said Thursday.

Campbell said the games will be played in late December and early January.

"The series fits into our schedule and, for the time being, I believe is the only way to develop the game of hockey," said Campbell.

He said he could not say the NHL ever again forming a

"It's simply too costly. We can't afford a national team like we did the Russians do. The NHL during the season, pays out $3 million a week in salaries. That's for players only.

"The last time the NHL took part in Team Canada it was a financial disaster for us. We lost a half-million dollars in exhibition gate receipts, and on top of that, there were other expenses such as paying for the protection of our players."

Quirk Has Nice Birthday Present

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — sixteen-year old Canadian swimming champion Wendy Quirk of Point Claire, Que., celebrated her birthday with the first double victory Thursday on opening day of the second annual Fidelity Federal open swim meet in Greenville.

Miss Quirk, representing the Pointe Claire Swim Club, set meet records in the 100-metre butterfly and the 400-metre freestyle, beating an unofficial records at the Amateur Athletic Union long-course event.

Seven records were set in eight of the events, including the two records during the morning preliminaries.

Miss Quirk swam to a 1:04.983, breaking Valerie Lee's Saturday.

10-month old record in the 100 metre by nearly four seconds. Her 4:34.25 in the 400 freestyle eclipsed Shirley Babashoff's record by one second.

A Pointe Claire team-mate, Glenette Lahaussey, surprised the field by beating 1973 Olympic gold medallist Melissa Belote of Washington in the 100-metre backstroke.

Miss Quirk stopped the Americans during the butterfly to can mark by less than four hundredths of a second to establish another meet record.

James Baker of Canada's Thunder Bay Club set a mark in the 200-metre individual medley with a 2:23.971, to top another Babashoff record.

The meet continues through Saturday.

Hafey Canada's New Middleweight Champ

HALIFAX (CP) — Lawrence Hafey of Gallerton, N.B., is the Canadian middleweight boxing championship from Dave Downey of Halifax Thursday night on a decision that drew cries of protest from hundreds of fans.

Ringside observers said it appeared Hafey had won the fight until the decision was announced.

Hafey, 20, had an edge on two of three scorecards.

Downey, 23, appeared to have as easy time with the Pictou County native, but seemed unable to penetrate the champion's defence.

There were no knockdowns in the 10-round fight and neither boy appeared hurt.

It was the second time Downey lost the title he won in 1973 in Saint John, N.B., to Brad-ford, Ont., knocked him out for the title in 1974. Downey regained the title by a split decision two years ago in Halifax.

The fight was a lacklustre affair with both fighters often missing with massive clouts. Hafey, at 147¾, carried the fight to the ring to Evan Arnart, the world's fifth-ranked welterweight.

Tomahawks Trounce Bolts

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (CP) — Long Island Tomahawks broke a fourth-place tie with Boston to a National Lacrosse League game Thursday night, trouncing the Bolts 20-5 and their ninth straight win.

Gil Bocchicchio scored four goals to lead the Tomahawks before 1,679 fans. Kevin, Parsons and Charlie Henderson added three each.

Brian Wilfong was the top scorer in the game, netting five goals for the Bolts. Dutty McCarthy contributed two.

The Tomahawks have now won five of their last six games, evened their record at 6-6 and tied for 12 points, two more than Boston. The Bolts are 5-10.

Canada Upsets Notre Dame

VARESE, Italy (CP) — Canada's national basketball team upset Notre Dame University of Indiana, United States 96-95 in an exhibition game Thursday.

"It was just a great win for us," said coach Jack Donohue. "We had a balanced attack both on scoring and a very aggressive defence that made the difference."

The Canadians got outstanding performances from substitutes Cameron Hall and Martin Riley.

"Rommell became a player tonight," said assistant coach Steve Konchalski. "He played so much, his best game ever for the national team."

Raffin achieved an aggressive trap zone defence that had Notre Dame forcing low percentage shots from the corners, lead at the half.

Donohue said the title he won in Saint John, N.B., over Brad-ford, Ont., knocked him out for the title in 1974. Downey regained the title by a split decision two years ago in Halifax.

The fight was a lacklustre affair with both fighters often missing with massive clouts. Hafey, at 147¾, carried the fight to the ring to Evan Arnart, the world's fifth-ranked welterweight.

It was the third time Hafey had fought for a Canadian title. His last was defeated by Les Gillis of New Waterford, N.S., in 1973. Hafey later lost a split decision to lightweight champion Al Ford of Edmonton.

Recently he lost a close 10-round decision to Brian Arnart, the world's fifth-ranked welterweight.

Hawks Pick Will Play the Field

NEW YORK (AP) — Davi Thompson, with an opportunity to sign one of the most attractive contracts in pro basketball history, said he hasn't a wall until next month's American Basketball Association draft before choosing between the ABA and the National Basketball Association.

Until then, Atlanta Hawks, who Thompson signed as No. 1 pick in the ABA draft Thursday, probably will not decide whether to offer their two-time scoring champion selection, Marvin Webster and Bill Willoughby.

"It's a great thrill to be the first player picked, and as to where my future lies, I have to wait until the ABA and then weigh all aspects as to what team or league I'll be playing for," Thompson said following his selection by the Hawks.

The Hawks likely will be battling the ABA's Denver Nuggets for Thompson's services. The Nuggets have the ABA's No. 1 pick, and they already have been courting Thompson, a three-time all-American and two-time Player of the Year.

The agile 6-foot-6 star from North Carolina likes the Nuggets and says the Nuggets like him in the ABA season.

Atlanta, meanwhile, is in a precarious position because of its financial woes, although owner John Wilcox expressed confidence that the Hawks could afford to sign Thompson, Webster and Willoughby.

"I would be disappointed if I didn't think I could sign them," Wilcox said.

The seven-foot Webster, twice winner of the College Division Player of the Year, was the Hawks' second pick on the first round and the third player selected overall in the draft.

Willoughby, a 6-6 forward who averaged 25 points and 22 rebounds a game last season at Dwight Morrow high school in Englewood, N.J., was the fifth player chosen on the second round.

Willoughby was the second high school player ever drafted by the ABA.

The first was 6-10 Darryle Dawkins from Maynard Evans in Orlando, Fla., taken by Philadelphia 76ers on the first round.

Meanwhile, two player trades were completed. Kansas City sent forward Ron Behagen to New Orleans for the Jazz's second choice in the first round—center-forward Bill Robinzine. Golden State surrendered its second pick in rounds one and two to Cleveland for forward Dwight Davis.

Can't Beat Agent Like Judge Gottlieb

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonaut middle linebacker Sam Cvijanovich surely must have the most talented agent of any player in the Canadian Football League.

To begin with, Judge Bill Gottlieb of Los Angeles talked Argo managing director John Barrow into giving Cvijanovich a three-year no-cut contract even though his client did not play football in 1972.

Cvijanovich became a household name in Toronto's Serbian community when he won the Schenley Award as the CFL's outstanding rookie in 1969. In the midst of a contract dispute with the Argos, Gottlieb has come up with a novel method of publicizing the abilities of Sam C.

Gottlieb, a former freelance writer, has penned a movie script to Warner Bros. in Hollywood titled, The Messiah of 3 Men. Every hand on Cvijanovich's life.

"The story can pull it off, it's Judge Gottlieb. He's quite a guy, you know. He played pro basketball for six years in the Detroit Tiger organization, was a high school basketball coach, a writer for fairness in the press and he was in real estate before going into law. On top of all that he is a judge."

Cvijanovich, Gottlieb and Barrow are currently in an impasse regarding a new three-year contract. Argos have made their "final" offer, which Gottlieb accepted, but Cvijanovich rejected. It is expected a compromise will be reached without the middle linebacker going through the fairness of playing out his option.

Martin Drugs Horses

NEW YORK (AP) — Thoroughbred trainer Frank (Pancho) Martin was handed a 60-day suspension or $6,000 fine, largest in the history, of New York racing, Thursday when he pleaded no contest to three of four charges of drugging horses at New York race tracks.

Martin, who has been saddled more winners than any previous trainer at New York's three tracks—Aqueduct, Belmont and Saratoga—opted for the $6,000 fine after the show cause hearing at the New York State Racing and Wagering Board offices. The board then dismissed the fourth charge.

Martin was handed a 60-day suspension by the board last Dec. 30, effective Dec. 5 but the suspension was stayed by state supreme court pending the show cause hearing.

Amateur Sports Not Getting Enough Ink

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Canadian newspapers are not keeping pace with the growth of amateur and participation in amateur athletics, a sports writer told newspaper executives Thursday.

Doug Gilbert of Montreal Gazette, who has covered preparations for the 1976 Olympics since they were awarded to Montreal in 1970, said Canadian dailies tend to concentrate on professional sports.

Opening a panel discussion at the Canadian Managing Editors' Conference, Gilbert said that if Canadians regard the Olympics as merely a two-week extravaganza, they are missing the point.

The Olympiad is a four-year affair and Canadians should use the period as an opportunity to stimulate the development of interest in amateur sports generally.

"Canada may regard itself as an athletic country — and certainly proved to European nations, we're not. We're more a country of sports spectators."

Even the high school system auditioned amateur participation, concentrating on developing the skills of a few elite athletes while encouraging other students to come out and cheer for their teams.

Dick Beddoes, sports columnist for Toronto Globe and Mail, said that if he were an editor he would divide the sports pages into two sections—one for professional spectator sports and Wildcats' pitcher Bill Drennan was the loser.

Bill Fielding, who relieved starter Bill Eccles in the seventh inning, got the win and reliever Hal Kemp was the loser.

Bill McNeils was credited with two victories in Hamilton's sweep of its doubleheader.

In the first game, McNeils relieved starter Wally Dick in the sixth inning and got credit for the victory when Ed Neuhart hit a two-run double in the final inning to break a 3-3 deadlock. Dick Balint was the loser.

McNeils went the distance in the second game, allowing two hits and striking out 10 in the 9-1 win. Balint, who threw a five-hitter, lost again.

Bill Corney was the winning pitcher for Newmarket in the first game and Bob Deutsch in the second. Jim Young was the losing pitcher in both games.

Women Given Their Chance

TORONTO (CP) — If ever women tennis players were afforded an opportunity to make the most of the women's lib movement, Dan Fontana aided their cause Thursday.

The chairman of the Rothman's Canadian Open tennis tournament has decided that unless some of the women superstars show up for the tournament, the women's purse will be cut by $30,000.

In announcing that the break-down of the $150,000 in prize money includes $100,000 for men and $20,000 for women, Fontana held a news conference to emphasize that he was not cut upon getting some of the women superstars.

He said he was having difficulty signing defending champion Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and other leading women players because of previous commitments to World Team Tennis.

"Arrangements were made some time ago," he continued, "that fairness to the sponsor we would revert back to the $30,000 for women's prize money if we were not able to get some of the women superstars."

He said the defending men's champion, Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, had been ailing early in the year but has indicated he'll be back to defend against the likes of veterans Rod Laver, Manuel Orantes, unpredictable Ilie Nastase and probably the current world's No. 1 player, American Jimmy Connors.

Fontana said he was still hoping to nail down a commitment during Connors, probably during the Wimbledon championships in England.

Rangers Dump B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Glasgow Rangers, Scottish League soccer champions, opened an exhibition tour Thursday, blanking British Columbia Soccer League All-Stars 4-0 before 15,000 fans at Empire Stadium.

It was almost 75 minutes to the day since the Rangers last played here and they won that game 3-0.

Midfielder Alex McDonald scored twice to lad Glasgow. Singl goals came from winger Graham Fyfe and forward Bobby McKean.

A first-half goal by Fyfe was the difference between the two teams at halftime although the Rangers dominated play for most of the 45 minutes.

McKean gave Rangers a 2-0 lead for Glasgow at seven minutes of the second half and McDonald scored the third and fourth goals in the last five minutes of the game.

Sires Stakes Get Underway on Sunday

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Three divisions for three-year-old pacing colts and gelds highlight a program totalling $74,100 Sunday night at Ontario Jockey Club's (OJC) program for 1975 at Garden City Raceway Sunday night.

Two nine-horse fields will go in the opener for $34,575 in each while a third race with eight entries is valued at $14,325.

The OJC series this year encompasses 94 events for two- and three-year-old trotters and pacers at 11 Ontario tracks with a grand value of $2.3 million. The biggest purses in prize money comes from the province's share of last year's parimutuel take.

Eligibles for the races must be sired by offspring of Canadian-based stallions.

Pats Bye Bye, owned and driven by Clint Hodgins of Casselsbury and the leading OSS pacer a year ago with earnings of $53,947, will be among a pool in the fifth race of the first division and should be the odds-on favorite by race time.

The second division appears to be the most balanced with L. W. Johnston, Buff's Choice and Billy Purdue expected to share the way. Billy Purdue already has turned in a 2:02.3 effort at London.

Highland Treaty, from John Grant's Hornby stable appears to be the one to beat in the third division, the ninth race on the card. The colt has a winning performance at Buffalo's New York's Roosevelt Raceway this year but could face pressure from Greg Dewey, owned by Elizabeth Hand of London, Ont., and winner of $91,339 in OSS races last year.

Showbiz Shorts

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The star-struck young man chopped, grunted, groaned, fanned their muscles and kept their biceps high. They were trying out for the role of Harold Lee Bruce Lee.

The auditions here Wednesday were for the top part in a new Warner Brothers' film, Bruce Lee, His Life and Legend.

Lee, who died in 1973, became a fin idol with starring roles in four martial arts movies.

Bob Clouse, who will produce and direct the new movie, called the Lee role "a real marvelous opportunity."

"We hope we can find some one we can build a career around."

But after auditions in Tokyo, Hong Kong and Los Angeles, where 600 tried out, Clouse still hasn't found his star.

Besides being adept at karate, Clouse said "it would be nice" if the star could dance. Lee was the cha-cha contest in Hong Kong in 1958."

NEW YORK (AP)—Eileen Herlie and Patrick Macnee, both of whom are British, were chosen best actress and actor on the American summer theatre circuit last year and received Star Awards Thursday.

Herlie, Russell was presented with the award for special achievement, given to someone starring in summer stock.

Nine awards are given with the winners chosen by the Council of Stock Theatres.

LONDON. (AP)—Frank Sinatra, stung by West German newspaper attacks calling him a "super-gangster," interrupted a concert here Thursday night to hoot back.

"They're the gangsters," he said.

The entertainer cheered As

7,000 fans in the Albert Hall. What gives with these Germans anyway? I've done nothing to them."

Last week he cancelled a performance in West Berlin and flew back to London following what he called "scurrilous attacks" in West German newspapers. He did one show in Frankfurt to a half-empty auditorium.

"I could have scowered them and told reporters to look in the size of your fathers," he said Thursday night. "All I wanted to do was sing songs there, but with the criticisms and suggestions of kidnapping and other things I said 'let's go'

Despite his displeasure with the press, Sinatra was relaxed and in fine voice at Albert Hall. He got standing ovations from fans who managed to get tickets for his show, one of two scheduled here.

More than 200,000 Britons applied for tickets for the two concerts. Outside the auditorium, scalpers sold them for up to $975.

Opening lead — Q ♥

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

We could save a lot of energy at the bridge table if players would just think about the right things instead of the wrong ones.

South won the heart lead in dummy and promptly led a spade finesse. West led a second heart, South won, cashed dummy's jack of spades and then thought about the club suit. How could he play it to avoid the loss of two clubs?

The answer is that with clubs breaking 4-2 and the honors split there was no way for South to play clubs and avoid losing the defense some two club tricks against him. Actually South led dummy's jack, and West covered with the king and South won the ace.

If South had just thought about ways to avoid having to play clubs he would have saved himself a lot of trouble. All he had to do was to lead a spade from his opposite who was led a club South would only lose one club if he led a third heart as would be likely, South would ruff, lead a diamond and discard one of dummy's clubs.

This would set up a diamond for a discard of another club and while South would have had to lose several tricks he would not lose even one club.

Light in Bedroom Not Vital Issue

By G. C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thompson: Will you be your opinion of putting an 18-month-old baby to bed in a dark room with the door closed all night?

The parents don't use a night light in his room. They say a baby his age is not afraid of the dark, and also that he would get out of bed and run around if a crisis arose. Some disagree with me. He doesn't sleep in, a crib.—Mrs. A.E.

You make that little tyke's bedroom sound like the Black Hole of Calcutta.

This whole night light question is, in most cases, one of practicality. The average parent should decide the matter based on common sense considerations of the individual situation.

Looking at the practical side of it, it is sometimes convenient to have a small light in the child's room, especially if he is not sleeping through the night, or if some special attention is required. In this instance, the baby should be sleeping through the night, so usually when you leave the door ajar so the airy conval activity can be heard. Often, a little gab can be distilled across the doorway, if it is heard by wanderings might take him to far corners of the house.

Crying at bedtime is another matter. It is not abnormal for a child to put up a fuss at bedtime. After all, he is being removed from the mainstream of activity he's begun to enjoy during the day, and the least of all the mother, anymore to him of comfort and protection, that eases the fussing develops into marathon sessions of wailing (more than say 10 or 15 minutes), this will do the child no harm.

Then, if he seems genuinely afraid of the darkness, a tiny light will not do any harm either. The light can be removed later as he grows older, or it can be switched off when he falls asleep. As the summer days become longer, such problems often disappear, and the night light question disappears with it.

The point to remember is that there shouldn't be any battle of the wills between you and the infant over anything as insignificant as a tiny light in a bedroom. This could create some psychological damage on the child if carried to extremes.

Payoff Said Made To Dredge Official

HAMILTON (CP) — Horace Rindress told an Ontario Supreme Court jury Thursday that a payoff to Robert Schneider, chairman of Canada Dredge and Dock Co. Ltd., was made with the knowledge of Ralph Hay, a former Hamilton Harbor commissioner.

Mr. Rindress continued to testify on kickbacks, bid-rigging and payoffs when the jury resumed after a seven-day absence during voir dire arguments on admissibility of evidence.

Mr. Rindress, formerly president of J. P. Porter Co. Ltd., a dredging firm, testified concerning kickbacks to Hay, and mentioned Reginald Fisher, a local businessman, in connection with a complex payoff scheme.

Elliott, 42, and Fisher, 62, are each charged with 15 counts of conspiracy, fraud and uttering forged documents.

Mr. Rindress was testifying before Commissioner Ian Outerbridge, Evidence Act, Ontario Evidence Act and Public Inquiries Act of Quebec.

Concerning an alleged payoff to Mr. Schneider made with Elliott's help, Mr. Rindress said the former harbor commissioner handled the money through a company called International Marine, and then described how he drafted the text of a false invoice from International to J. P. Porter for $138,313.

He said Elliott then submitted the invoice, but were not paid by International, on International Marine's behalf. A cheque then went to Elliott.

Mr. Rindress said he expected the $138,313 payoff to produce $130,000 in cash for Mr. Schneider after Canada Dredge's cost laundering fee was deducted. The $313 was window dressing.

The witness said he met Elliott at a Toronto Hotel Feb. 28, 1972, and was given $125,000 in American dollars in cash, which, along with $75,000 in personal cheques from Mr. Rindress, was given to Mr. Schneider. Mr. Schneider had returned the cheques and got a personal bank draft for $75,000.

Mr. Rindress said the money went to Mr. Schneider as a payoff. In return, Canada Dredge submitted a high bid on the $3.4 million a dredging project awarded to the Porter firm.

Mr. Rindress also said payoffs and kickbacks on the slip channel job were hidden in records of another larger payoff. False invoices from International were used to conceal the payoffs and the resulting profits were used to finance.

The Crown introduced exhibits of cancelled cheques of more than $200,000 drawn on Inter-national Marine, were eventually deposited in the First National Bank in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. International Marine had an account in the bank.

Mr. Rindress again stated his charge that the dredging firm had worked on bid-rigging on a series of deals, saying they paid each other off with shares of profits and with kickbacks. He said the companies kept track of commitments through the use of so - called score sheets, which were torn from regular accounts.

Big Firms Hit Hydro Rate Boost

TORONTO (CP) — A power commission staff recommendation Thursday proposes rate increases totalling $1.2 billion to compare the health of the province's industries and its economy.

The Association of Major Power Consumers in Ontario, representing almost 40 major companies, already has plans to raise industrial rates by almost 10 per cent in 1976 and double power costs by 1978.

The annual hydro rate and commodities position and is out of line with current economic realities. It is the result of Ontario's costly expansion program, which, critics frankly, we can't afford," the association said in its monthly news letter.

Jobs to Be Few

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment, now more than seven per cent, is expected to remain near the head of a lasting period of economic recession, Finance Minister said Thursday.

Unemployment rates will be the highest since the depression of the 1930s unless something can start dropping out of the work force, Donald Macdonald told reporters after a meeting of the Canadian Association of Business Economists in Canada, told the annual meeting of the Canadian Life Insurance Association.

Probe Urged

The NDP member, who has spoken out against loan-shark ing and activities of what he calls organized crime in the province, again urged Attorney-General John Clement to start a criminal inquiry into the matter.

He said it is "the present feeling" of the Ontario Police Commission that such an inquiry should be held.

Move Called Farce

TORONTO (CP) — The appointment of a special cabinet committee to review government spending in Ontario was called "farcical and hypocritical" by a Liberal member of the legislature Thursday.

Pat Reid (Lib.—Kenora-Rainy River) also accused Premier William Davis of "an abdication of his responsibility" in the matter.

The committee, announced by Premier Davis in Niagara Falls Tuesday, will consist of Treasurer Carter Betty Kennedy, Maxwell Henderson former auditor-general of Canada and business executive Robert Dunlop.

Registration Useless

TORONTO (CP) — Extending the registration requirements to all firearms is not the answer to tightening gun laws, Attorney-General John Clement said Thursday.

Commenting in the legislature on the shooting of Mary Brosseau, Ont. high school, Mr. Clement said registration "just does not prevent the wrongful use of a weapon."

He said the two weapons used by a student who killed a teacher, another student and wounded several others in the committing suicide, were lawfully possessed and owned by the student's father.

"In view of the terrible tragedy it makes me wonder at least sight of the concept that it is the accessibility of weapons and not the registration (that is the problem," he said.

Budget 'Peanuts'

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. Paul Yewchuk (PC—Athabasca) called the $64-million budget for the Medical Research Council (MRC) "peanuts" and charged Thursday that the federal government is "severely prioritized."

"We're spending $2012 million on putting billboards and only $64 million on medical research," he said. "Don't you think the government should? Isn't it more important to be healthy than be fat?" he asked.

Dead Livestock Probe Ordered

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the Ontario agricultural ministry says government investigators have been ordered to look into the activities of two provincial dead animal collectors named in a Montreal inquiry into organized crime.

Dr. R. A. McDermid, director of veterinary services, said Friday investigators will examine allegations this week that the collectors were involved in an illegal scheme in which hundreds of thousands of pounds of dead fowl, dead, sick and dying Ontario cattle were sent to Quebec to be processed and then sold in both provinces for human consumption.

"We've talked to the Ontario Provincial Police with regard to this in the last couple of days," he said. "A member of the OPP is co-operating with us and will accompany the investigators if necessary."

The animal dealers were identified as Arthur Burrett of Keene, near Peterborough; Lloyd Lorenz of Durham; John Meegens, who lives near Tottenham; Hans Rohl of Vankleek Hill, about 50 miles east of Ottawa and Claude Machabee of St. Albert, about 40 miles east of Ottawa.

Dr. McDermid said the ministry has never had any evidence meat from dead-stock plants has been used for public consumption. He said the investigators, who have law enforcement backgrounds, will determine whether there has been a violation of the Dead Animals Disposal Act.

Mr. Burrett said Friday he was deceived into selling tainted meat to persons suspected of putting such meat on the market for human consumption.

He said men representing themselves as meat ranchers bought meat from him in 1970 or 1971 at the standard price, but when he found out they were not ranchers, he said he stopped selling to them.

Mr. Burrett said he would make a full statement Monday after speaking to agricultural ministry officials.

Richard Lorenz, son of Lloyd Lorenz, denied Friday his father's firm had ever sold meat to Quebec.

He said as far as he knows, meat from the firm is sold to Derby Pet Foods in Streetsville, Ont., at five cents a pound and is stamped unfit for human consumption and marked with charcoal before freezing.

Mr. Rohl of Hans Rohl Pet Foods in Vankleek Hill said Thursday he sold meat from dead stock to Quebec customers for up to 25 cents a pound. Ontario customers pay him only six cents a pound.

He said it might be possible to pass off the meat in Quebec for human consumption, "but I don't think anyone does it."

Ford, Trudeau Meet

Tudeau and Ford Stand with NATO

BRUSSELS (CP) — President Ford said at the end of his first North American Treaty Organization summit that he is reassembly optimistic about prospects for a successful 35-country European security conference.

He told reporters Friday night that progress is being made at security conference discussions in Geneva, although final agreements are not in sight.

Completion of the Geneva conference should permit his planned meeting with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev to take place in Washington as scheduled this autumn, Ford said.

Brezhnev wants to use the security conference to wind up in Helsinki June 30 with heads of government in attendance.

A communique issued at the end of the two day NATO summit expressed the hope that the security conference would be concluded on satisfactory terms "in the near future."

The communique said the collective security provided by NATO was an essential condition of detente and peace.

Ford said one of his chief reasons for coming to the summit meeting was to reassure allies in the post-Vietnam era that United States commitments to NATO are strong and unequivocal.

Prime Minister Trudeau reaffirmed Canada's support for the alliance, but said that, unless its value is appreciated by the taxpayer, "we cannot force from our peoples automatic acceptance of the NATO credo."

Canada is involved in a major defence review, similar to that of 1969 when Canada's manpower commitment to NATO was cut by half.

But Trudeau said that whatever "configuration Canada decides on at its NATO contribution—even if fewer men are committed—we want to be effective and not take decisions that would render us ineffective."

Trudeau and Ford both urged more frequent NATO meetings at the highest level.

Best Cuts Held Out?

MONTREAL (CP) — A pet food manufacturer told the Quebec Police Commission in inquiry into organized crime Friday he complained to various governments repeatedly in the past 15 years about the state of meat inspection in Quebec.

Jules Pepin, president of Jean Dumers Inc., testified he often complained that those who supplied him with carrips for his pet food business only sold him the worst cuts from an animal.

He said he warned authorities he was suspicious that better cuts, though unfit for human consumption, were being sold to consumers.

After every complaint, meat inspectors seemed to show more vigilence and the meat supply to his firm increased, Mr. Pepin said. But stricter control was short-lived.

Pensioners Get Break In Alberta

EDMONTON (CPX) — Alberta senior citizens have been guaranteed the highest minimum monthly income given to the elderly in Canada and taxpayers in all-rich province have been promised the lowest personal provincial income taxes.

The moves are contained in the Progressive Conservative government's 1975-76 budget tabled in the legislature Friday night, a $2.536-billion spending program consistently the same as the pre-election budget earlier this year. The budget brought down by it in the March 31 election, in which the Conservatives swept 75 legislative seats, died on the order paper when the vote was called.

The major change is the provision that single pensioners over the age of 65 get the federal old-age pension and income supplement will be guaranteed a $250 minimum monthly income. Married couples will be assured $486.

The minimum income is guaranteed by topping money in the federal pension and supplement, which now are about $200.

Spokesman in the provincial Treasury Department said the $240 guarantee is British Columbia and the province's highest.

The elderly will also benefit through a $16-million program of extended health-care benefits and increases in renter assistance grants.

The budget reintroduced a personal income tax cut, reducing that tax by 50 per cent, while Mr. Leitch said was a measure to stimulate the economy. The reduction, he said "will increase disposable income by $123 million, estimated $115 million in 1975 and provide an average tax reduction for each Alberta taxpayer of approximately $140."

A further income tax reduction was given those with incomes of less than $4,000 a year and those earning below $1,469 will pay no income tax.

Mr. Leitch said the tax cuts were possible because of the budgetary surplus created by crude oil and natural gas revenues.

Provincial Treasurer Merv Leitch, who said the tax cuts were possible because of the budgetary surplus created by crude oil and natural gas revenues, estimated the disposable incomes of residents will be increased by $123 million and they will be provided with an average tax cut of $140 annually.

The full amount of the tax cut will be felt beginning in salary deductions in July.

Emergency Measures Continuation Urged

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Abolition of the community emergency measures co-ordinator post has raised anxiety among Belleville General Hospital's board of governors.

So concerned are hospital authorities, the board is sending a letter to municipalities in the Quinte Emergency Measures Organization, (QEMO) urging their support for continuing the service.

Such a move already is under way.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey told the board QEMO's executive this week decided to petition its member municipalities for further funds to keep the emergency measures service operating to the end of the year.

A phaseout by mid-summer of QEMO — headed by co-ordinator Col. Angus Duffy — had been contemplated earlier with the withdrawal last month of provincial government support funds.

BGH has its own internal plan ready handling large-scale emergencies in the event of a community disaster.

Col. Duffy later explained the QEMO first had decided in wind up its organization in August — the time its budget funds would run out, if it were to meet salary commitments. He said he had offered to stay on for the balance of the year to wrap up the organization.

However, the executive would be needed to ask its member municipalities to subscribe additional $5,100 to keep QEMO co-ordinated until the end of the year's end when it could be discussed what other directions might be taken on the issue.

Chloroform No Problem

Presence of chloroform in Belleville's drinking water remains under control under review of industrial and government environment experts, Belleville General Hospital board of governors was told Friday.

The advice, sought after a provincial study revealed the city's drinking water had among the highest contents of chloroform — a byproduct of purification treatment — in Ontario.

"Chloroform dissipates very quickly and is not toxic," the report from the board's planning and property committee said.

It indicated that any need for special filtering "should be done at the municipal level" rather than "by individual application."

Laberge Guilty

MONTREAL (CP) — The conviction of prominent Quebec labor leader on a charge of mischief in Superior Court in Joliette, Que., Friday night capped a day of unrest at the province's labor scene.

Louis Laberge, president of the more than 200,000-strong Quebec Federation of Labor, was found guilty by a jury of encouraging workers to sabotage household appliances on the production line at the Inspo Canada Ltd. plant in Lachenaie, about 15 miles northeast of Montreal in April 1972.

Mr. Laberge, facing a maximum penalty of five years in prison, will be sentenced Monday.

Mayor Jeffrey, QEMO chairman, told the board such a letter would help support the plea for additional funds.

Program May Be Cut

Picton PUC Tenders Too High

PICTON — Tenders for improvements to the Picton water works system are being held in abeyance by the Public Utilities Commission says chairman Chris Lockyer.

The tenders are too high, hopes amendments to cut costs can be worked out.

Mr. Lockyer said Friday four tenders were received by Thursday's deadline — all of them higher than the costs anticipated by the PUC.

"They were not acceptable to us. We budgeted for $600,000," he added.

The lowest of the four tenders was submitted by Ernie Hamilton Engraving Ltd., Kingston and quoted a price of $522,222 for the job. A completion period of 26 weeks was stipulated.

A tender of $539,774 was submitted by Forsee Ltd. of Cobourg and a tender of $582,115.64 by Dandelle Construction, Whitby.

The highest tender of $627,805 was submitted by Taggart Construction of Ottawa.

"We as a commission are quite disappointed price-wise in the tenders," observed Mr. Lockyer.

"We could not come to any successful conclusion based on these figures."

He said the PUC feels the costs of material and labor are continually rising and little would be accomplished by delaying the project for a year.

He added a consultant engineer from a Toronto firm will be asked to study the possibility of improvements to the waterworks system and possibly can suggest amendments that would allow the PUC to proceed with a major portion of the program.

"We hope we can restore some major portion of the construction," said Mr. Lockyer.

He noted the Delhi area is in particular need of improved facilities.

"That area is in desperate need of updating," he commented.

Mr. Lockyer said the PUC wants a review of "the whole picture" by its consulting engineer based on the tender prices received.

Improvements to the town's waterworks system have been planned for the past two years and will be paid for through debenture through the local municipality says the PUC chairman.

He said payment would be made over a 20-year period.

"It's our customers who have to pay and we are trying not to burden them," he observed.

City Council Raise on Agenda

A bylaw raising the pay of aldermen by $1,000 goes to city council Monday.

The resolution, bringing the annual remuneration for a city councillor to $4,000 was first passed May 5 — and raised some controversy over which members of council had voted for the increase.

The move was approved Monday with the city's 1976 budget which also proposed raising the mayor's salary from $9,000 to $11,500.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey felt the raise was justified for the office but recommended the salary remain unchanged until the next municipal election — at the end of 1976.

At that time, she said she would favor a resolution implying the mayor's salary.

Monday's meeting is the second in a week for council which customarily only holds regular sessions each two weeks.

The meeting was advanced since the mayor and several members of council will leave June 1 as part of a friendship flight to Lahr, Belleville's twin city in West Germany.

Also before council is a bylaw authorizing liquor stores in the city to stay open until 10 p.m. Monday to Friday — a move which follows council's approval of a request last month from the Liquor Control Board of Ontario.

The LCBO and it wants the longer hours for its Station St. store which it also plans converting to a self-serve store.

Bargaining Could Hurt

Contract bargaining by hospitals as a single group elsewhere in Ontario could have an effect at Belleville General Hospital.

Contracts with paramedical personnel at most hospitals ended in the province run out June 30th and a freeze on individual hospital groups has discouraged the possibility of collective bargaining.

Although the suggestion is only in the preliminary stages, there appears "strong support" for bargaining in a collective style — similar to that with nurses last year, Philip Rickard, BGH executive director reported to the hospital board Friday.

The results of such a move "may be affecting to us," he told the board.

BGH's contract with its non-paramedical staff is current until March 1976.

Locking Doors No Solution

By AL RAHAB
Staff Reporter

We've now heard from the other side of the great Fabricon debate that has seen more than the usual amount of public criticism aimed in town council's direction.

Fabricon Manufacturing Ltd. president Hans Allmendinger made two points during an interview this week. One, was that Fabricon also tried to keep its new plant in Trenton, contrary to an impression emanating from town hall that the town's efforts were one-sided. And secondly, he stated that unless Trenton provides land for industry it will lose another big plant, as it did to Belleville.

His statement is given solid evidence by his company's experience here. Unequivocally, he said the new 300-employee plant would have located in Trenton had good land been available that was accessible to service lines.

So Trenton council's attempt to come out of the loss of the new plant looking white and blameless failed to succeed. The fall guy backfired.

Fabricon, pressed by impending material delivery dates next spring, simply could not wait for Trenton to iron out problems in getting land the town felt was suitable for the company.

When you can't get land and you can't build a plant, you just elsewhere for fulfillment. Fabricon quite logically looked to fill its needs and found its wants — in Belleville.

Although Mr. Allmendinger was reticent to compare the two centres, he didn't infer that it's maybe he got satisfaction in Belleville in one and a half days.

That's quite a difference from the three months of active talks between Fabricon and Trenton in their efforts to settle on land.

Part of the problem here according to Mr. Allmendinger, was the tangle of titles on the 39.9 acres of land discussed for the new plant. It wasn't owned by the town, and at least three different groups had some measure of control over it.

In other words, the town was pushing land that wasn't theirs to give. An unusual practice to say the least.

Given our most recent loss, one wonders whether the town will use a bottle of mouthwash to clean the bad taste out of its mouth, i.e. jawbone to get that property cleared for any other industry that might want to locate here. One wonders.

Council has neatly sidestepped that key issue — its own culpability in the loss. The apparent reasoning is as follows: well, we offered them the land, they didn't like it, so it's not our fault that they didn't take it.

As we've heard on several recent occasions, there were problems in assembling that chunk of 39.9 acres. OK. But have we heard Word One about any attempts Trenton will make to solve the very problem that cost Trenton the new plant?

Nothing has been said about steps Trenton will take to prevent a re-occurrence.

That's particular. Trenton is complaining about the lack of industrial land in the town. It is bemoaning what it sees as inevitable — no land when what now exists is used. It is failing to bring down the land that can be made potentially available for industrial use.

Add, as a sidelight, if Trenton does not clean its own house first, can it really expect that its municipal neighbors will give up part of their houses in answer to Trenton's cries over its lack of land? Not readily likely!

Lack of Land Lost Industry

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — This post-card pretty town on all the tourist brochures will be partially closed down on Friday nights because of vandalism and obscene language on Main Street. Strong revelation is contained in discovering that Pollyanna said "Damn".

Several prominent Picton businessmen this month reassessed that they plan to extend Wednesday afternoon store hours but refuse to remain open on Friday nights.

Their theory is that the customer, especially the woman customer, is uncomfortable while shopping on Friday evenings because of the rough language on the streets. Most of these shoppers, say the merchants, would prefer to shop early in the day when street talk is low, colorful.

Several businessmen do not support the Friday night closings but are concerned that dirty words are blighting trade. They plan to keep open as usual and are confident customers will not be deterred by street talk.

All merchants contacted by The Intelligencer do agree, however, that language on Main Street often is obscene and in some instances "absolutely foul".

If Main Street is sprinkled with dirty words on Friday nights what self-respecting card-carrying member of the Prince Edward Chamber of commerce would lock his doors to curb it?

Such tactics simply indicate the merchants' willingness to submit to bullying by foul-mouthed persons without regard for themselves or anyone else.

With every store door that is facing the Main Street "bad guys" win a point while the business men and the shoppers lose out.

Surely, merchants and customers can combine forces to help town police in weeding out the handful of persons who spoil the Friday night air blue with profanity and obscenities.

Those who object to foul language on the street and can point out the offender to police officers can be more effective to lodge a complaint than to merchants.

Merchants should consult with police as a group to discuss what can be done to curb the Friday night cursers.

If it's generally felt that police policing is needed to keep the streets open to the public minus obscenities then police officials and the town council could suggest increasing the size of the town police force.

Then, they would raise taxes but then so do museums and beautification programs. All of these facilities are facilities whose users residents are free to walk the streets all night of the week. Not so merchants.

The answer cannot be found in rolling up the sidewalks at 5:30 p.m. because it's a sure way to avoid the problem.

It should be obvious to the merchants that if customers cannot shop in Picton on Friday nights they will shop in Belleville or Napanee or Kingston.

It's time to stop running and start coping.

Big Operation Often Even Bigger Headache

TORONTO — Bigger is not necessarily better in the dairy farm business.

McLaughlin, chairman of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board told dairy farmers here Wednesday.

Mr. McLaughlin, chairman of the OMMB since 1966, told delegates of county milk boards at their ninth annual meeting, too many farmers have been enticed into virtual serfdom in leading industry because they were encouraged into expanding beyond their experience and abilities.

Bigness, he said, is encouraged by farm organizations and government doesn't always help the farmer do a better job easier but can also increase the burden and complexity of the work.

Mr. McLaughlin, who owns a combined 400 acres of farm near Beaverton, said many of the problems facing the dairy farmer, such as labor shortages and low capital investment would have been lessened and made more manageable if farm size increases were discouraged.

"I assure you can hardly be deemed much of a dairy farmer unless you break the skyline with a tower silo of some kind, unless you own a bulk milk cooler tank and unless you are known to have a large monthly feed bill," he told about 200 delegates attending the two-day meeting.

"Furthermore" he said, "the cost of starting a large dairy operation has effectively eliminated many young people from farming as an occupation and forced them to migrate to the cities."

He noted the average farmer is not much better off compared to the average Canadian than he was 25 years ago, despite dramatic increases in efficiency in the milk producing industry and recent increases in milk prices.

"This can only mean efficiency gains of the dairy farmer, in the main, have been passed beyond the farm gate," he said, adding "I believe that ... every nickel increase in the farm price of milk has been accompanied by more than a nickel's worth of increased productivity."

He challenged labor unions and professional organizations to demonstrate productivity gains compared with income gains anything like those achieved by farmers and their marketing boards.

He defended the work of farm marketing boards, and said consumers who blame them for the increasing cost of food because they want to continue the luxury-buying spree of the late 70's are doomed for some disappointment.

Not only will food prices go up because of increased costs, but also to raise the living standards of farmers to levels more nearly comparable with those having similar financial risks, management ability and labor involvement, he said. Unless this equality is achieved over a reasonable period of time, more and more farmers will seek opportunities outside of agriculture, he predicted

The willingness of farmers to accept a cheap food policy at the expense of their living standard has come to an end, not only in Canada but around the world

Eliminating marketing boards will not increase food production, he said. Increased production will come only through better farm prices relative to costs in a market with stability and security.

'History of Recorded Sound' Exhibition Reflects Tenacity of Industry Men

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The recording industry in Canada has been described by a Shread — from the first time a record was cut-to-fail in 1898 up to the LP that was cut this week by singer Kenny Bertie.

Yet the thread has been strong enough to keep the recording industry alive despite the countless forecasts that it could not possibly survive—because of radio, because of TV, competition, because of recession and so on.

Just how resilient the industry is can be seen by anyone visiting the science-long exhibition on the history of recorded sound, currently on display in the National Library of Canada in Ottawa.

For those who won't be in Ottawa this summer, the National Library has published (at $12.75) a valuable companion volume.

The thick volume, called Roll Back The Years, is a highly detailed yet absorbing retrospective look at the whole business—the artists, the inventors, the technicians, the manufacturers of records and play-back equipment, the wholesalers and the retailers.

In author, the knowledgeable Edward B. Moogk, is head of the National Library's recorded sound section. Formerly a prominent broadcaster on network radio, he is Canada's greatest authority on the history of wireless.

From the time the talking-machine business started to grow at the turn of the century, Canadians played a prominent role in its development—despite the departure of countless performers in search of greener fields in the United States, Britain, France and other countries.

One major reason was that Emile Berliner, a brilliant German-American inventor, moved from Washington, D.C., to Montreal at about that time.

In Montreal he set up his own the thriving Berliner Co. which pioneered the development of the "gramophone", the production of recordings, the performers entirely copied for Berliner while rival Thomas Edison's phonograph was a manufacturing only cylinders until 1929), and the creation of a retail market.

But the Berliners were not the only Canadian innovators. In 1904, Colle C. McKenzie of Whitehorse, Yukon, was the first to patent what today seems the most obvious of ideas—the double-sided disc. Until then, discs had been recorded on one side only.

Another major Canadian innovation was the first disc was recorded electrically (as opposed to the acoustical recording system) in 1925 by Horace Merriman of Hamilton.

The Canadian recording industry was almost killed off for good during the Great Depression, notes author Moogk.

Then it came back stronger than ever during the early Era of the late 1930s—only to be hit again by the two-year ban on recordings by the American Federation of Musicians, beginning in mid-1942.

There was a period after the Second World War when Canada's recording industry was largely a poor stepchild of the major multinational recording companies. Small Canadian record producers would come and go—usually leaving behind big debts and unsold inventory.

That has enabled radio stations right across the country to meet federal requirements that they provide a certain minimum of Canadian music in their program schedules, instead of relying on wall-to-wall American records.

But the CTL recordings don't stop with Canadian radio stations. Strictly on their own, they have been highly popular Radio stations get a supply of the British Broadcasting Corp. and with listeners in hundreds of U.S. stations.

Not long ago, Air Canada came to CTL and asked for programs of Canadian music to be played aboard its fleets of DC8 and DC9 airplanes on take-off and landing. (Until then, music was the only major state airline not to feature its native music.)

And all new CTL albums issued since mid-1967—that is, all but the first 79—are available to individual customers as well as to radio stations. Retail distribution, however, is not CTL's strong-point, and shoppers need to be persistent to track down a copy of an LP they might have heard on the air.

Most recording lease CTL recordings at a monthly fee that is geared to their sales/rental rates. (Non-profit broadcasters are charged a nominal $25 a month. But even that nominal contribution toward the encouragement of Canadian culture is too high in the opinion of the University of Alberta's Edmonton radio cable, the provincially funded Ryerson Polytechnical Institute's radio station in Toronto, and the Ontario Educational Association's TV station. All three have cancelled their CTL contracts.)

As a non-profit trust, neither CTL nor its organizer, Lyman Potts, ever seen from the royalties paid by the hundreds of stations that use its music. All the money flows into the trustee, Crown Trust Co., which pays CTL's bills.

Anything left over is applied to the production of more records. It's a costly business—the hourly rate for a studio and for each musician is about $36, with 12 to 15 hours being needed to record a single that runs about 30 minutes.

But it's proof of those rare phenomena in Canadian business—an arrangement that works well for all concerned.

Radio stations get a supply of superior music at reasonable cost. Canadian musicians receive the recognition and encouragement they need—as well as worthwhile fees. Listeners, seeking relief from typical high-volume, low-talent hit-parade material, are treated to some of the most imaginative record-liner copy around.

And Lyman Potts has the satisfaction of supporting the work of today's Canadian talent for posterity, just as the Berliners were doing in the first decades of this century.

A Canadian Tragedy

When President Kennedy was slain, his successor, Lyndon Johnson, said: "We have suffered a loss that cannot be measured."

In Brampton there has been a shooting tragedy in a school to which these words might also apply.

Its impact on the students, their parents, the school staff, and the community is immeasurable.

The shooting itself, by a young student described by his sister as "normal," by others as quiet, was of a cold and calculating character sparked in the darker recesses of the mind. There have been others like it on this continent, although seldom by one so young, and seldom in Canada.

Recriminations in such circumstances are pointless, the feeling among most perhaps being one of: "there but for the grace of God."

Immediately, of course, there have been questions about the gun laws. On Wednesday the day of the tragedy, The Intelligencer reported Hastings MP Jack Ellis as saying gun control legislation will be before Parliament "reasonably soon." Solicitor-General Allmand has spoken in similar terms, but it has taken the Brampton slayings to inject into the dialogue the urgency it deserves.

As it is, nothing can erase the horror of what occurred in an outwardly peaceful Ontario community. It will leave its mark for years to come.

Dehumanized Society

An 18-year-old woman narrowly escaped death recently when she jumped from the Harmony Road overpass spanning Highway 401 near Oshawa into the path of an oncoming vehicle.

Police classed the incident as an unsuccessful suicide. The woman apparently leaped from the overpass after a domestic squabble, but suffered only minor injuries when the car swerved to avoid her.

Here is yet another manifestation of the troubled undercurrent in our society. An audience in Picton, which has been having its difficulties with weekend vandalism, has heard it well delineated by Dr. Finlay G. Stewart.

Dr. Stewart's remarks were addressed to an International Accident Prevention Association group, but what he said has widever relevance. He said dehumanization of individuals and the onset of automation are the basis of problems in our society.

He spoke of a "diminishing sense of personal responsibility," as workers became more a part of the machine. And he said people "have to know that they matter." Every individual has to realize that he is the important factor in a business, industry, or society.

Education, according to Dr. Stewart, is subject to the same problem. "No longer is there a person-to-person relationship in our schools."

He's right of course. We hear of the humanities . . . but how much of it exists in our schools today ?

Davis Looks to Federal Budget

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The new federal budget of Finance Minister John Turner, first presented on June 23 will be looked at with strong interest here, particularly by the government.

Any federal budget, of course, has important implications for the provinces and this upcoming one will have more than most.

But with it there is the added spice that there is suspicion Premier Davis may be planning to centre his election campaign on conflict with Ottawa.

Premier Lougheed did this in Alberta, of course, with great success although he might have done just as well if he had based his appeal on the fact he goes to church on Sunday, he has Alberta in his grip.

Premier Davis' surprisingly strong stand at the federal-provincial energy conference last month and his otherwise tougher attitude indicate he may be thinking of the same thing.

If so, there are various fields in which he can pick a fight.

First of all, there is the question of energy prices.

Beyond energy there is the state of the economy, unemployment and inflation.

This is such a nebulous area that no matter what action Mr. Turner takes he try and meet it, Ontario can disagree with it. Significantly, the province is not in any real position having taken no firm stands on what should be done about the economy.

Then there is support for housing and other matters which are always controversial and which provide plenty of ammunition for a scrap.

Thus here the first reaction of the government will be watched as closely as the budget itself.

If it comes on strongly critical we may look to the beginning of an election fight.

It has not been the habit of the Davis government to oppose Ottawa budgets very strongly.

If it comes on screaming there might even be a summer election, though admittedly that is not a most probable possibility.

In any event, politically this budget will be more important to Ontario than any in recent years.

Avoiding Bankruptcy

Brockville Recorder and Times

The new Bankruptcy Act, a massive bill introduced last year by Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet, is an important piece of legislation which gives the honest individual a better chance to avoid bankruptcy, offers new protection to employees of firms who go broke, and makes bankruptcy more difficult for crooked operators attempting to cheat creditors. It also — significantly — is a prime example of how modern complicated legislation can take. The bill is not expected to be passed until 1970 — a full decade after work was initiated on reforming the bankruptcy laws.

The Way It Was

Remember the time when a young man began a career in industry upon leaving school? He served an apprenticeship and worked his way up.

It was like that with John Henry Beaton, one of the men who came in on the ground floor of General Motors in Oshawa along with Robert McLaughlin. The year was 1902 and he was 16. The company was known then as the McLaughlin Carriage Company.

It was a meteoric career. Mr. Beaton became sales manager after two years and retired from the company in 1930.

His career then branched out in other directions. Mr. Beaton held directorships or memberships on more than a dozen organizations and committees in Oshawa. He was active in development of the city's hospital and in the Red Cross, the Boy Scouts and in sports and service clubs.

Mr. Beaton died last week in the city to which he had contributed so much. His was a career in the best Canadian tradition.

Barbarism Of Modern Society

Editor's note: Two or three years ago the following editorial appeared in the newspaper Quebec L'Action. It is a delightfully-phrased and incisive commentary by Roger Brassens on our modern society, with special reference to an event of that time which has had echoes in Brassens's home town of Shawinigan, Quebec, too, of the drop-out process as evident today and touched upon by Dr. Finlay G. Stewart in a recent address in Picton.

Quebec L'Action

A school in Roucherville was the scene of a drama . . . when a student killed himself after shooting a teacher and another student . . .

Every day we read news which shows an inexplicable and disorganized behavior on the part of young people . . .

And parents, a great majority of them, have been overwhelmed when faced by all the problems of their children; they have understood nothing of what is going on and by renouncing their task to make at least a small effort to help their children, they have simply abandoned them to the mercy of unscrupulous revolutionaries who preach the abolition of all social, moral and human values which are the basis of our civilization.

The youths are inserted, like numbers in a file into a school system that has become more and more dehumanizing, in order to prepare them to take their place in an amorphous society that offers them no joy or security.

What ideal can one develop when all efforts are, from the start, destined to be short-lived . . . when one looks at an adult society where the illiterate earn their living more easily than those who have spent years at workmen.

We will be surprised by a particular drama such as the one at Roucherville if we study the logical conclusion to the series of hardships that our youth has tolerated . . . We will see that many other similar dramas while waiting until we have enough courage to bring about a real change in our civilization to build a new and more human world.

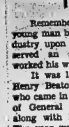
UK Between the Devil and the Deep Blue Sea on European Membership Issue



By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

In a few days the British will engage in a national exercise not attempted before, a national referendum to decide a question which should be decided in Parliament.

This is of course, Prime Minister Harold Wilson's referendum on whether British story is or leaves the European Common Market. And the result in mid-June is just as unpredictable at this point as any other development in British domestic affairs.

A vote to withdraw would appear to have as many ramifications at one as a vote to stay in. Mr. Wilson's shaggy-dyed ruling Labor Party is concerned, one can't see he will win either way from his national vote.

The British Labor Party is already split more or less down the centre on the issue of Britain in Europe. Its so-called "anti-market" or "left" members' far left have gone thing only in common with Conservative Tories. Both feel somehow or other that international multinational companies permitted easy access into a Britain the Common Market, are out to slash British enterprise.

The pro-Marketeers as well as high-level politicians who have thought about the national referendum on British membership in Europe, are emotional—dangerous and unreal in Britain's current economic condition.

The British entry into Europe has been costly from the main in the stretch goals of entry since he has had to absorb 'added charges' and pay for a pretence a hike in the price of many British goods in Europe.

The British workingman, not exactly the most productive in Europe today, doesn't like the new competition from many less-expensive European imports, especially in high-tech type goods.

There are permitted in a result of the drop in British internal tariffs on many of these goods after Britain became a member state of the ECM.

The other side of the new very thorny issue is that British industry, on the whole, is in shape, has been made more efficient by the pressures of foreign competition.

And therefore any decision by the Wilson government to withdraw based on a negative vote, would simply mean British management would put back into its allegedly traditional sleepy ways.

One also wonders if either of these new traditional approaches and can ever hold much water in the face of the obvious obvious cons for attempting this exercise on a national vote on Europe.

Isn't it the most public manifestation of the growing failure of institutions in Britain to do their job? I don't say that lightly, for out of a deep personal conviction that Britain's national decline is the most severe crisis in the world today.

Crises in Vietnam, Bangladesh, the Middle East and Latin America which could mean more wars, more famine, or a social revolution are, I admit, serious problems in themselves.

But it is from Britain where we Canada have drawn our political heritage of liberal democratic government. Westminster parliament also is the "mother of Parliaments."

Britain's plight deeply worries within a populace you expect from other Greece, Portugal and Spain perhaps. Institutional failure you expect from socialist countries where areas struggling with new industries.

But when these elements come ugly and forbidding proportions in Britain, when there is a breakdown in the apparent vehicle, when British industries are in a crisis of identity and leaving Britain at an apparent loss of forecasting what future others should take.

Britain is our elder brother. We grew up here, we go here, every day.

Chief Obstacle to Acceptance Of Christianity Is Injustice

By Dr. Gordon C. Smyth

I have more than 30 years in the ministry, I can say that the chief obstacle to the acceptance of the Christian religion is life itself. Vast numbers of people do not believe in God for this reason: the injustice of life.

In the pain and sorrow, the fight, even the Book of Job appears to be fake with its pious reasoning. Many feel that here its comforters sleighed, as Charles Dickens sleighed when he made Mr. Macawber leave but a success in Australia. Life, they say, is not like that.

Prosperity is the keynote of the Old Testament, and adversity the keynote of the New.

I am amazed that much of our Christianity, our church going and our prayers are love so many bargaining points with God. In effect, we are saying, "If I cast my vote for God, what will my patronage be?"

The religious life is no guarantee or a special dispensation. It will not save us from the results of our own incompetence, nor will it prevent us against a lack of talent or knowledge, against serious reversals, the malice of others, ill health, loss of money or property and a hundred other calamities.

I want you to consider the secret of the incomparable happiness of folk in the true Christian religion. That secret was its inner life. The outward life in the earthly ministry makes it clear that the justice of God is rarely found in our environment. "God is spirit," Jesus taught. Therefore, his grace and power move in (and from) the deep regions of the soul.

There have been periods of history in which the comforts and certitudes of the Gospel seemed to be withdrawn, lost Christians persisted and triumphed. This is a hard way and it is ours in this age.

The Gospel of Christ will take on rich meaning for us, thus making its appeal to others for whom life is no bed of roses, when we stop making religion an escape from the conflict, a haven of refuge. Surely it warms the heart, kindles the mind and straightens the spine when the Master says "He who endures to the end will be saved" (Mark 13:13).

Pentecostal Movement Irks Many Protestants

By GEORGE CORNELL

AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Roman Catholic leaders are cautioning on the ecumenical style charismatic movement that has surged in many mainline denominations but sometimes among those whom it first arose, are dismayed by it.

Harvey Cox charges a group of Baptists who, at their critics, were accused of speaking in tongues.

The movement offers "many positive signs," says an official Catholic statement.

In both branches of Christianity, however, there are phenomenon ranging from hearty approval to antagonism, along with considerable puzzlement.

"It's too fuzzy," said Catholic Bishop Floyd L. Begin of Oakland, Calif., adding that he doubts if "self-appointed leaders" will yield to church direction. They should think they won't."

"It's scary but we've got to be open to the scary," said Rev. Colin Williams, dean of Yale Divinity School of the United Church of Christ minister.

The approach stresses emotionalism, prayer, meetings, Bible reading, healing services, a "gift of tongues" and speaking in unknown tongues. Membership is reported close to 500,000 American Christians, about 300,000 Catholics, are involved.

Indications of Catholicism's increasing official concern were cited by a report by a United States bishops' committee, headed by Archbishop John R. Quinn of Oklahoma City.

"Previously the view was wait and see but now it is basically one of guarded welcome. However, "We point out some dangers, some norms that should be followed if the movement is to develop in a healthy way."

The meetings said many belonging to the movement "express a new sense of spiritual values, a heightened consciousness of the action of the Holy Spirit, the praise of God and a deepening personal commitment to Christ."

The report cautions against "undisciplined" aspects but takes a generally positive view, urging bishops and priests to develop a relationship with the movement in order to offer guidance.

The movement also has leading supporters among Lutheran, Episcopalian, Presbyterian and American Baptist, among whom it has originated up to extensively, but there also are undercurrents of dismay.

Objections have become common in some cases. "A new extremism," the Oklahoma Baptist Convention called the phenomenon. "Divisive and doctrinally exclusive."

It lacks "sufficient scriptural support," said the Louisiana Baptist Convention. Nonetheless, Southern Baptist leaders and local associations have denounced it, calling it "unscriptural" in some quarters.

Pentecostalism first emerged in the United States early in this century among Protestants, resulting in several separate denominations stressing the "spirit-filled" experience.

Since the upsurge (neo-pentecostalism) came in mainline Protestantism early in the 1960s and hit Roman Catholicism in 1967.

Its latest study, presented to a recent meeting of the U.S. bishops, said that understandably a new movement involves "a certain mixture of desirable and undesirable elements," adding:

"Elitism and that kind of biblical fundamentalism which affords against the unrelenting norms of Sacred Scripture . . . are two of these dangers. There is also the danger for some . . . to ignore the intellectual and doctrinal content of faith and reduce it to a felt religious experience."

However, the report expressed hope that "the truly positive values" will prevail.

When John Cornelius Carberry of St. Louis questioned the report's recommendation that bishops and priests be present at charismatic prayer meetings, Archbishop Quinn observed that he himself wasn't a charismatic, he added:

"I've attended the prayer meetings and while the style of prayer is not my own, I do have respect for and don't feel uncomfortable with it."

Almost One Quarter Of Nuns Quit Order

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)— In 1930, eight women graduates of St. Joseph Academy entered convent.

Five of them, now in their early 60s, later left their orders without the fanfare with which some of them caught the "habit" of the Order of Mercy to their convents.

They married and had jobs, pay bills and meet men.

"I'd encountered the great ruin by young people to join the Peace Corps a few years back," said one. "But Mary Jo came for us in 1930 was to be a nun."

The women were among droves who left religious orders in the turbulent late 1960s.

In Iowa, more than 600 of 1,700 sisters left in a three-year period, says Sister Michael Geary of Dubuque, secretary-general of the Sisters of Charity of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

Polly Fesselman was one of the first to enter a convent. She recalled shopping with friends for "the right kind of long cotton nightgowns and "serviceable underwear."

After 23 years, she left her order because "I decided I wanted and needed to establish deeper relationships with people and I couldn't do that and still remain a nun."

Now a Memphis, Tenn., teacher, she says nuns have the ideal of what a good life in the world outside the convent. But many people on the outside disagree.

"They have such a phoney living style . . . like jeans and the furniture. And vacations. Nuns don't go to Jamaica. Jamaica is all they know," she said.

Molly Kurtz is a manager-trainee for a Minneapolis She checked in her habit after 14 years.

"I didn't think about dentists bills and income tax and vacations or any of that stuff beto e I left," she said.

She lives in a large apartment complex with a swimming pool and enjoys cross-country skiing.

Single life was hard to adjust to, Miss Kurtz says. "At first it was uncomfortable, going out with men. I was very self-conscious. But I found that some are just awfully boring. And really,the interesting men are married."

Miss Fesselman is teaching in Omaha when I decided to leave," says the former Sorsame bbi vfhll. now Mrs. Harry Higdon of South Bend, Ind.

Housing Slump Hits Farming

EDMONTON (CP) — Canada's slumping housebuilding industry is having an adverse effect on one sector of the farming economy.

In Canada this year, new housing starts are estimated at only 210,000, down five per cent from 1974 and 20 per cent from 1973. With fewer housing starts, there will be a reduced demand for seed to sow new lawns.

Marcel Malouenne, a marketing economist for the Alberta agriculture department, said the demand for grass seed is related to the number of lawns required for new houses and the accompanying maintenance, or parks, golf courses and so on.

"A healthy house-building industry in North America will be required to maintain, and hopefully increase the demand for Canadian creeping red fescue seed," he said.

He said the carryover of creeping red fescue, in addition to an estimated crop this year of 30 million pounds, may mean total supplies at the end of the year of about 36 million pounds.

With similar housing-start declines in the United States and that country's large stocks of grass seed, Canadian exports will be reduced and prices will decline, he said.

Mr. Malouenne said Alberta produces more than 65 per cent of Canada's creeping red fescue seed.

a Brampton, Ont., high school will not result in stricter gun control legislation, Justice Minister Otto Lang said Friday.

Speaking in an interview, he said Canada has stricter legislation than many countries, including the U.S., and the laws should be enforced rather than tightened.

"I don't believe registering hunting shotguns and rifles really changes anything in the way of safety because it's just a lot of red tape yet the guns would be just as readily available.

"Education is the main course of action that's required here rather than legislation."

Canative Housing Provides Homes for Unwanted Tenants

EDMONTON (CP) — Providing housing for tenants other landlords don't want is what the locally-based Canative Housing Corp. is all about.

"Sometimes applicants break windows when they get a house," said Gordon Hornby, general manager of the native-housing organization.

"They tell me it's the first chances anyone has ever given them to provide their families with a decent place to live."

The private, non-profit organization was formed in 1971 by a group of concerned citizens to improve native housing in Edmonton and Calgary.

Canative now owns 100 houses — 100 here and 0 in Calgary — scattered in large, low-income families.

Large families are frequently discriminated against by landlords, Mr. Hornby said. The problem is compounded when the family is native.

"Just try approaching a landlord and telling him you've got seven kids . . . no way he'll rent," said Norman Eckstein, a native fisherman who rented a Canative home last winter.

Most Canative houses are older, four-bedroom dwellings with an average rent of $90 a month. So far the corporation has operated with a $3.5-million loan from Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., as well as government grants for administration.

"We've had to raise rents recently, but they are considerably below the going rate," said Mr. Hornby, the only non-native staff member.

The corporation, operated by five shareholders, has a full-time staff of 12, including clerical and maintenance workers. It also operates a branch office in Calgary.

Canative is considering establishment of a native training program in construction to help maintain the houses, many of which need a lot of work, the general manager said.

He said that despite an inflated house market and problems with unhappy tenants, Canative's first 3½ years have been largely successful.

"We've proven that Canative is economically sound and we've put native families into decent housing.

"We've also established an urban-orientation program to help tenants adjust to urban life."

Canative's urban-orientation program, begun in Canada drawn on the experience of natives who have successfully adjusted to urban life to create

Topics such as property care and juvenile delinquency are discussed in the counselling classes, with child care and transportation provided to tenants.

"This isn't just a landlord-tenant relationship," Mr. Hornby said. "We're here to help natives cope with the pressures of urban life."

Canative has some of the usual tenant problems, including cases of disrespect for property and neighborhood disturbance.

But one knew when we went into this project that this type of problem exists and we're ready to cope with it."

There have also been cases of white neighborhoods drawing up petitions to protest Canative housing, "but generally this city is not as racist as others," the general manager said.

Mr. Hornby, who first became interested in native rights while growing up in Yellowknife, N.W.T., said he hopes other groups similar to Canative will spring up in the large demand for native housing.

Despite the achievements of the corporation, it is really only a drop in the bucket, he said.

Munro Identified In Harbor Trial

HAMILTON (CP) — A tape recording obtained by a police wiretap in April, 1974, was played in court Friday and revealed that Kenneth Elliott discussed bribes in federal Labor Minister John Munro during a telephone conversation with Horace Rindress.

The tape was played while Mr. Rindress, a former dredging company president was testifying for the Crown in the case against Elliott, 61, a former Hamilton harbor commissioner, and local businessman Reginald Fisher, 62, in Ontario Supreme Court on 10 charges of conspiracy, fraud and uttering.

The charges were laid in connection with alleged kickbacks and payoffs in dredging and construction projects in Hamilton harbor between 1970-72.

Mr. Rindress said he co-operated with the police during the telephone call to Elliott in return for a pledge that no charges would be laid against him.

On the tape, the witness called Elliott if he had any "political clout."

"Not a thing, Joe," Elliott answered.

Later in the taped conversation, Elliott added: "The way I boosted my ass for these politicians, the money I've gotten them over the years. Now they go up, run and hide, including Munro."

He continued: "That's one thing that hits me more than anybody—Munro."

"Well, he started this whole thing, didn't he?" Mr. Rindress interjected.

"You bet your ass he did," Elliott concluded.

Mr. Munro, MP for Hamilton East, is listed as a witness in the indictment, but has not yet been called.

Elliott urged Mr. Rindress during the conversation to remain cool, explaining that police were helpless unless someone talked.

"I don't think anybody is going to be charged unless someone starts talking," Elliott said on the tape.

On the tape, the two men made references to money, with Elliott saying that J. P. Porter "is going to have to come up with the tax on those three big ones."

The witness, former president of J. P. Porter, said he believed the three big ones was a reference to $125,000, which he said earlier was laundered through a fictitious company by Elliott.

Throughout the tape, Elliott often referred to the possibility of a wiretap.

Earlier, Mr. Rindress described how Elliott devised a cover story to try and explain how kickbacks were handled.

Mr. Rindress has testified in a series of kickbacks and payoffs involving Elliott and a number of dredging companies.

The witness also said Elliott told him that a kickback of 2 per cent Porter dredging contract, which eventually totalled $180,000, was ultimately divided among Elliott and the other two members of the three-man harbor commission.

Mr. Rindress said Elliott told him that after expenses, his share totalled between $42,000 and $45,000.

In earlier testimony, he described how Elliott laundered several hundred thousand dollars through a fictitious company, International Holdings, which was based in a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., bank.

Mr. Rindress said the carefully-constructed system of hiding the payoffs began to collapse in late 1972, under careful scrutiny by the RCMP and the revenue department in Canada, as well as the FBI and the Internal Revenue Service in the United States.

The trial adjourned to Tuesday.

Minister Is Concerned Over Misunderstanding

TORONTO (CP) — Sidney Handleman, minister of consumer and commercial relations, told a seminar conducted by the Institute of Public Administration of Canada Friday that he has a growing concern about the suspicion and cynicism displayed toward government by consumers.

The average citizen, he said, doesn't make a distinction between the legislative and administrative sides of government.

"If a program works, and is perceived to be working by the citizen, then little is said. When there is a breakdown, however, most people look at the politician and the administrator and say 'a plague on both your houses'."

His ministry's role, Mr. Handleman said, is one of ensuring a basic fairness in the marketplace and a concerted protection for the consumer within that marketplace.

"That does not always have its most warm reception. Indeed, in Ontario we have tried to avoid the federal model of responding to all problems with new regulations heaped over the top of already somewhat complicated ad hoc regulatory decisions."

He said a trend of concern in the democracies of the free world is "a new and often heavy-handed belief in the intrinsic value of central planning and greater government initiative in all areas."

Any exclusive reliance on regulation is both foolhardy and simplistic, he added.

A text of his remarks was released in advance of delivery.

Circuit Rider

Early Methodist ministers in Upper Canada travelled through the countryside on horseback, holding services in pioneer churches in schoolhouses and homes. Circuit riders, there were any. On June 10, 1925, Methodists, Congregationalists and Presbyterians joined hands and formed the United Church of Canada. (CP Photo)

Schisms Were Plentiful Among Early Churches

EDITOR'S NOTE: Storm and stress were endured by Presbyterian synod throughout Canada after the British conquest in 1759. How differing viewpoints were reconciled is told in this, the second of three stories on the 50th anniversary of the United Church of Canada.

BY R. J. ANDERSON
The Canadian Press

Protestantism spread rapidly through Upper Canada after the British capture of Quebec in 1759, later came splits.

The United Empire Loyalists who came to Canada after the American revolution became firmly entrenched in what now is Ontario.

Though their patriotic fervor was given to the Crown, their religious structure long remained tied to the new United States.

Early Methodist ministers in Upper Canada were drawn from the U.S. by the famous Bishop Asbury whose mnemonic stands near the Capitol in Washington. Canadian Methodists contributed heavily towards its cost in the 20th century.

These preachers held services in pioneer churches or in schoolhouses, if there were any. They were linked in circuits and eventually joined in a Canada Conference in 1824, though still part of the American church. In 1828 they became the Methodist Episcopal Church in Canada.

SUPPORT FLY TIES

British authorities didn't like the American connection and Canadian Methodist preachers were prohibited to perform marriage ceremonies.

The Canadians, links with the United States church broken in 1828, found they couldn't go it on their own and in 1833 they formed a union with the British Wesleyan Methodist conference.

Difficulties developed immediately.

The British conference exercised firm control over the Canadians. There was controversy over abandonment of the episcopal form of church government. The Canadians had been accustomed to a church governed by bishops.

About two-thirds of them stayed under the British Wesleyan conference; the other third reconstituted a Methodist Episcopal Church in Canada. For 50 years there were two rival churches in Upper Canada.

The opposing groups were united in 1884 when almost all Canada's Methodists except for the Evangelical United Brethren, a German-language body with origins in the United States, and the British Methodist Episcopal Church, a black denomination came under one banner. The Brethren joined the United Church in 1968 when they dissolved about 1900.

There was a compromise on the troublesome question of the bishopric. Under a semi-episcopal form of government, general-superintendents were retained under the title of general-conference. They were elected for specific terms but in effect retained their offices for life.

The Presbyterian Church, in the meantime, also was a house divided.

Many Presbyterians came from Scotland in the 18th century and formed into groups according to age and who each other. The main bias was in Nova Scotia.

Some Scots who came to Upper Canada joined the Methodists or the Church of England (which became the Anglican Church of Canada in 1955) but by 1825 there were enough Church of Scotland ministers in the Canadas to form the "Synod of the Presbyterian Church of Canada in connection with the Church of Scotland."

In 1844-45, free-church schisms developed in the Church of Scotland synods of the Canadas and Eastern British America. Three vigorous and militant evangelical Free Presbyterian synods were organized and became the nucleus of the Presbyterian Church in Canada in 1875.

That union was only partially successful.

Minorities broke away and formed what were known as kirk synods in the Maritimes, Quebec and Ontario. The Canadian census of 1881 showed more than 21,000 non-concurrent kirk members in the Maritimes and about 11,000 in Ontario and Quebec.

So opposed to the union of 1875 were the kirk synods that they took court action against the majority. After years of court battles they ended in the Privy Council—the kirks lost—the majority synods de integrated.

Rev. Glenn Locas, archivist of the United Church of Canada, says of the disunity of 1875:

"Few of the children of these people entered the United Church in 1925 and most of them actively opposed its formation.

"The union of 1925 gave these same congregations another opportunity to dissent and most of them did. The arguments they used against the 1925 union were often reminiscent of those used in 1875.

"They were joined by some people of Free Church background and a few of seceder tradition to form a continuing Presbyterian Church of Canada."

New Light Congregationalists Hated Catholicism, Loved Fish

United Church: The First Roots

EDITOR'S NOTE: The United Church of Canada was born June 10, 1925, of a union of Methodist, Congregationalist and Presbyterian bodies. The smallest body formed of the participating churches had been they were together for a third of a three union, of which this is the final.

By R. J. ANDERSON
The Canadian Press

They came yowrl in hand, breathing fire, a great crusade against Roman Catholicism in French Canada.

Pecuniary interest was of more than a little importance. They also had an eye on the properties of The Grand Banks offNewfoundland, long dominated by France.

They were congregationalists 3000 strong, the first large group of Protestants to come to Canada, stirred by the "great awakening" in New England. Their motto was: "Christ is our leader."

William Pepperell, a wealthy merchant of Kittery, Me., was the military leader of that New England militia expedition, which stormed the French fortress of Louisbourg in Cape Breton Island in what now is Nova Scotia in 1745. Peppered fell acquired a title and returned Louisbourg to France in 1748.

Far almost three years the New Light-Congregationalists, as they called themselves, worshipped in the King's Chapel in the fortress of Louis of Louisbourg, converted into a New England meeting house and served by Congregationalist militia chaplains.

After the retirement to Halifax, founded in 1749, the New Lights held services in the Masher Meeting House, built by the British government in 1750.

The preacher was Rev. Aaron Cleveland of the Congregationalist Church, the first regularly settled minister in Congregationalist Canada of any of the three persuasions now within the United Church of Canada.

The Masher Meeting House became a Presbyterian church in the 19th century and now is known as St. Matthew's, the oldest congregation in the United Church.

The story of the fighting Congregationalist militiamen from New England, and of the Presbyterian and Methodist churches, that eventually came together to form Canada's largest Protestant denomination, lies in the archives of the United Church in Victoria College, Toronto.

Archivist Rev. Glenn Locas is full of swelling eagerly and well he has been putting it together for almost a decade. Before that, he was a historian for the restoration of the fortress of Louisbourg as a national historical treasure.

The New Lights in New England were the result of a religious crusade by Rev. Jonathan Edwards and Rev. George Whitefield, a confrere of John Wesley in the evangelical revival.

In an interview, Mr. Locas described Whitefield as a visitor (believer in predestination) whereas Wesley was an Arminian (believer in free will in theology.

Mr. Trura, a settlement of from New Hampshire founded Canada's first Presbyterian congregation about 1760. That Truro church now is called First United Church.

There had been two earlier settlements of Reformed Church (Calvinist) background in Canada before the Congregationalists at Louisburg but both had short histories.

The first settlers in New France were French Presbyterians. About 1559, one M. Charvin (or Calvin) brought Huguenot settlers to Tadoussac on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River. Charvin died in 1603, and most of the settlers soon perished of famine or disease.

In 1604 the Sieur de Monts established a colony at Port Royal in Acadia with both a Huguenot pastor and a Catholic cure to serve their respective flocks. De Monts, a Calvinist, remained governor of Acadia until 1618.

A change of policy in colonial administration in France in 1627 prohibited Protestantism in New France and Acadia and the French Reformed Church disappeared in Canada until after the British conquest in 1759.

Most Canadians—a variation of Anglicanism with stress on holiness, conversion and discipline—came to mainland Canada with immigrants from Yorkshire who settled in the Sackville, N.B., area about 1775. Earlier (1680), it had been established around Conception Bay, Newfoundland.

Methodism resulted from the religious movement started in 1739 by John and Charles Wesley, both Anglican priests. It became an organized church in the United States—the Methodist Episcopal Church—in 1784 but was not considered a regularly constituted church in England until after John Wesley's death in 1791.

Methodism in Canada received its greatest impetus after the American Revolution. Many American Methodists fled to Canada and among them were Barbara Heck, acknowledged as the founder of Methodism in colonial America, the children of her cousin Philip Embury, the first Methodist preacher in America, and George Neal, a United Empire Loyalist who settled in the Niagara area.

Neal later was ordained a deacon in the Methodist Episcopal Church. The first Methodist church in Upper Canada, built in 1792 near Adolphustown, still stands in restored condition.

The original Presbyterians in Canada were mostly seceders from the state church in Scotland in the 18th century.

In Nova Scotia, Burgher and anti-Burgher seceder presbyteries united in 1817 to form the Presbyterian Church of Nova Scotia. In the Canadas, various seceder and other non-Church of Scotland Calvinist ministers formed the United Synod of the Canadas in 1818.

Mr. Locas describes Canadian Presbyterianism prior to formation of the United Church of Canada in 1925 as a church that never was really united, a loosely organized denomination that allowed great autonomy to its congregations and had almost no headquarters organization.

Ontario's Milk Commission is undertaking an inquiry into milk distribution and pricing; the object of the inquiry is to determine what elements in the chain from producer to consumer contribute to the final price of milk.

Among the specific information sought is the retail margin on milk in Ontario and other places.

Enquiries about the inquiry and briefs should be sent to J.F. Joanis, secretary, the Milk Commission of Ontario, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, Ontario, M7A 1B2.

My car is currently working on ovaling the third exhaust system. It's bad in its short three-year, 32,000 mile life.

Experts tell me if I had more mileage — put on during longer trips — I'd probably still be using my first muffler. Moisture, which doesn't dry out during short trips, corrodes the metal, aided by salt and acids.

But, if the car manufacturer who produced my car had the foresight to figure I'd be happy to pay $18 extra (on a purchase of that size, what's $18?) for a stainless steel exhaust system there's no doubt I'd have the muffler longer than the car.

In fact, the University of Ottawa researchers who are studying stainless steel mufflers believe they can be recycled from car to car. They propose mufflers made from the same type of stainless steel used in your kitchen sink and predict that material cost and fabrication cost would add only $38 to the cost of a sheet metal muffler.

Car manufacturers, however, have resisted the move to stainless so far on several grounds which you can judge for yourself. Initially they claim that consumer would not be prepared to pay more for a full life exhaust system. Secondly, they believe it would cost too much. Finally, the manufacturers worry about availability of chrome to produce the stainless steel.

Writing in the Canadian Consumer, the magazine of the Consumers' Association of Canada, Daniel Gorman, an associate professor of mechanical engineering at the University of Ottawa, makes one telling comment on the problems Canadians face with corroding exhaust systems.

He believes our climate exaggerates the problem and that the fact that there are no indigenous manufacturers of automobiles accounts for the lack of progress in producing mufflers that last.

Being Beautiful Costs More, Prices Are Going Up

Carmen says women still want to be beautiful

"People still have to eat and they've still got to be beautiful."

Carmen, of Carmen's Beauty Salon, sums up the reason he thinks clients continue to patronize the city's hairdressers in spite of rising price and tighter money.

"The regular customers are still regular," he says.

Carmen adds that prices in his shop have gone up by 100 per cent in the last several years but at that they haven't kept up with costs.

"A few of our products have tripled in the last two years — and we're not breaking in. If we did, people can't afford to have their hair done."

One product — a chemical dye — has increased from $3 to $7 in the last six months.

"The cause is short supply," Carmen believes.

"I think somebody is stockpiling the stuff and that sends the prices up. Somebody is hoarding."

His main concern about the future.

"Well (hairdressers) probably add up like everybody else — we'll price ourselves right out of business."

Other hairdressers in the city echo his sentiments.

Jan Secarbe, of the Continental, believes beauty salons still seem to be in the same position as General Motors.

"Nobody could buy cars because they cost too much. I keep telling my supply salesmen you people only damage yourselves.

"If prices keep going up, eventually everything will stop."

Mr. Secarbe says that he hasn't increased prices much.

"We have a lot of clients who are older pensioners. I might increase by 25 cents but I don't have the heart to go to an $8 or $9 haircut.

"I wouldn't be able to live with my conscience."

Vivian Jewell of Jewell-Brenmore, too, has many regular customers who continue to come in weekly.

"Regular repairs accept price increases and carry on," she says.

"In the last couple of years our supply prices have gone up considerably — our prices to customers should have doubled but they've only gone up about 50 per cent.

"Our operating is less profit than ever before."

In Belleville, a hair cut, shampoo and set or blow dry can cost from $8.50 to $13 depending on the salon and the kind of hair — long hair cost more.

"A blow dry costs more than a set," Carmen explains, "because there's far more labor involved."

Michael Guerra of the Venus Salon plans to put prices up, next week.

"Our prices haven't gone up for two and a half years," he says.

Perhaps because of this, his customers have continued to have their hair done in spite of inflation.

"Our prices have to go up," he says and explains the increase will be more than 30 per cent.

"Our prices have gone up very little — about 15 per cent — in the last while but it looks like we'll have to increase in the fall," says Sal of The Union adding that supplies have increased 40 per cent recently.

The young women who make up the majority of shop's clientele still seem willing to spend money on beauty, Sal says.

"Everybody else is getting a raise," Michael Guerra says, "why not us?"

Fraser — McKell

BRENDA ANNE BAKER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Baker of Kingston, has graduated from Queen's University with her B.Sc.(H) in Arts and Geography. Brenda is employed at Queen's University, Kingston.

Joy Jessie McKell became the wife of Larry Guy Fraser in a spring wedding held in the Howick United Church, Howick, Quebec, conducted by Rev. John Anderson.

The bride is the daughter of the late Wallace McKell and Mrs. Jessie McKell of Howick. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Fraser of Point Anne, Ontario.

Given in marriage by her brother, Gordon, the bride wore a white brocade gown embossed with daisies, with a three-tier floor length and flowing bishop sleeves. The headpiece was of nylon daisies with a three-tier floor length veil. She carried a bouquet of red and white carnations, a single daisy with ivy entwined.

Fave McKell was maid of honor in the bridal party and Agnes McKell and Mildred McKell were bridesmaids in dresses identical to the maid of honor. Their gowns were sleeveless with short matching jackets in a turquoise color. They carried bouquets of white and yellow daisies.

Kimberly McKell was flower girl in a matching turquoise dress and bouquet of flowers.

The groom's best man was Rick Rosebush, and his ushers were Colin Hulse and Danny McKell.

The reception was at the Howick Curling Club with a dance following. The bride and groom traveled to Florida on their honeymoon and now reside in Toronto.

Smallman — Wells

The early May wedding of Sandra Madeline Wells and Ronald Kenneth Smallman was conducted by Rev. Clare Kellogg in Holloway Street United Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wells, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Williams Smallman.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a lace gown with eyelet design, pearl buttons and long sleeves with lace ruffles. Her chiffon veil was trimmed in dainty lace, and her headpiece was also of spring daisies design. The bride's bouquet was of American Beauty Roses and she wore a heirloom necklace.

The maid of honor was Karen Smith, who wore a blue dress, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and white carnations. Linda Woods served as bridesmaid wearing a pink outfit of spring flower design with a bouquet of yellow roses and white carnations.

The groomsman was Jeff Ellington and the usher was Stu Rayner.

A buffet luncheon was held after the ceremony.

The couple will reside on Bleecker Avenue in Belleville.

Miss Beckel Lives on Batik

REGINA (CP) — A 31-year-old Saskatchewan artist, who earns a living solely by selling her art, says everyone told her "You'll never do it."

Cathi Beckel of Sikton, Sask., specializes in making handsome, brightly-colored batiks which sell between $40 to $70, depending on size and quality.

"I am selling them low considering the work that goes into them, but you sort of have to if people are going to buy them," she says.

Batik, made by using an Indonesian technique of printing textiles with hot wax and dyes, takes 15 to 30 hours to complete, not including time spent working out a design.

Miss Beckel was introduced to batik during an art course and has developed her own, more sophisticated techniques.

Her subject matter varies from floral designs to Oriental figures.

"I just do whatever interests me, and I get a lot of ideas from art history books.

"All I want to do is to make a living and to do good art. And it's amazing, really quite amazing, that it's all worked out so well."

She says she has had difficulty in finding outlets to display and market her batiks, and relies on word-of-mouth for most of her customers.

"Selling to friends—that's how it started and it still seems to work that way."

Miss Beckel once tried to market her work through a local department store, but that fell through when the store marked up her batiks about 100 per cent.

Many artists have no explored batik because it often is looked down upon as being a craft, not an art form, she says.

"But if you think about it, the same things go into it as go into a painting. You just use dyes instead of paint."

Obscene Calls Frightening

Dear Ann Landers: My roommate and I have received five obscene phone calls in the past week. We're scared to death. The person calling knows who we are and where we live.

Please tell us what to say. We've tried being nice, reading the riot act, threatening to report it to the police, hanging up. We need advice.—Sleepless Nights

Dear S. N.: The person who makes obscene phone calls is a sick one gets his jollies from sweating responses to fear, anxiety or disgust. In short, he enjoys upsetting people.

The moment you realize it's that kind of a call, hang up without saying one word. If he calls a second time, hang up again. A third and fourth—do the same.

Always answer—don't just let the phone ring. Say "Hello," and wait to make sure you know for certain it's the call. Then hang up. Those creeps usually call from a phone booth. When you answer and hang up, they lose their climax. Your silence, coupled with the list of dimes, will almost always discourage the caller before long.

If any threats are made, report them to the police at once.

If calls persist, call the phone company. In some circumstances the calls can be traced.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the mother of a sick child who is under five years of age. The first symptom of his illness is a high fever. He has been hospitalized for convulsions three times.

The problem is the doctor. Because I am frightened and nervous I become very unsure when a chart is mistaken. Once a week Mr. Shaw goes to see me on a "cheering up expedition" mission. There are 34 chain stores in his area. He visits them to see prices and quality offered.

"We have to look out for each other," he said. "We're at each other's necks for a few pennies difference, but you have to keep faith in the industry."

Friendly Supermarket Manager Puts Toys with the Cereal

TORONTO (CP) — It was a perfect setup for asparagus, George Shaw, 44, manager of a Scarborough supermarket, was offering it at 49 cents a pound, 39 cents lower than usual.

"What a buy!" he told a visitor. "It's the first crop from Mexico this season, so we put a hot price on it. It's really going to sell."

When asparagus went on sale that afternoon, shoppers headed for the pileup green stalks like homing pigeons and a brisk shopping cart, aimed at the night daily special, is the symbol of George Shaw's success.

The world of the supermarket has occupied most of his working life, since he started as a $13-a-week clerk in his father's grocery in Orono, Ont.

"I wouldn't do anything I wouldn't buy myself," said Mr. Shaw, who does his own shopping in the store.

From a tiny, cluttered office overlooking the store he has managed for five years, he supervised food choices but not layout.

"Management sets the prices and the special sales," he said, "We order the goods and figure out how to sell them."

His food store has the urban flavour of the neighborhood bank or the local movie theatre. It's a far cry from the folksy atmosphere of the country store, but Mr. Shaw calls many of his customers by their first names.

Sometimes complaints are just an excuse to talk. he said.

"One day a woman said she could afford to buy half the store, came up to me with an opened box of tasbasgo.

"There were supposed to be 100 bags here," said the customer. "I counted only 98."

Mr. Shaw gave the customer a penny.

He manages a staff of 120 full-time and part-time workers and although he likes to think of himself as a friendly neighborhood grocer, he is still shrewd enough to put children's toys in the cereal section.

"You wouldn't put sylons there, would you?"

A woman saw him one day changing the price of an item from 13 cents to 21 cents.

"I caught you," shouted the customer, "changing prices in the middle of the day. You should be ashamed."

George explained the 13-cent price was a charity mistake.

Once a week Mr. Shaw goes on a "cheering up expedition" mission. There are 34 chain stores in his area. He visits them to see prices and quality offered.

"We have to look out for each other," he said. "We're at each other's necks for a few pennies difference, but you have to keep faith in the industry."

Canadian Books for Canadian Kids

TORONTO (CP) — In the recent upsurge of Canadian nationalism, books available to children have been coming under attack, but one author might be given them their views of life this might be the answer to Canadian identity problem.

This is the view of Libby Oughton, information co-ordinator of the Independent Publishers Association (IPA).

company McGraw-Hill.

Starting with a collection of eight 75 cent and seven paperbacks, IPA has grown from a small core of nine full-time employees and more than 75 publishing members across Canada.

Libby Oughton stressed in an interview that children are Canada's future citizens.

"A child's ideas of himself and his country are being shaped by the imaginative books which is fostered by the books

As a child in her native town of Guelph, Ont., "it never occurred to Libby Oughton that there were Canadian authors she might be reading. Four years ago her daughter, a Grade 11 student, "brought home a book for the third time and has yet to study a Canadian book in school.

The situation is gradually changing. It now is a Grade 13 requirement to have a course in Canadian literature, and IPA is trying to educate the public on available Canadian children's books.

Canada publishes 40 to 70 children's books a year while the United States publishes 2,-300, many of which are sold here. Meanwhile, Norway, with one-fifth of Canada's population, publishes 750 children's books annually.

"It's the old chicken and egg syndrome," said Mrs. Oughton. "Does nobody buy Canadian books because they're not available or are they not available because no one buys them?

"Teachers, librarians and bookseller find out what's new from American magazines, television and newspapers.

The best thing concerned parents and others can do, she said, is to demand more Canadian bookstores.

She suggested the best way to find out what Canadian books are available for children is to read in Review, the only journal reviewing them. It is a provincial publication by the Ontario residents and is 13 to out-of-province subscribers.

Unexpected Bonus for Unseasoned Traveller

"Is there anyone on board who speaks Greek? We have an elderly lady here who comes from Greece and is travelling to Vancouver. She speaks no English.

She keeps repeating something which I cannot understand, 'espes'. If there is anyone who understands or can talk Greek, would they please come to see me at the front of the plane?"

After this appeal, Nicole, the flight service director on my plane, explained to me: "We have offered her food, cotton, shown her the washroom, she shakes her head and she keeps repeating this one word. Now we are going to wire ahead to Winnipeg to see if we can get a translation of 'espes'. There is a Greek mechanic on our staff there who might help."

Still later, Nicole (cute, slender, in a red jacket) reported that the Greek mechanic could find the peculiar word was probably "pill". No go. When the pill was offered, this too was refused by a shake of the head. The next thing to do was arrange for an interpreter to meet the plane when it put down in Calgary.

Four days later I got the sequel from the passenger service supervisor in Calgary, just before I boarded my plane back. It seems when we got the wire he consulted the list of airport staff (not just Air Canada) for someone speaking Greek. Alas! Only part-time staff was on (a was Sunday) and not a Greek among them!

His boss called the Greek Orthodox Church in South Calgary; "either the monsignor or the cook answered the phone." When the plane put down, Mr. Calgary, the ground hostess spoke to the church person, but the old lady spoke direct from the "bridge" — the walkway about 10 feet from the plane. It seems she had been given a soft drink and wanted to pay for it. ("I pay ya!") She also refused her dinner which was offered her (succulent albeit steak!) because she could not pay.

An exchange of conversation (in English and in Greek) between Greek lady, church person, and ground hostess, delivered the information that once the lady got back on board she would be served dinner free. She was told that everybody on the plane would have a dinner and they would not pay for it.

She was tremendously relieved and pleased. She must have been hungry!

The passenger service man commented, "You see, I always feel there but for the grace of God go I!" This is the way I look about all those who travel bravely but apprehensively: strangers in a strange land!

And he wanted me to deliver the message to all unseasoned air travellers (even native Canadians) that meals are served on board free of four weeks for private reply, which will be sent if an eight-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed.

Shewants to Overhaul Real Estate Industry

MONTREAL (CP)—There's a woman in Montreal determined to overhaul the real estate industry. The repair job will start with training.

Elizabeth Butler, president of the Montreal Real Estate Board, says she believes the calibre of the industry's salesmen, or salespersons as she prefers to call them, can be improved.

Firstly, people without the proper education should not be permitted to work within the industry. In Mrs. Butler's opinion, she hopes to see a provice provincial authorities to toughen educational pre-requisites for a selling licence.

In the meantime, she is not just going to sit back and wait for the bureaucratic government machinery to move.

Already Mrs. Butler has written a training program for residential salesmen associated with the company where she works, A. E. LePage and West-mount Realtors Inc.

It is the company's first coordinated effort to train its agents, said Mrs. Butler, who used training methods taught by her eldest daughter, Lynn, an education professor at McGill University.

She said she believes that if the industry would only accept properly trained sales staff, the high turnover of salesmen would be reduced. Last year, the Quebec Real Estate Association processed 2,000 new members and by year's end, half of them had dropped out.

This dropout rate could also be reduced, she said, if salesmen were paid a regular salary on top of commissions.

This method of payment has been introduced in some western Canadian cities she said, but still is considered foreign in Quebec.

It would give a whole new look to the industry. Companies would be careful whom they hired and there would be more discipline which would lead to greater efficiency in business," she said.

Pays for Folly

LONDON (CP)—Earnest Yelland's wedding bill went up by $64,400 when a judge ruled he must pay that amount to his former wife before he could get a divorce and marry his mistress. The court found that Yelland, a weathy businessman, had lived in luxury with his mistress since his 37-year marriage broke up in 1957, while his wife Ethel 61, lived in a small, damp apartment.

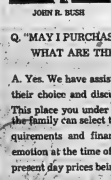
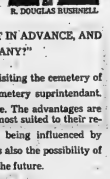
FUNERAL QUESTIONS



WE ARE OFTEN ASKED



JOHN R. BUSH

R. DOUGLAS RUSHNELL

Q. "MAY I PURCHASE A CEMETERY LOT IN ADVANCE, AND WHAT ARE THE ADVANTAGES IF ANY?"

A. Yes. We have assisted many families in visiting the cemetery of their choice and discusing this with the cemetery superintendant. This place you under no obligation of course. The advantages are the family can select the type of lot it feels most suited to their requirements and financial position without being influenced by emotion at the time of bereavement. There is also the possibility of present day prices being lower than those in the future.

Q. CAN THE FAMILY AND FRIENDS BE PRESENT TO SEE AN ACTUAL CREMATION?

A. No part of the actual cremation is seen or is in evidence to the friends or family however if the family so desires the relatives or friends responsible for the funeral arrangements may appoint two of their number to see the casket placed in the cremation chamber.

Air Fare Increase Appealed

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian transport commission ruling that permits domestic air fare increases was appealed to the federal cabinet Friday.

The Consumers' Association of Canada and the provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan asked the cabinet in separate appeals to review the commission decision which cleared increases by Air Canada, CP Air and the five regional airlines.

They argued that if the cabinet finds the appeal reasonable, the transport commission should be told to set new revenue levels for the airlines. The air carriers then could be told to submit new fares.

The commission said in an oral ruling Monday there was no evidence to show the airline rate increases were unreasonable or unjust. The commission declined to suspend, disallow or alter the proposed fares except for two Eastern Provincial Airways routes in the Atlantic provinces.

CP Air and Air Canada fare increases averaging 10 per cent for economy and 14 per cent for first class took effect Thursday. Increases by EPA and Pacific Western Airlines began in the June Tuesday. Increases by Nordair and Quebecair will be implemented Sunday and higher Transair fares June 8.

Airline fare increases automatically take effect 30 days after they are filed unless the commission suspends, disallows or changes them.

New Ice Age Long Way Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian climate experts say there's no need to purchase thermal underwear in preparation for the coming ice age or other ice age.

Speakers at the joint annual convention of the Canadian Meteorological Society and Canadian Association of Geographers said Thursday that a possible new ice age is a long way off.

"We hear a lot of talk about a new ice age coming . . . but we really don't know," said Dr. Owen Orvig of McGill University. "We're just on the threshold of understanding what all the factors are in our climatic atmosphere."

Papers on climatic changes presented to the convention showed that Northern Hemisphere mean temperatures generally have dropped since a hot peak around 1940. The trend towards cooler temperatures was slow and marked with sharp fluctuations.

"Some people do feel the 1950 period represented a high point and we now are on the temperature downgrade," said D. C. Schaefer of the federal atmospheric environment service.

"But, even if that analysis is correct it's going to be a long, long time before we can see in going to start worrying about it."

Gordon McKay of Toronto said the effect of climatic changes on production of the world's food supplies does cause concern.

To Your Good Health

Varicose Veins Need Treatment

By C. C. THOMPSON, MD

...Dear Dr. Thompson: I'm 30 years old and I have a pretty good build and figure, except I have varicose veins so bad I cannot wear shorts or a bathing suit. They also cause my legs to hurt a lot.

I want to know about the operation to remove them. Is it painful? Also what kind of a scar is left? Does it require hospitalization?—Mrs. W. C.

Varicose veins are caused by structural defects in the vein valves, they will not correct themselves or disappear once formed. Luckily varicosity rarely affects the veins very close to the surface where they can be easily treated. However, varicose veins can sometimes be a symptom of a disturbance of deeper-lying vessels, as in phlebitis, and this possibility should not be overlooked in search for cosmetic treatment. This is easily determined by the doctor.

Usually, varicose veins can be improved to appearance by either surgery (ligation or stripping) or by the injection method. The injection method is preferred by some doctors, and is effective in milder cases.

Surgery does require hospitalization; it involves small incisions which would leave only tiny scars. The end result would be a definite improvement cosmetically.

At your age, it seems advisable to do something about the varicose veins, particularly before you have symptoms other than visual pains.

In ligation, a portion of the vein is tied off. In stripping, the vein is removed.

Dear Dr. Thompson: Is there a cure for angina pectoris? My doctor says that's what I have. I get the pain when I have to get out in the cold air or into a cold car. I take tablets.

It also bothers me when I get upset or do heavy work. I would like to know if anyone ever gets over it, or should I see a different doctor. I'm 70 years old.—Mrs. E. B. S.

Angina occurs because the heart muscle is not getting sufficient oxygen. It is not a disease in itself, but a symptom of an underlying problem that interferes with circulation. There can be a degree of hardening of the arteries, which should be expected at your age.

It's not appropriate, therefore, to be speaking in terms of curing the angina. For whatever reason, your heart is under an abnormal stress, and treatment is to relieve that strain to the extent that is possible that would mean avoiding the situations you mention which seem to prompt attacks. Instead of plunging into heavy work, say, again in terms of trivia normally, building up slowly until you appear to have reached the point of strain that is going to give you trouble; then quit.

The general rule for taking medication is: If present it is nitroglycerine tablets: to learn to use them before activity, not afterward, when it is too late to avoid the distress.

You'd best stick with your present doctor, who is familiar with your history and your needs.

Dear Dr. Thompson: Is it true that eating oysters increases sexual potency? Incidentally, this is an important question because the price of oysters here is $2.25 a pint.—Mrs. M.

By the time you read this, the price will probably have gone up higher. The answer to your question, Lady I hear about constantly, is no.

RATS SERIOUS PROBLEM

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti — (CP) — The Haitian government is trying to control the exploding rat population with pesticides because their increasing numbers are causing serious inroads into the chronically underfed republic's food supply. Rats have no natural predators in Haiti, say officials.

Three Bills Get Final Reading in Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons closed the week with a flurry of activity Friday, giving final reading to bills that would increase judges' salaries, create two northern Senate seats and provide a base on ocean pollutants.

The three bills, none highly controversial, closed the week with little debate as attendance sagged to its usual end-of-the-week low. Only a handful of MPs were present for the passage of each.

All must have royal assent before becoming law.

The Senate is non-representative and non-elected . . . It is inappropriate that we should now move toward adding members," said Jack Horner (NDP—Northwest Territories) said the bill should be scrapped and, in its place, an ombudsman should be appointed to hear grievances against the government by northerners. The NDP has long favored Senate abolition.

The pay bill, which would raise judges' salaries in some cases by up to 72 per cent, was generally approved. The top judge, Supreme Court Chief Justice Bora Laskin, will have his pay increased to $60,000 annually from $50,000 if the bill completes remaining stages of passage unchanged.

But Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) used the debate to attack the prems for its recent coverage of a pay increase amounting to 33 1-3 per cent.

Coverage amounted to "an unprecedented, vitriolic, ill-informed, biased and hysterical attack" on parliamentarians, he charged.

He asked why similar reporting had not occurred with the judges' pay bill, since percentage increases were larger in some cases than for MPs.

"The judges, I suppose, are not as effective in kicking boys in the media," he said.

The third bill, criticized by Joe Clark (PC—Rocky Mountain) for allowing "excessively wide ministerial discretion," would bring Canadian ocean pollution laws into line with those in a number of other countries.

If passed unaltered, it would make it illegal for any ship in Canadian or international waters to dump waste or pollutants without a permit from the federal transport minister.

Mr. Clark said an appeal board to be established by the bill is inadequate because it "will allow only partial appeal to decisions of the minister."

A day-long debate is scheduled Monday on the growth of executive power within the government. The day is one of several set aside each session for debating subjects chosen by the opposition.

Forecast Brighter For U.S. Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agreement is now fairly widespread that the economic upturn in United States next year will be better than stagnation.

That and other pieces of the U.S. economic outlook for the next 18 months are beginning to fall into place, with some key questions still to be answered. Ford's economic and budget review, the Ford administration said economic growth will proceed at a rate of 4.5 per cent next year, rather than 6.1 per cent as forecast in February.

Chairman Alan Greenspan of the president's council of economic advisers said he expects a return to economic growth by the third quarter of this year, if not the second quarter.

The president's revised forecast projected average unemployment this year at 8.7 per cent, up from its February forecast of 8.1 per cent. That's a key political issue for next year.

Inflation, as measured by the increase in consumer prices, is expected to ease to 7.4 per cent this year, down from 12.2 per cent in 1974, and to 5.4 per cent in 1976. That is better than earlier forecasts.

In other economic developments:

—Chrysler Corp. said it is extending a price rebate program through June on seven models. The firm said $200 rebates will be granted to purchasers of compact Darts and Valiants, the Dodge Sportsman or Tradesman vans and the Plymouth Voyager. The purchased model must be in stock of quality for the discount.

—Agriculture department said the prices farmers receive for raw agricultural products jumped five per cent from April 15 to May 15.

—The treasury department said it will auction 500,000 ounces of government gold sales to because of rising imports of the metal.

7.1 million unemployed workers.

Gen. Quang In Spotlight

OTTAWA (CP) — There is no witchhunt against Vietnamese refugees in Canada despite the controversy over General Dan Van Quang, immigration Minister Robert Andras said Friday.

Most refugees "seem to be very fine people" and they should not fear repercussions because of questions raised about Gen. Quang, he told reporters.

The government is gathering information from several sources on Gen. Quang, a controversial former South Vietnamese officer living in Montreal. He has been linked in news reports with heroin smuggling and other corrupt practices.

Mr. Andras said he is trying to ascertain "maximum information" and hopes to make a decision soon on whether to let the general remain in Canada.

He said the government decided before the Communist invasion of South Vietnam to cut through red tape and deal with refugees on a humanitarian basis.

He was asked whether the government is consulting interpol on the general's wife and family. All factors in the case are under consideration and "all options are open," he said.

In the Commons, Mr. Andras disagreed with Derek Blackburn (NDP—Brant) who said the U.S. government has evidence which could block entry of Gen. Quang into the United States.

Gen. Quang entered Canada on a one-year ministerial permit from a U.S. base being used in the resettlement of Vietnamese refugees.

Beef Leads Food Price Increase

The Canadian Press

Outdoor cooking buffs who greeted the warmer weather by dusting off backyard barbecues had some enthusiasm dampened as beef prices jumped as much as 20 per-cent during May.

The highest increases were in Ontario, where sirloin steak jumped 50 cents a pound to $1.98, and in Edmonton where ground chuck rose 40 cents a pound to $1.09, a cross-Canada survey by the Canadian Press shows.

Prices on choice cuts of beef rose in all 12 cities surveyed, from 1.35.

Prices will probably remain high until the end of the summer, said a spokesman for the Canadian Cattlemen's Association, which carries out weekly surveys of retail beef prices.

The spokesman predicted that prices will drop again in the fall when a heavy flow of cattle to market is expected in Canada.

Last month, predictions were that sugar prices were rising again, but the trend didn't last long and to cities showed sharp declines in prices. Halifax had the largest drop—a five-pound bag dropped in cost to $1.35

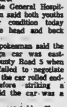
Education Beat

Students Need Development Too



By RON CARBON
Staff Reporter

Professional development days continue to be a sore point with the public and because of the teacher involvement but it is the students or classes by the students.

Educators have finally convinced the public and their own ranks and file that the for professional development is great. In fact, some educators feel teacher professional development is far behind private industry's in this area. Educators now just argue how many days should be given for professional activity.

The public is still concerned about students missing those days from school and if it is right. Unfortunately, most parents remember the holidays for the wrong reasons and don't know they are right in thinking professional activity days are a waste of time for students.

In actual fact a great deal of the professional programs deal with problems of human relationships and interactions, particularly in the classroom.

Many others deal with the ways and means to better communications.

Is there any reason why secondary school students are not in need of the same improvement in human relations and interactions? Perhaps an earlier understanding of this area could produce a more emotionally healthy society.

Why can't student hold professional activity days to correspond with those of their teachers? This would satisfy the public and produce a more mature environment for students if they school students to learn about each other.

It could be arranged by granting an additional activity day to the teachers so that one activity day out of the total number is a percentage of the teachers could attend and supervise students activity days. The supervision would be on a rotating basis.

However, the teachers would only be used to supervise. Student councils and other student groups would be responsible for organizing the days, recently retired commanding officer of HMCS Cataraqui and naval reserve division based in Kingston.

Foxboro Crash Kills Driver

FOXBORO — A single-car accident near here Friday killed an 18-year-old Lindsay area youth and two others are in hospital with possible head and back injuries.

Belleville OPP said the mishap occurred at 12.10 p.m. Friday night about one-and-a-half miles east of Foxboro on County Road 5 (third Con Lane).

Dead is the driver, Michael Wayne Scott, of 127 Durham St. W., Lindsay. Injured in the accident are Bradley Hurrich, 20, 220 Main St., Foxboro, and Glen Parsons, 19, also of Foxboro.

A Belleville General Hospital spokesman said both youths are in fair condition today with possible head and back injuries.

An OPP spokesman said the small foreign car was eastbound on County Road 5 when the driver failed to negotiate a curve and the car rolled and over-turned several times. He said the car was a Datsun.

Provincial constable Shane Halvorsen investigated.

Sports Centre on Canniffon Road is now squarely in city council's hands following a closed-door session Friday.

Information gathered by The Intelligencer indicates the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund building account for the sports complex topped $1 million by the beginning of this year.

The first phase of the project to include an elaborate ice surface and swimming pool is expected to cost approximately $6 million.

Representatives of the provincial government's lottery branch, Lorne Williams, a consultant with the sports and recreation bureau of the ministry of culture and recreation, six members of council, city recreation director Gordon Jeffrey and members of the Yardmen fund met in camera Friday to discuss "smooth takeover" of the sports project.

Mr. Williams, during an interview following the meeting said: "The municipality can apply for grants providing Yardmen monies are funneled through the city's books.

"Government grants will take care of a lot of the money left to be raised, leaving the municipality taken over the project making it eligible for provincial grants, said Mr. Fisher, who has the ability of the Yardmen to continue their lottery to raise the needed funds," he said.

Asked if there is a need in the Belleville area for a facility of this kind, Mr. Williams said, "no question."

Provincial lottery co-ordinator E. C. Fisher said the government now might be "premature. I wouldn't want to jeopardize the talks."

He said council members "asked a tremendous amount of questions."

"Council members and the mayor were very committed and very careful," he said.

He said he would not "like to comment" on the meeting as was asked during the session or my presence.

Members of council were tight-lipped on the Friday recall chambers at the close of the meeting, saying they were shy questions concerning municipal takeover.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said "it was a fruitful meeting," but would not go into detail.

Asked if members of council mentioned anything about the annual operating cost of the complex, Mayor Jeffrey replied, "no comment."

She said there will be no further meetings to discuss the scheme and that complete public disclosure of Friday's talks will come in June.

Ald. Ben Corbett speculated the sports centre would come up for discussion at the late council meeting of June.

Tax Exemption Prickly Issue For Hospital

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville General Hospital board of governors have deferred for a month any decision on resolving a lingering issue with the city treasury over seven-and-a-half acres.

The hospital board has been wondering if it is exempt from such charges which total about $71,000 — including $11,000 for garbage services.

A similar problem resulted in court actions in Ottawa and Toronto and he board has recently taken legal advice on its situation.

The basic principle at stake, advised hospital solicitor Donald Templeman in a letter to the board, is while the costs affect charges and rates, the courts seem to interpret them as taxes. As such public institutions are exempt from taxation.

Mr. Templeman suggested the hospital simply disconnect with the city on the problem.

If such talks are co-operative and avoid court actions, he proposed one solution: the city acknowledge the exemptions, while the hospital might compromise by not claiming recovery of back taxes retroactive to then.

However, Ald. Paul Russell, city council-appointed board member, also pondered a legal possibility: Could the board members be considered derelict in their duty if they did not claim the back taxes should the hospital be entitled to them?

Mayor Robin Jeffrey asked that any decision be delayed until the city's solicitor had a chance to review the situation. Also, he noted, while the city was on firm ground with the sewer bill, because the city's sewage disposal was causing a fault for the provincial government environment director, it involved a "user charge."

However, the city could have a less certain case with the garbage issue, she said.

Patients Need Infection Protection

Control of Infectious acquired by patients) after admission to Belleville General Hospital needs a special supervisory official to be fully effective.

But, hospitality, it may be financially possible to hire an infection control officer this year, the hospital's board of governors was told Friday.

The control program already in progress at BGH has been "satisfactory progress," Dr. Reg Anderson, medical director reported to the board.

But the program is limited in its effect because of "lack of an infection control officer," he said. Follow-up investigations and corrective actions are "not fully possible" because such an official is not available.

Philip Rickard, hospital executive director, said BGH has been unsuccessful in the past two years in its attempts to find health ministry approval for funding such a staff appointment.

However Mr. Rickard said later, by effecting savings in the 1975 overall hospital budget such an official may be hired this year.

Mr. Rickard again stressed the need for hiring such an official.

The problem of infections being incurred by patients was mentioned to all hospitals, he said later.

Dr. Anderson's report showed infections incurred during April included 14 respiratory problems and 39 urinary tract infections.

Some Pleasure Boaters Feel Americans Should Pay More

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Reaction from the public to implementation of lockage fees on Canadian canals this year has been "no more nor less" than had been forecast when accounting to a senior Parks Canada official in Ottawa.

Ron Maslin, director of the Agreements for Recreation and Conservation (ARC) branch in; the Indian and Northern Affairs ministry, said Friday the branch has received public comment, but reaction has been generally restricted to areas near canals.

"There has been no real problem across Canada," he said.

His comments come as pleasure boaters enter the second to last weekend they will be able to use Canada's seven canals free. Monday, June 9, lockage fees announced by Indian and Northern Affairs minister Judd Buchanan in March will go into effect.

Reaction has not been overwhelmingly negative, said Mr. Maslin. "We've had a remarkable response from a number of people."

"While they've criticized, they've also agreed it is inevitable. Some letters almost have the tone of sorrow rather than anger," he said.

The response to fees has been the suggestion that American boaters be charged more for use of canals than Canadian boaters.

The suggestion, Mr. Maslin called a "standard proposition" based on the belief that parts of the system (Parks Canada canals) are being swamped by American boats.

The reasoning behind such a suggestion, he said, was that Americans are richer than Canadians "therefore they can afford to pay more."

Response to the lockage fees has been 10 to 15 per cent from Americans, who have been exposed in their press to news of the fee implementation.

Mr. Maslin said America-ns basically object to fees because canal use has always been free before, and they should remain free.

On the other hand, he said, Americans have also said they've been surprised that canal use hasn't been charged. The revelation came in a late 1960s report on tourism by a University of Carleton professor student.

Mr. Maslin declined to speculate what effect fee implementation would have on boat traffic on Canada's canals. "I don't know whether it will mean a drop in total use."

Claude Graham Dead at 83

TRENTON — Claude Graham, a former town councillor here, died Friday at the age of 83.

A retired Trenton fuel company owner, Mr. Graham's funeral will be held Monday at 1.30 p.m. from Weaver Funeral Home.

Trenton Woman Nominated

A Trenton woman has been nominated by Belleville General Hospital board of governors as a candidate for a directorship on the Ontario Hospital Association (OHA).

She is Mrs. William Ellis, member of the Trenton Memorial Hospital board and already serving a two-year term as director for the OHA's District 8.

The district represents all hospitals from Trenton via Brockville.

Mrs. Ellis already has been nominated by her own board as a candidate for re-election to the OHA board.

Saving Study Not Needed

Belleville General Hospital's administration unexpectedly was itself some praise when it decided to consider possibly hiring management consultants to study its efficiency — with an eye to cost-saving.

Officials agreed to let an exploratory team from United Research, New York management consultants, conduct a preliminary survey to see if such a study was necessary.

Within a brief period, Philip Rickard, BGH executive director told the hospital board Friday, the team had this analysis: "We wish to congratulate you on your organization and we wish to withdraw as we cannot save you a penny."

Trent Lock Fees In Effect June 9

TRENTON — Pleasure boaters on the Trent-Severn canal system will be charged for lock use for the first time June 9th in a move which have now been authorized to levy fees by a federal government order in council.

Rarticular economic circumstances, lock employees, canal tourism operators, and town Chamber of Commerce offices will be telling people as of Monday, June 9, Parks Canada official said Friday.

Fees implemented have been postponed four times, the most recent occasion being Friday, when in the meeting it was set for Wednesday June 4 and in the afternoon it was postponed to Monday, June 9.

Fees for lock use are set at $15 a year, $25 a month, and $50 a season (May to October) for boats under 18-feet in length.

For commercial vessels and boats over 18 feet, owners will pay 10 a day, $40 a week and $80 a season. Ten day permits are also available.

Rowboats and canoes will not be charged for lock use.

In addition, owners will face a 48-hour mooring limit after which a $3 daily fee will be levied.

Three Doctors Joining Staff at Hospital

After a month's delay, Belleville General Hospital board of governors Friday moved to confirm appointments of three doctors to its associated medical staff.

Questions about the appointments were raised last month when the board was told the three physicians' applications to take their fellowship examinations as Fellowships until June.

The board at that time was concerned with the problems about staffing in view already on staff — fall examinations. Among other consequences it would create a decline in the accumulated patients and responsibilities would have to be released from staff.

However, sanitary also was expressed that the physicians might seek employment elsewhere if their BGH applications were rejected. The matter was referred to the hospital's medical advisory committee.

Friday the committee recommended appointments of Dr. G. W. Hodgins, to the radiology department; Dr. L. A. Lietzer and Dr. F. C. Grant, to the department of medicine.

Everyone Agrees on Stricter Gun Controls

Jack Ellis, MP for Hastings expects gun control legislation will be before Parliament reasonably soon. The bill would call for registration of all firearms with penalties for possession of a weapon without a permit ranging up to two years imprisonment.

Should there be tougher firearm regulations was the topic of this week's interviewer. The question was asked people after the recent shooting incident at Brokenjaw high school and all the people interviewed said that they felt much stricter regulations should be imposed.

Most felt having to register gun would reduce on small crime by quite a bit, but added the regulation would not affect organized crime to any great extent. The majority said they feel the maximum two-year imprisonment penalty is too stiff and thought fines are more reasonable.

HAROLD JOHNSTON

Harold Johnston of Ameliasburgh says he feels the government should make much stricter laws and agrees with Ellis' belief that 200 per cent. "It would definitely stop the criminal if the laws were changed. People should have to take a special course or test to familiarize them with these before they are able to buy them," he said. He said that he feels people would go along with the regulation and not take advantage of the law because it would be protecting them and their community.

CLEO MITCHELL

Cleo Mitchell of Bloomfield said that the regulation to register guns may help and yet it may not. She said that it would cut down on offences dealing with young people, such as the Brampton incident earlier this week, but felt that there will always be problems dealing with the big criminals.

"If it cut down on even a little crime it would be worth it", she said.

HAROLD TRAPNELL

Harold Trapnell says that gun regulations will be a good thing as long as there are not too many restrictions.

"Some men have used guns all their lives and have never misused them and they should not be penalized", he said. He likes target practice and always have a gun in his house.

"The restrictions shouldn't be so stiff that people can't have a gun to protect their home and property", Mr. Trapnell said.

ANDY JORGENOTTER

Andy Jorgenotter of Foxboro is an avid hunter but still feels that all guns should be registered. "Many people don't have the ability to handle a gun properly and there should be a control on them people's guns", he said. Mr. Jorgenotter says he is all in favor of strict penalties and believes that law and order are the only things that will keep the country alive.

EMILY McLeod

Mrs. McLeod of 38 Joyce Cres., says that she feels all guns should be registered.

"It is a common thing to say and use guns freely around here", she said, "a punishment such as a jail sentence would be a deterrent to people if it were imposed. Sportsmen realize the value of possessing a gun in the proper manner and I don't think they would be against stiffer regulations", she said.

TED STENSON

Ted Stenson of the Canadian Armed Forces said he agrees with gun registration, but thinks after a while the government might make the public pay a fee for possessing a gun and he does not agree with that.

"Gun registration would really cut down on small crime, but the big criminal organizations would probably be able to get away without registering their arms," he said.

Teaching Proposal Debated

A long-debated proposal to involve Belleville General Hospital in an off-campus university teaching program for family medicine has been up for discussion.

And Monday it will be debated again.

The matter has been under discussion since last year with the city's University faculty of medicine.

It would involve placing students in a community setting rather than in association with local physicians.

Monday's meeting of the scheme were set out late last year following discussions at a joint conference committee, involving BGH and Queen's officials.

The hospital's medical staff then came up with other proposals.

The entire topic was again discussed Wednesday at this week by the joint committee.

Philip Rickard, BGH executive director told the hospital board of its progress Friday.

The result: "The whole matter once again has been referred to medical staff," said Mr. Rickard.

The staff plans once again to discuss the proposals at a special meeting called for Monday night.

It injured was Mrs. Norma Worley of 199 Station St.

A hospital spokesman today said the woman is in fair condition and is expected to undergo surgery on a fractured knee.

Police Chief Douglas Crabbe identified the driver of the car as Nancy Allis, 31, of RR 1 Carrylville. The car was southbound on Cannifton Rd. when the accident occurred, said the chief.

Nursing Homes Ease Long-term Pressure

Accommodation of long-term patients — a long-standing space pressure problem at Belleville General Hospital — has been dramatically eased.

A new wing at the hospital of a new nursing home in Belleville.

The last report re-iterating the problem — chronic-care patients taking up active-treatment beds — was given to the hospital board last month.

"Since that time a remarkable change has occurred," Dr. Reg Anderson, medical director reported to the board Friday.

In the interim, the new Westgate Nursing Home in the city began accepting patients from the hospital. This has caused a "head-to-toe movement" in the bed situation in the hospital's MDA wing, he said.

Within a few days, 25 long-stay chronic-nursing active-treatment beds were discharged to nursing homes or to the hospital's MDA wing as beds opened up.

In March there were 27 patients awaiting transfer from the WCA wing to nursing homes. Now there are only three.

And, except for one case of tuberculosis, all patients in long-term patient new nursing home in the main wing, reported Dr. Anderson.

McGinnis Contract With Knicks Invalid

NEW YOK (AP) — New York Knicks signed American Basketball Association superstar George McGinnis Friday, setting up an almost certain legal showdown with their current National Basketball Association partners, Philadelphia 76ers.

McGinnis, leading scoring champion this past season, agreed to a six-year, $3 million-plus contract. But when the agreement is submitted for approval to the NBA commissioner's office, it may be rejected.

McGinnis's NBA rights still belong to the 76ers, who drafted him two years ago. Until the Knicks satisfy the 76ers, Philadelphia limits New York's signing of McGinnis is open to legal questions.

Last year, when the Knicks were searching for front-court help, they turned Phil Jackson and Dave DeBusschere into a multi-player package that included Cazzie Russell and Walt Bellamy, a 6-foot, 11-inch, 270-pound forward.

It seemed then that McGinnis, considered one of the two or three best forwards in basketball, would come to New York.

Instead, he signed a two-year contract with the Pacers believed on several occasions after the 1974-75 season.

"At one point, our rights to negotiate with George expired," Knicks president Mike Burke said Friday. "I don't remember whatever those rights."

The final contract was signed last week when McGinnis used the NBA and its members in disputing the 76ers' claim to his rights. Philadelphia's lawyers said the case was being dropped.

"The 76ers don't want an arrangement other than having McGinnis play here.

"He's ours," said general manager Pat Williams. "We drafted him when we had class graduated two years ago.

Burke said the Knicks had executed the legal ramifications of the signing and "took the action we took on the advice of counsel."

A.J. Foyt the Man To Check Cheaters

TORONTO (CP) — Bobby Unser, winner of last weekend's rain-shortened Indy 500, says one way to stop cheating among drivers at Indy would be to let fellow driver A. J. Foyt check everyone.

Here's drum up interest in the June 15 Labatt's Formula 2000 at Mosport, Unser says Foyt would be the ideal checker because he knows every trick of the trade.

Unser said he wasn't accusing Foyt of cheating, "but he'd be the most professional about it if he ever did."

He (Foyt) runs NASCAR (National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing), where they have the best checkers in the world. They spend more time figuring out how to cheat than they do racing.

Unser says few Indy drivers cheat because they are checked closely because they are checked closely, but said there are driver and mechanics there aren't enough to get away with it.

"I'm glad they're checking. I would use illegal gimmicks when he sees other drivers get away with them," said Unser. Car owner Dan Gurney won't let him.

"Dan just won't do it," says the driving U. S. Auto Club champion and a two-time winner of Indy, "and I'm glad his way."

Cheating on fuel is the big thing in USAC racing, trying to figure how much fuel is needed to go the 500 miles in the shortest time.

Foyt had a trick that didn't break the letter of the law. He added water which mixes well with alcohol used in Indy cars. It worked beautifully until the rule was reversed.

Driving Gurney's Formula 5000 at Mosport, Bobby claims the series offers the easiest opportunity to cheat because officials fail to implement a check on the equipment.

Howell Collects Five RBI's in Ranger Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ray Howell made a big hit for Texas Rangers and at the same time struck a blow for unconventional baseball strategy.

Howell knocked in five runs Friday night to lead the Rangers to a 9-4 victory over the New York Yankees—and his last run-batted-in went the decisive "percentage" rules of the game.

Howell, a left-handed hitter, was allowed to bat against Sparky Lyle, a left-handed pitcher—and came through with the game-winning RBI single in the ninth inning.

"They can hit left-handers," said Texas manager Billy Martin, who often forsakes the safety of the book. "He showed me that is trying training."

In other American League games Friday, Minnesota Twins beat Boston Red Sox 6-4, Baltimore Orioles blanked California Angels 5-0 and Oakland A's turned back Chicago White Sox 9-2.

Games at Detroit between the Tigers and Chicago White Sox and at Milwaukee between the Brewers and Kansas City Royals were rained out.

Jeff Burroughs hit a home run in the eighth to tie the game 3-3 before Howell's dramatic hit. Howell had two singles before his ninth-inning blast put an end to a six-game losing streak for the Rangers.

"I guess Billy was trying to build confidence in me by letting me hit against Lyle," said Howell. "He's a great left-handed pitcher—but with one batting stroke, I guess we had to do something different."

Howell's heroics overshadowed his fellow Toby Harrah's leadoff double in the ninth. Harrah doubled to left-center off Lyle, 1-2 pitcher who had been credited with giving reliever Jackie Brown, 1-2, the triumph.

Other scoring singles by Tony Oliva and Eric Soderholm in the Minnesota game gave Minnesota its win. Oliva ripped a 1-2 pitch from Boston reliever Diego Segui down the right field line to score Soderholm.

Soderholm's single scored Sergio Ferrer, who had stolen second base after going in to run for Oliva.

Jim Palmer pitched a four-hitter and recorded his fourth shutout of the season, enabling Baltimore to stop a seven-game losing streak with his seventh win over California.

Right hander Dick Bosman survived a shaky start and scattered seven hits in eight innings as Oakland defeated Cleveland. Pitcher Jesse Barfield was traded to the A's less than two weeks ago.

Needle Prepared To Fight

TORONTO (CP) — Greg Needle is prepared to take the National Hockey League to court if it doesn't allow him an opportunity to pursue his career in the professional league.

One door was opened to the 20-year-old grandson of Jackie Needle, a former NHL player selected him in the World Hockey Association draft.

But NHL president Clarence Campbell is adamant. Existing laws will not allow Needle to play in the NHL with only one season.

Needle, a defenceman, lost his left eye in a hockey game in 1972, while playing with Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Major Junior A Series.

Last year, with a protective covering for his good eye, he scored 26 goals and added 33 assists in 68 games with the Guelph Centennials of the Ontario Hockey League.

"There's a principle involved here," said his father, Norman. "If a handicapped boy is drafted by, then the NHL rule shouldn't discriminate against the player. Needle's lawyer, Jay McMurtry of Toronto, has sent Clarence Campbell a letter of legal action if the NHL president doesn't withdraw invalid teams before next Tuesday's amateur draft that the player is eligible to play.

Guthrie Returns To B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League announced Friday the signing of former quarterback Eric Guthrie.

Guthrie, who played for the Lions in 1972 and 1973, returned this year with Detroit Wheels of the World Football League. He was 6-2 with 30 pounds. Guthrie is a native of Vancouver who attended Boise State University in Idaho.

Guthrie will join quarterbacks Don Jonas and Steve Fraser. Lions when training camp at Penticton, B.C. begins June 15.

Guthrie was the premier punter in the Western Football Conference with a 43.9 average in 1972, with a 43.9-yard average.

The party set on Wednesday to celebrate the Flyers' Stanley Cup victory is going to cost the city nearly $100,000 in overtime for police and security workers, about $9,000 more than expected, city officials said Friday.

Bob Apodaca Learns the Hard Way

You Just Don't Throw McCovey a Good Pitch

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bob Apodaca was facing big old Willie McCovey for the first time Friday night. Veteran catcher Jerry Grote suggested a breaking pitch Apodaca opted for a fastball.

"I wanted to get it down and away," he explained.

McCovey hit ground-level home run off Apodaca—the 183rd of his career to tie Hank Aaron's National League record—to cap San Diego's six-run rally in the eighth inning that carried the Padres to their 6-2victory over New York Mets.

"Obviously it wasn't down and obviously it wasn't away enough," explained Apodaca.

In Friday's other National League results, Pittsburgh Pirates edged Atlanta Braves 3-1, Houston Astros blanked Philadelphia Phillies 1-0 and St. Louis Cardinals nipped Cincinnati Reds 5-4.

The Los Angeles Dodgers were leading Chicago Cubs 3-1 when play was rained out following the eighth inning—to be resumed Saturday today's regularly scheduled game. At Montreal, a game between the Expos and San Francisco Giants was rained out.

"I was looking for an offspeed pitch, not a fastball," McCovey said after hitting his 521st career home run. "I was right. I just shouldn't have thrown it."

Loser Jerry Koosman had a shutout going for Mets before John Grubb, Enos Hernandez and Bobby Tolan singled for three runs and Dave Winfield doubled to tie it in the eighth.

Mike Ivie was intentionally walked to load the bases, pinch-hitter Ed Kirkpatrick delivered a two-run single and Dave Winfield followed with a sacrifice fly by Suzz Capra into right for the single that beat Atlanta.

Bluebird Doug Konieczny pitched his first major league shutout, scattering seven hits, and Milt May drove in three runs for the Astros with a pair of singles.

Los Rock's ninth-inning rally was highlighted by Mario Guerrero and Ron Fairly, who carried the Cardinals past Cincinnati after the Reds had tied it in the top of the inning on Pete Rose's two-run homer.

The Dodgers broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth onDave Lopes' homer and added a run in the sixth on a double by Steve Garvey and a single by Ron Cey.

Los Angeles manager Walter Alston announced that seven-game winner Andy Messersmith will pitch the final two innings of the game today, trying to save the win for Don Sutton.

Flyer Looks to Future Despite Present Condition

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Gerry Rayeraft is a right-winger with talent but his fate of the senior hockey was almost a die cast.

But he's just 21 years old and an optimist and, as he discards his crutches and his eyesight returns to its normal, he is looking forward to next season.

When he joined Barrie Flyers, the Allan Cup champions, last fall, that seemed impossible.

"At the start of the season it was fantastic (a point a game for 15 games) and I was satisfied with the way I was playing," he said.

Then, in December, he suffered a knee separation. "With the injury, I felt myself going downhill. I came back, but I was never 100 per cent."

But he continued to play and the team did finish first in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior League, winning the playoffs and then eliminating Sudbury Wolves in Eastern League champions.

Then came the controversial series with St. John's Capitals. The Flyers, who had a three games to one, the only loss being a defaulted contest but Rayeraft was not playing because he suffered when struck on the knee by a stick and knee race track. has been reinstated. The championship was awarded to Barrie.

It decided it was satisfied he had established himself.

series, then went into hospital May 16 for an operation to remove cartilage in the separated bone. He was on crutches for almost two weeks.

He only recently stopped wearing the cast on his knee.

"The sight is back in my eye. Things like the injury just happened and I intend to be back."

He is waiting for the lump on his knee to recede, in the meantime he has abandoned his crutches and has turned out with Toronto Cloloalt team in Ontario Football League.

"My goals for the summer are to get my leg in as good shape as it was at the beginning of last hockey season. The doctors say the knee should be 100 per cent.

And his optimism carries over into his hopes for the future.

"The younger players hope to

Doug Sehl Heads List of Riders

Depending on the weather, the top Canadian dirt track motorcycle racers should take to Quinte Exhibition Raceway tonight. Over 40 riders will be in the lineup and vying for points in the Ontario Dirt Track Championship.

Included in the list is Doug Sehl, Hix older brother, Dave, is scheduled to race in Detroit tonight to defend his Motor City title and therefore will miss the local leg of the championships for the first time in several years.

Sports Calendar

SOUTH EASTERN BASEBALL LEAGUE
Wednesday — Belleville at Kingston, Nicholson, Demorest at Kanata.

ONTARIO FASTBALL LEAGUE
SATURDAY—Belleville at Loudon, Labatts 2 p.m.
SUNDAY — Belleville at West wood, Scotiadale Pets, doubleheader, 1 p.m.

PREMIER SOCCER LEAGUE
SATURDAY — Quinte Rebels at Kingston Dale Constantine, Brock's Estate, 3 p.m.

However, Doug is more than capable of putting on an exciting show himself and competition from his brother. In 1974 he was at Indianapolis, Syracuse and the Canadian Championships in Milwaukee — just to name a few.

Sehl will have his hands full with a couple of other senior riders — Peter Grant and Jeff Eggleton. Grant was last year's junior winner at Quinte Exhibition Raceway and this year is clawing up in the big 750 c.c. class. Eggleton really pressured Doug in the first leg of the 1975 Canadian Championships at Ulhoesburg earlier this month.

Along with Grant and Eggleton, Dave McLean, a Quebec rider is also expected to give Sehl a run for his money.

Classes range from 125 c.c. to 750 c.c. in junior, senior and expert.

The competition, sponsored by the Peace Tree Motorcycle Club Ind. of Foxboro and Intercourse, is under the Motorcycle Association and events begin at 8 p.m. Practices are at 6 p.m. The rain date for the event is Sunday at 1.30

Nelson Boily, owner and driver of the Western D. Wann, took Friday night's feature at Quinte Exhibition Raceway. Boily drove Wann to within two seconds of the track record and recorded the fastest time for a race this season at the local oval. The feature, the Boily Tex Rees Memorial, had a $700 purse.

Western's D. Wann Wins Zebedee Memorial at Wire

By DOUG JEFFRIES

Although reports had the harness racing cancelled, the weather permitted the events to carry on as scheduled Friday night at Quinte Exhibition Raceway.

It was a special night as six of the best horses seen this year took to the track for the Bud Zebedee Memorial Pace worth $700.

The race was in commemoration of the man who for many years trained and groomed many of the finest horses in the district. He was the trainer and groomer of Yankee Wann, the horse that ran the miracle mile in the Stakes in a time of 1:57.

Ellis Juniors Play Oshawa

The Belleville Ellis Juniors take to Alemite field on Sunday night when they host Oshawa Atlantis Juniors in a double-header at 7.30 p.m.

Coaches Ron Sills and Bob Boyle feel that the team needs some exhibition games with some other Junior clubs of Belleville's calibre.

The Oshawa squad is headed by Rob Oliver, a native of Trenton, who was picked up by Oshawa Terry's.

KILMER TO STAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Billy Kilmer, Washington Redskins' No. 1 quarterback last season, showed up at a spring training camp Thursday and said he planned to stick with the team. Kilmer had failed to report for the first three days of the veterans' camp, apparently feeling speculation he still was presenting coach George Allen the ultimatum to another National Football League club. The camp ends Friday.

Kerik Wins Number Seven

CNRA and Constellation won Friday night's games played at the Alemite in the Belleville Industrial Softball League.

Terry Soule scattered four hits in the opener as CNR edged UIC 5-4. Joe Scanlon took the loss.

CNR had a big three run second and equalled UIC's two runs in the third.

Warren Hay and Bob Duvall scored the big hits for the winners, as Duvall smashed a double and two singles and Hay collected a pair of singles.

Of the four hits given up by Soule two were for extra singles. Soule walked only two and fanned three.

In the nightcap, Constellation won their seventh game in a row over the arm of Ron Kerik. His record too stands at 7-0.

Constellation beat The Intelligencer 9-2, scoring five runs in the first inning off Intelligencer Jim MacEgan. Kerik and Ron Mitchell led the attack each collecting a single and double. Wayne May added a triple.

Scattering four hits Kerik gave up two singles to Glenn Reynolds, and singles to Eric Williams and Tony Concelveux.

Schmidt To Coach Caps

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Mitt Schmidt, who left the Boston Bruins' organization to become general manager of the National Hockey League expansion franchise in Washington last year, will also coach the Capitals for the 1975-76 season, the club announced Thursday. Schmidt, 57, coached the Caps for the final seven games of the season after Red Sullivan was asked to be relieved of the coaching duties for health reasons.

Wellington Midgets Get Green Light on Swiss Hockey Trip

By RICK NELSON

WELLINGTON — The Village of Wellington has been said by many, to be the "Home of Champions" after winning several Ontario Minor Hockey Association Championships over the past few years. Now the Wellington Midgets will get a chance to travel to Switzerland to play several games in January.

After the 73-74 season, coach Jim Dunlop approached the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) as to whether the hockey club might be able to play a foreign one.

Mr. Dunlop, along with team manager Malcolm Greer, are veterans of two Ontario Championships.

"Our goal now is to play and possibly beat a team from another country," said Dunlop "Finally after several meetings and much negotiation, the CAHA approved the request at a meeting held in Quebec last May. Jack Devlin, president of the CAHA, phoned Mr. Dunlop the next day to inform him of the decision.

The country of Switzerland has been chosen and the city of Schathausen with a population of 48,000 people has been picked as home base for the club.

At this point, 17 out of 20 players have been picked to make the trip in January. There are 2 - 14 second year Midgets and six first year and all have had at least an Ontario title.

Dunlop feels he'll have a good team because every other year these same boys, when they get together, have brought home championships.

He said Mr. Greer have attended a lot of meetings and talked to a lot of people to find out about foreign hockey, so they wouldn't go into it blindly. Representatives of the team will be going over in June to make accommodation arrangements and itinerary for the team.

Dunlop estimates that it will cost his club $17,000 to make the trip, so plans for several fund raising projects have been made up. So far projects underway are a walkathon on Saturday, May 31, two dances at the Wellington Arena on June 14 and August 30 and a draw for a five gleer on September 1 at the Gold Cup races in Picton. It was also noted that Prince Edward County council gave the club a grant of $1500. He said the club will ask for donations from local merchants.

The club leaves January 15th and will stay in the 20th. So far, 28 games are going as well, many are parents of the players are to stay in hotels while the boys will stay in Swiss homes.

There will be six games played: two in Schathausan and four in other Swiss cities.

The club will start their training in August with running and weightlifting. In September they'll start skating.

What the Swiss lack in hockey experience they make up in conditioning as "we're starting early," said Dunlop.

He also noted that his club will be at a disadvantage because ice surfaces in Europe are larger than those in Canada.

Barber Tells By The Clap

ATLANTA (AP) — Near-sighted Miller Barber didn't have to see it. His knew he had an eagle from the crowd reaction.

"You can tell by the clap, there's a birdie clap and there's an eagle clap," Barber said. "I knew that was an eagle clap."

Barber's eagle — on the 35th par-5 hole — left him with a late surge Friday that may have moved him a share of the Atlanta International lead with U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin at 3-under-par 135 for 36 holes.

"I just don't do that," said the balding 44-year-old pharmacist who would become golf's shortest millionaire winner with a victory in the first three-man playoff in a mandatory stop for the tour's top players.

"I don't remember when I last had an eagle," said Barber, who holed a pitching wedge shot from 123 yards away, then closed with birdie on the final two holes to fashion an eight-under-par 64, tying the course record.

Irwin, lodged in a three-way deadlock after the first round retained his share of the lead by shooting a 69 Friday, despite some difficulty with his driver.

Irwin, playing with a #7 in the breezy, humid conditions, had the leaders by two shots at 137. Then came Jim Dent at 138, Forsman Reed at 139 after firing a 68.

Dent, grouped at 138, including Johnny Miller, winner of three events this year, was 1-over par 141. Miller angled for par-five finishing hole for a 71.

Jack Nicklaus, who won the last two events on this course, opened with a 73 and was among a group at 142.

Nicklaus, twice failing to survive the halfway cut of 145 was followed by Palmer, who had a 75 for a 154 total, George Knudson of Toronto, who had a 77 for a 147 total, and Ben Kern of Tucson, whose 76 gave him a 150 total.

Whitworth Under Par for Third Time

BALTIMORE (AP) — Veteran Kathy Whitworth shot her second consecutive three-under-par 70 and took a four-stroke lead Friday after two rounds of the Ladies Professional Golf Association championship.

Miss Whitworth, who had secored 72 tour victories and last Monday was inducted into the LPGA Hall of Fame, collected four birdies and recorded her only bogey when play resumed following a rain delay.

Debbie Austin, first-round co-leader at 36, carded a 73 in the second round, but fired four-over-par 76 for a 148 total.

Steve Prefontaine Killed in Auto Crash

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Steve Prefontaine, for almost a decade one of the best and most controversial athletes in the United States and the owner of every American running record for over 2,000 metres, is dead at 24, the victim of a pre-dawn automobile accident here Friday.

The 5-foot-8, 115-pound distance runner, whose dedication to running and training was matched by his bitterness over the treatment of amateur athletes in the U.S., had come within 16 seconds of his 5,000 metre record as a meet in Eugene Thursday night.

Barely four hours later, after leaving a party in honor of other Finnish athletes he had brought to North America to compete, Prefontaine had taken his girl friend home and was driving along a Eugene residential street. Police said he missed a sign car crossed the centre line, skidded about 40 feet, struck a rock embankment and flipped over, pinning him beneath it.

His death sent shock waves through the track world and cost the U.S. its strongest hope for a gold medal in the distance events at the 1976 Summer Olympics in Montreal.

Perhaps that of Prefontaine's proudest accomplishments was the four he wrangled for the six Finns, whom he had met and lived with while competing during a European tour.

That became the first runner to capture the NCAA three-mile title each of his four collegiate seasons, between 1970 and 1973.

Prefontaine also set a U.S. 3,000 metre record of 7:42.8, and other records: two miles, 8:13.0; three miles, 12:52.4; 5,000 metres, 13:22.2; six miles, 27:20.4; 10,000 metres, 27:43.4. All were set between late April and mid July, 1974, the year he was recruited by the Amateur Athletic Union championships.

Tennis on Three Fronts

SURBITON, England (Reuter) — Patti Hogan, former United States Wightman Cup star, outlasted Australian Judy Dalton in the semi-finals of the Surrey Lawn tennis championships Friday.

The 35-year-old Californian reeled from Australian's onslaught in the first set but recovered to win 1-6, 6-2, 6-3.

In the final tomorrow she meets Greer Stevens, also of South Africa, who defeated New Zealander Judy Connor 6-4, 6-2.

The men's final will be an all-Australian affair between Steve Docherty and Peter McNamara. Docherty beat compatriot John James 4-6, 6-4, 6-1. McNamara defeated New Zealand Davis Cup player, Chris Lewis, 6-4, 8-6.

DUESSELDORF, Germany (AP) — Top-seeded Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia moved into the semi-finals of the Duesseldorf Grand Prix tennis tournament Friday with a 6-2, 6-3 victory over Ray Moore of South Africa.

Kodes's semi-final opponent will be unseeded Colin Dibley, who eliminated Harald Elschenbroich of East Germany 6-3, 6-4.

In other quarter-final matches, Jaime Fillol of Chile beat Peter Feigl of Hungary 6-3, 6-2, and Francois Jauffret of France defeated Hans Pohmann of Austria 1-6, 6-2, 7-6.

ROME (AP) — Raul Ramirez of Mexico upset top-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden 6-4, 6-3, on Friday to win the semi-finals of men's singles in the $130,000 Italian open tennis championships.

In the women's singles, defending champion Chris Evert of the U.S. crushed Yugoslavia's Mima Jausovec 6-2, 6-0 to qualify for the final against Czechoslovakia's Renata Tomanova, who outlasted Dianne Fromholtz of Australia 7-6, 6-3.

Ramirez seemed in trouble with a service break in the first game. The other games went with the service, but Ramirez, too, was never in trouble, and he won the ninth game at love.

A service break gave Borg a 3-0 lead in the second set after two controversial calls against Ramirez. Ramirez rallied to break back twice for a 5-3 lead.

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario golfers will have to be under par or better and the men at least one under par—with handicap, of course—to best the champions during the 34th annual Junior Golf Week June 14-22.

International Tournament Just What The Doctor Ordered for Hockey Boredom

OTTAWA (CP) — Relief may be on the way for bored hockey fans who remember the success of two Soviet Union-Canada clashes.

There may also be a partial answer to the amateur-professional question which country is first in hockey.

Plans for an international hockey tournament involving teams from the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Finland and the United States to play the best available Canadians in 1976 were announced Friday by Health Minister Marc Lalonde.

The pitch is getting approval from National Hockey League team owners and the competing countries, he told a news conference.

Alan Eagleson, the NHL Players' Association chief, will head the Canadian organizing committee charged with arranging details with the other countries.

He said the NHL moguls will oppose the tournament but he will be up to us to persuade them that it makes sense." World Hockey Association owners support the series, he added.

The two series with the Soviet Union were played in the NHL's frequently-cricicized move, because the Soviet buyers were in mid-season form, while the Canadians were just beginning to train. Canada, using NHL players, won in 1972 while the Soviets captured the NHL's best last fall.

Lalonde said the tournament would be held in the fall prior to the start of the 1976-77 professional season. It would be a round-robin affair with the top two squads meeting in a best-of-three championship.

Eagleson said he would go to the NHL and the WHA to get "the best possible refereeing." Officiating was controversial in both of the Canada-Soviet series.

Concern about NHL owners' opposition dominated Eagleson's comments. The owners had opposed the 1972 series and we saw what happened."

"The players will make the determination, not the owners."

If the public wanted to see the tournament the owners would become cooperative. He could not imagine the owners being in the cards to prevent a player from suiting up for Canada or the U.S.

Clarence Campbell (NHL president) will announce tomorrow that this series will never take place," Eagleson said."

Campbell said in Montreal late Friday that he could not comment on the players' participating if their team did not endorse the injury insurance.

"Why should owners provide this insurance," Campbell asked.

"Unless the league changes its policy ... the tournament will never take place, he said. It is unlikely any Canadian public opinion will sway American owners into letting their players take part.

Canada said a U.S. team could be formed around the 40 American-born players in the National Hockey League. But Canada would fight attempts by the U.S. country to convince their Canadians to change citizenship.

Eagleson Has to Convince Owners

OTTAWA (CP) — Alan Eagleson, chief executive of the National Hockey League Players' Association, said Friday it would be part of his new job to persuade NHL owners of the wisdom of Canada taking part in an international hockey tournament in the fall of 1976.

But at the same time, Eagleson said the players have a right to determine parts of their playing careers as long as it doesn't interfere with their regular hockey employment."

Tentative plans for the tournament were announced Friday by Health Minister Marc Lalonde at a news conference. He said sports officials from the United States, Finland, Sweden, Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union were in agreement, but sought approval from their governments.

The tournament would be held prior to the opening of the professional hockey schedules. Each team would meet the others once and the two top teams would then meet in a best-of-three series.

Once the governments agree, Lalonde said he is confident they will, Eagleson would head a four-member committee making arrangements for the tournament.

In Montreal, NHL President Clarence Campbell said league governors will decide to what extent they will support the proposed tournament.

The plan must be approved, of plans for two Soviet hockey teams to tour Canada and make visits to Europe.

"Why should owners provide this insurance," Campbell asked.

"Unless the league changes its policy ... the tournament will never take place, he said. It is unlikely any Canadian public opinion will sway American owners into letting their players take part.

Canada said a U.S. team could be formed around the 40 American-born players in the National Hockey League. But Canada would fight attempts by the U.S. country to convince their Canadians to change citizenship.

Quirk Wins Third

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Wendy Quirk of Pointe Claire, Que., defeated defending champion Freddy Ahmet 6-4, 6-4 Friday to win the second set of a tournament at the second annual Fidelity Federal open tennis meet.

Ranked third in the world in the 200-point butterfly, the sixteen-year-old Miss Quirk raced to a 2:29.6, another meet record, and finished less than two hundredths of a second behind Kathy Heddy in the 200-metre freestyle.

Earlier, Miss Quirk set meet records in the 100-metre butterfly and 100-metre freestyle.

Miss Heddy's winning time fell short of world record holder Shirley Babashoff's mark by three hundredths of a second.

TWO OTHER WINS

Moffat To Crusaders

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Lyle Moffat, who spent part of last season with Toronto Toros of the National Hockey League, will sign next week with Cleveland Crusaders of the World Hockey Association.

The newspaper say the outland has offered the 27-year-old Calgary native a 100-year contract at 25,000 a season and that the Crusaders also are talking to John Stewart, a 26-year-old left winger who played with the Atlanta Flames of the NHL last year.

The Leafs assigned Moffat, a left winger, to Oklahoma City of the Central League after he scored two goals and had seven assists in 17 games at the start of last season.

Keeping an Eye on Creator

Just One Drink a Day Enough For World's Biggest Distiller

MONTREAL (CP) — Allan Bronfman, who helped build the world's biggest distilling and wine empire, has gone into the liquor cabinet of his sub-conscious often.

"It's almost empty," he reported with a chuckle.

Mr. Bronfman's secretary who soon produced an apparently near bottle in an elaborate package.

"But this bottle is half-empty," Mr. Bronfman explained. "Accidents just don't happen in the baronial home of Seagram, nerve centre of the worldwide Bronfman empire.

The incident gave Mr. Bronfman a chuckle, but it also prompted the serious observation that for him a half-bottle of whisky goes one week-to-last in term of moderation.

"One drink a day is enough for me," emphasized the non-smoking businessman-lawyer-philanthropist.

He said he is proud that the company is continuing annually an advertising campaign started in 1934 by his half-brother brother Samuel and the theme:

"Do who make whisky say: drink moderately."

The Bronfman brothers — sons of a Jewish immigrant who helped found Winnipeg's first synagogue — met in the 1920s and built a distillery here as the first step in an enterprise which today has climbed to more than $1 billion business. Samuel died in 1971.

"He, Sam," founding president, and "Mr. Allan," founding vice-president, became legendary figures, as Seagram Co. Ltd.—its new and shortened title—grew to annual volumes of nearly $1 billion.

And now a special kind of celebration is being prepared to mark the 80th birthday of Mr. Allan, who has embraced a host of philanthropies during the last 55 years while helping establish the Bronfman financial dynasty.

Organizers of the memorial tribute say they aim to create lasting projects to honor the "extraordinary" contributions of Mr. Bronfman to the Jewish and non-Jewish worlds, notably in charity, education, culture and health.

The amiable octogenarian, who comes from a long-lived clan, has shortened his workday as a result of a recent bout with pneumonia—in his heyday he rose at 4:30 a.m. to cope with manifold interests.

But he plans to lead an all-Canada delegation to the forthcoming jubilee anniversary of Israel's Hebrew University and he also cortinues as vice-president and elder statesman of the Seagram firm.

"There is a Jewish salutation: 'May you live to be 120,'" he recalled with a smile. "I used to say I would settle for 90. But when you're 80, you're not so ready to settle for 90."

Yigael Yadin, archeologist extraordinary and chief of staff in Israel's victorious war of 1948, will be guest speaker at a tribute dinner for Mr. Bronfman at the Queen Elizabeth hotel June 3.

Sponsors of the tribute also plan:

—A major student housing development for the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. Mr. Bronfman is deputy chairman of the university's international board of governors.

—A fund for medical research at the 700-bed Montreal Jewish General Hospital founded by Mr. Bronfman who served for 25 years as its president, a job now held by Peter, the younger of his two sons.

—A Jewish Community Foundation fund for projects in medicine, welfare, education and culture.

The House of Seagram sits like a small castle amid Montreal's downtown traffic din in contrast with the Bronfman mansions high on a Westmount hill overlooking the city—the homes of Allan and the late Samuel side by side.

"We've been married 35 years," said Allan affectionately introducing his wife, the former Lucy Bilsky of Ottawa now recovering from surgery.

"When I phoned her on the seventh floor of the Royal Victoria I did not tell her I was on the second floor with pneumonia," he recalled with a grin as he described their recent simultaneous sojourns in hospital.

The two showed a reporter around their home full of elegant objects of art.

The Bronfman philanthropies and fund raisings are recalled by scores of framed scrolls of esteem along with mementoes and photographs of such famous persons as Albert Einstein and David Ben-Gurion.

The Bronfmans keep a room always in readiness for visiting members of the family of their only daughter Minna who died at age 36. The name of Minna is commemorated on a Hebrew University amphitheatre. And Minna's daughter Zoe has given Allan and Lucy their first great grandchild, Meadow Rose.

Their sons, Edward, 47, and Peter, 45, majority owners of the Hill, Montreal Canadiens and the Montreal Forum, have made their careers outside the Seagram firm, proprietors of Edper Investments Ltd. and other interests.

Mr. Allan said the Bronfman family still owns the largest block of Seagram shares, roughly 21 per cent, the great bulk being in the CEMP trust, established by Mr. Sam on behalf of his four children. Samuel's son, Edgar M. Charles II, now are chairman and president respectively of Seagram's.

Allan Bronfman's conversation shows a deep sense of family and also of the Jewish religion. He speaks of "my mother and father of blessed memory" who came more than 90 years ago from Russia, now part of the Soviet Union, to the Qu'Appelle district of Saskatchewan before moving to Brandon, Man., and settling in Winnipeg.

Ethel and Minnie Bronfman are two daughters, all of whom survive, and four sons. Allan, "the baby," being the only survivor, born in Brandon, he was his law degree at University of Manitoba. He practised law in Winnipeg for five years, teaming up with Samuel in the interprovincial mail-order liquor business of the day.

Man Worked 20 Years Making Ship for Home

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — The agony of Tom Sukanen is being revived for a museum with the restoration of the vehicle of his anguish—the ship that was to take him home.

A group of senior citizens at the Antiques Car Club of Saskatchewan, which operates a pioneer-village museum eight miles south of here, is using a federal New Horizons grant of $4,638 to restore the ship Mr. Sukanen built and hauled 15 miles to the banks of the South Saskatchewan River on what was supposed to be the first leg of his trip back to his native Finland, via Hudson Bay and Greenland.

Bob Jones of Moose Jaw, car club treasurer, said the Finn, who "homesteaded at Birsay, Sask., died in 1943 at the age of 63 in a mental institution after 20 years of work on the boat that cost him his health and led his neighbors to believe he was mad.

The man wouldn't give up his dream of sailing home although he was too weak to finish the project and in the end "all he could do was struggle and cry," Mr. Jones said.

The boat is half-restored now and sits in the museum compound surrounded by a pioneer church, a school-house, a store and a sprinkling of restored original farm homes. It was trucked to the museum in 1973.

There's been plenty of enthusiasm as local history buffs check more and more about the ship's story and, "many, many volunteers are just raring to go on this thing as soon as the weather gets decent," Mr. Jones said.

The hull of the ship had sat upside down in a coulee since 1942 and workers had to trim about six inches of rotten wood off it to get load-length. The hull stands 34 feet high, including the deck cabin.

Mr. Sukanen made everything himself, including his own tools, some of which have been preserved and had the ship equipped with a water clock—an "odd contrivance," Mr. Jones said, with dowels and wedges that somehow was to keep time during the ocean voyage.

Mr. Sukanen planned to haul the keel, painted with horse blood to resist sand water, behind the hull until he reached deep water, Mr. Jones said the group restoring the boat plans to display it as if it were in a drydock.

Mr. Sukanen's work was "crude" but effective. He made the ship's boiler, since destroyed, which is to drive the propeller on the squat-looking, tin-covered boat.

Caribbean Laborers

Drugs, drunkenness, broken beer bottles, and threats of violence by hired help from Canada are some of the reasons southern Ontario farmers are turning to the well-behaved, quiet and steady black farm laborers from Caribbean countries. In an effort to reduce unemployment, Canadian government officials are urging food producers to hire Canadians, but farmers are making the move. (CP Photo)

The Amazing Alex Tanous

Alex Tanous is unusual in several ways.

First, he's a psychic, a medium. That's pretty good for starters.

Second, he has a string of academic degrees (Doctorate in philosophy and theology from Boston College and Fordham University) which makes him very different from the usual psychic.

And third, he is a devout spiritualist. He is a former Roman Catholic who has taught at Catholic colleges and whose psychic powers have appeared regularly in church and spiritualist publications (such as Mahlon's The Church Herald).

There's no contradiction, he says, between being a Catholic and being psychic. Alex Tanous told me recently, "Psychic powers seem to think there is."

For years Alex Tanous taught theology at St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto. Then he went to Manchester, N.H., and says he was told by a vision that he should resign from the psychic world. But other voices told him to "go back and expand his knowledge," he says.

That sort of psychic abilities does Alex Tanous have?

Well, judging by reports that were collected they cover quite a range. He makes predictions, sometimes apparently with singular accuracy. On January 1, 1971, Alex Tanous predicted in a Canadian newspaper that Prince Philip would die before the fifty-fifth bachelor would marry before the end of the year. To the surprise of just about everybody, Princess Margaret suddenly (but very) did.

On other occasions Tanous hasn't been, to say the least, right on target. And he went on record on 1 March, August, 1971, when he said in print that Senator Edward Kennedy would become President of the United States by 1976. He further predicted that the next year, after Paul VI, he'll be succeeded by persons within the Catholic Church".

As evidence that he does have abilities above the ordinary, Alex Tanous points to his experiments with scientists who've tested him and to his successful attempts to solve crimes for the police.

Tanous has worked in a series of experiments with Dr. Karlis Osis, a psychologist who directs research for the respected American Society for Psychical Research in New York. Dr. Osis says that Alex Tanous has shown evidence of a high level of ESP.

In one series of experiments, Dr. Osis tested Tanous' claimed ability to leave his body and project his mind into another room and report what he found there. Results of these tests have been very "intriguing and encouraging," Osis told me, and they are continuing.

In helping solve crimes Tanous seems to act as a sort of human radioscope picking up a signal from the missing person or murder victim or whoever is involved.

In the summer of 1974, Alex Tanous was consulted by Police Chief Herman Boudreau of Freeport, Me., in the case of eight-year-old Johnny Mason who was missing. The police were stumped. Could a psychic like Tanous help?

"I thought that it's a lot of big-town police experts listen to psychics, why shouldn't I?" said Chief Boudreau explaining why he turned to ESP.

"We were concentrating on four key suspects at the time, though we didn't tell Tanous. I took him through the apartment house where the boy lived and then drove him around the district. He tried to pick up "impressions".

The impressions Alex Tanous got were so strong and specific that he told the police and the boy's mother that the boy was dead, that his body was in the apartment house where he lived and that the body was "wrapped in something and under something else." And, said Tanous, "I'll bet you'll find a piece of wood in the closet."

When I saw it," said Chief Boudreau, "I almost fainted." He pulled out a photograph of Milton Wallace, one of our suspects, and Alex Tanous Theobald and Wallace were the same person.

"I think was no way that Tanous could have known about Wallace."

Police searched the apartment of the 32-year-old factory worker who lived just down the hall from the missing Mason boy. They found the boy's decomposed body under the bed wrapped in a sheet.

Wallace was convicted of the crime and in December, 1974, sentenced to life imprisonment.

"Of course," said Chief Boudreau, "I had already talked to Wallace because he had a record of sexual assault on a seven-year-old boy. But Alex Tanous certainly put us on the right track."
